Lobby Scored As Roosevelt Signs Sugar Quotas Bill

Assails 'Unholy Alliance,' Tells of 'Gentlemen's Agreement'

Talks With Leahy, Bingham in N. Y.

By the Associated Press.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 1.—President Roosevelt tonight signed the sugar quota bill, but with an understanding that the "unholy alliance between the cane and beet growers on the one hand, and the seaboard refining monopoly on the other, has been terminated by the growers."

In a statement bitterly assailing the bill's provisions to restrict refined imports from Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands for another two and one-half years, the President said the measure's value had been seriously impaired by legalizing a "virtual monopoly in the hands of a small group of seaboard refiners."

He added, however, he had received assurances from responsible leaders of the Senate and House and asserted:

"In view of these assurances, therefore, I am approving the bill with what amounts to a gentlemen's agreement that the unholy alliance between the cane and beet growers on the one hand and the seaboard refining monopoly on the other, has been terminated by the growers.

"That means that hereafter the refiners' lobby should expect no help from the domestic growers. That is at least a definite step in the right direction."

Burden on Housewife.

He said the monopoly "costs the American housewife millions of dollars every year, and I am just as concerned for her as I am for the farmers themselves.

[Informed Senate sources in Washington said the President signed the controverted sugar control bill only after receiving congressional pledges his recommendations would be followed in framing renewal legislation three years hence, the Associated Press said:

[With a veto message already written, Mr. Roosevelt, these sources said, agreed to sign the measure after a series of last-minute conferences with spokesmen for sugar State congressmen and Secretary Wallace. The pledges these sources reported, approximated those stated by the President in his statement.]

The new act, designed to replace the Jones-Costigan law expiring December 31, sets up a system of raw and refined production and import quotas among domestic and off-

Boy, 14, Lands 4-Pound Bass In Tiny Lincoln Fountain Pool

Foggy Bottom Rod and Reel Club Snickers as National Capital Casters, Faces Aglow, Try to Laugh It Off.

The Foggy Bottom Rod and Reel Club may not be in a class with the prominent National Capital Casting Club, but one of its members, Charles Stebbins, 14, yesterday put a lot of expert fishermen to shame when he landed a 4-pound bass in the tiny fountain pool which adjoins the Lincoln Memorial reflecting pool.

Members of the more exclusive fishing club, who practice casting twice weekly in the pool with their complicated flies and tackle, bowed red faces last night when told of young Stebbins' feat.

"Of course," they hastily explained, "the bass is highly sensitive to noise and our members may have scared the fish when they discussed the finer points of casting."

Meanwhile, fishermen of the Foggy Bottom Rod and Reel Club—an organization boasting a membership of some 10 or 12 youngsters, averaging about 14 years of age—were congratulating Charles.

Although unable to explain just how the fish got into the small fountain pool, the boys were not surprised that one of their members caught the prize bass almost in the very center of the Capital.

"I saw four or five bass in the pool a couple of days ago," Charles said, "so I went home and got my fishing reel. After two hours of casting, I hooked a beauty, but he snapped the line before I could land him."

Striving to maintain modesty, Charles, who lives at 707 Twenty-second street northwest, added:

"I bought a new line today and after a tough fight, I landed him."

M. C. James, assistant chief of fish culture of the Bureau of Fisheries, explained that the bass may have gotten into the pool in the spring of 1936, when waters from the Tidal Basin washed over that area. Others said "fish story."

Britain's Fleet Searches Sea To Destroy Sub

By the Associated Press.

London, Sept. 1.—A British war fleet searched the Mediterranean tonight with bared guns and authority to sink the submarine that fired a torpedo at the destroyer Havock.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden summoned the cabinet ministers to consider repeated naval incidents in Spanish waters tomorrow.

Quarters close to the admiralty indicated that the mysterious submarine would be sunk if possible after its crew was taken off. The government considered such a step "entirely justified."

At least eight swift destroyers were rushed into the search. Each commander was told explicitly that he was "free to use his own judgment."

All the destroyers were armed with depth charges capable of sinking a submerged submarine and guns heavy enough to blast it off the surface.

An unknown number of other warships sped into the western Mediterranean near where the Havock was fired on, between Alicante and Valencia, on the east coast of Spain.

Others stood by for orders.

Hearst Gives Up Plan to Borrow $35,500,000

Withdraws Registrations With SEC, Cites 'Less Favorable' Market.

By Franklyn Waltman.

William Randolph Hearst, who in recent months has been dismantling his far-flung newspaper empire, yesterday obtained permission from the Securities and Exchange Commission to withdraw two registration statements, pending five months, under which he had hoped to borrow $35,500,000 from the investing public.

Hearst acted through Hearst Publications, Inc., and Hearst Magazines, Inc., the two companies which had filed the registration statements last March and which sought authority to borrow the money in exchange for serial debentures. Hearst is the sole owner of the two companies, which are a part of his intricate corporate structure.

Hearst Publications, Inc., sought permission to issue $22,500,000 in debentures, the proceeds to be used, except for $2,123,192, for the retirement of previously-issued evidences of indebtedness on the part of the Hearst newspapers. Of this indebtedness $15,580,450 was guaranteed personally by Hearst.

Hearst Magazines, Inc., sought permission to issue $13,000,000 in de-

Doctors May Sacrifice 1 of 2 Paralysis Victims in Iron Lung

By the Associated Press.

Denver, Sept. 1.—Physicians fighting handicaps to keep two girl victims of infantile paralysis alive with the only "iron lung" in the Rocky Mountain region, feared tonight a crisis might force them to decide which shall live.

"It is possible that, at any moment, both girls will require the lone respirator," said Dr. T. L. Williams, deputy health commissioner. "If that moment comes, we may be faced with the problem of deciding which shall live."

Hope of saving both lives lay in the chance a second respirator would arrive beore either girl needed exclusive use of the device.

Dr. Williams said Maybelle Outcalt, 15-year-old daughter of a family where the disease already has claimed one life, was growing worse and needed the mechanical lung constantly tonight.

The critical turn in her condition, he said, was offset by some improvement shown by Shirley Krause, 30 months old, the other victim. She was able to remain out of the breathing device.

'Community' Tax Loophole Faces Study

Separate Husband-Wife Returns Cost U. S. Millions Yearly.

N. Y. Reported Planning to Join 8 States With Legal Way Out.

By Robert C. Albright.

Aroused by complaints from big taxpaying States, members of a special House sub-committee on taxation yesterday were probing the breadth of a "community property" loophole through which millions in taxes each year in eight States legally escape the Federal revenue net.

New studies were directed at the possiblity of adding from $30,000,000 to $100,000,000 annually to Treasury intake by requiring husbands and wives in all States to file joint income tax returns, forcing many into the higher tax brackets.

Community property laws in the eight States under fire permit separate returns by husband and wife, splitting two ways the income of either spouse, regardless of which is the breadwinner.

Man Could Split Income.

Thus, if a man earns $100,000 annually, he would file one set of returns for $50,000 and his wife who shares his income would file for the other half.

The surtax on an individual income of $100,000, it was pointed out, is $30,000. But if this is split into two sets of returns of $50,000 each, the surtax on each is only $7,700 or a total of $15,400 for husband and wife.

Numerous efforts have been made in recent years to reach taxpayers in the community property States, and the Treasury has espoused the joint return method of combatting it. Strong resistance from Senators and Representatives from the States thus protected has defeated every move.

Renewed agitation at the Capitol was attributed to fears that States carrying the country's major tax burden might seek the same relief for their citizens, by amendments to their State constitutions. Such a trend, if it developed, would deal a devastating blow to Federal revenue.

New York May Act.

A report gained currency yesterday that Mark Graves, commissioner of taxes of the State of New York, would propose a community property law amendment to the New York constitution if the Federal Government continued to permit such relief to the eight States having such laws.

From Albany last night Commissioner Graves wired The Post there was "no foundation" for this rumor. In an authoritative quarter at the Capitol it was said the New York official had complained, however, of the community property loophole in other States.

New York contributes from 35 to 40 per cent annually of the Nation's total revenue from individual incomes. In 1936, individual New York taxpayers paid $229,000,000, compared with $740,000,000 for the country as a whole. In 1935, they paid $181,000,000, compared with $527,000,000 for the entire country.

If New York and some other large tax-paying States, such as Pennsylvania, chafing under their major burden of Federal taxes, were to resort to the community property method, experts admitted it would strike seriously at Federal revenue and virtually nullify the effects of tax loophole-plugging measures of the last few years.

Hongkong Quivers In Fierce Typhoon; 40 Believed Dead

Hongkong (Thursday), Sept. 2 (AP). The most violent typhoon since 1926 lashed Hongkong today, spreading maritime and land destruction. At least 40 persons were believed dead.

Four ships in the harbor sent out S O S calls. The Japanese liner Asamu Maru was aground in Junk Bay and the Kausing was aground off Green Island.

The harbor was crowded with shipping, including liners sheltering here because of the Japanese blockade of China's coast. The Chinese steamer On Lee piled up, and a government tug was set adrift.

A witness said he saw scores of Chinese struggling in the water.

Filene Backs Co-operative At Greenbelt

Non-Profit Corporation to Put Up Capital for Business Enterprise.

Tugwelltown's Stores to Open When Residents Are Selected.

All commercial enterprises at Greenbelt, the Government's model community at Berwyn, Md., will be organized on a consumer-co-operative basis with the Consumer Distribution Corporation as "sponsor," according to terms of an agreement entered into yesterday by the corporation and the Department of Agriculture.

The corporation was set up by Edward A. Filene, wealthy Boston merchant, and has agreed to provide the necessary capital for the operation of business enterprises until residents are able to buy stock and take over ownership.

18 Months Behind Schedule.

A general merchandise store, a food and meat market, a drugstore, a motion-picture theater, barber shop, beauty parlor, garage and service station have been specified and "will be in operation as soon as the citizens of Greenbelt move into their new homes."

No residents have as yet been selected for the model community, although the opening date is set for mid-September. More than 9,000 applications from Washington's low-income groups have been received. Only 875 families can be selected.

Conceived by Rexford Tugwell, former member of the Roosevelt "brain trust," and usually referred to as "Tugwelltown," the community has cost approximately $15,000,000—more than $5,000,000 above the original estimate—and the opening date is 18 months behind schedule.

School to Prince Georges.

Selection of families will begin as soon as the question of rents is determined, the Department of Agriculture declared yesterday.

Although a "full statement of policy within the next few days" has been announced, it is presumed the Filene organization will operate only the commercial part of the new city and that the Government will retain control of the residences and apartments.

The school, the department said yesterday, will be leased to the school board of Prince Georges

2 Suspects Held In Daring S & W Cafeteria Holdup

Two suspects were being held yesterday in connection with the robbery of the S & W Cafeteria Tuesday night.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, and Inspector Bernard W. Thompson, chief of detectives, are certain the two are implicated.

One man, according to Brown, is from out of town. The other is a local man.

Thompson is seeking several other suspects believed in hiding here.

The $1,192 robbery was the work of three or more men, Thompson said, although only one actually made the stick-up.

An accomplice was in the restaurant at the time of the holdup, Thompson said. He did not enter the taxicab which waited for the robber, he added.

Arms Race 'Bankrupts World,' Hull Says, Hails Trade Pacts

'Vicious Circle' Forces Munitions Outlays, Secretary Asserts on Radio; Upholds U. S. Policies of Economic Co-operation.

The international armaments race is "bankrupting the world," Secretary of State Cordell Hull last night said in a radio speech, one of a series by members of the Cabinet.

Hull said the United States has taken "a full and active part in moves for the limitation and reduction of armament," but that disappointingly little has resulted.

"We seem to be caught," he observed, "in a vicious circle where each increase begets another, and where more and more men are taken from productive work, and more and more capital removed from constructive use."

"Many of the worries confronting statesmen today spring from the inability of their countries to sell their surplus products abroad in their natural markets and under conditions of reasonable competition," Hull went on.

"The temptation to seek economic relief by vast enrollments in military organization and in the mass production of war supplies has embittered relations between nations by causing fear.

"As Sir Edward Grey once said, 'Fear is what brings out all the worst in nations and buries all that is good.'

"No act or policy of the American Government could be held by its most bitter critic to promote or induce war," he said of the Administration's policies.

"For ourselves, we have practiced self-restraint, nationally and internationally; we have refrained from interfering in the domestic affairs of other nations; we have practiced the adjustment of international relations by peaceful means; we have observed our treaties in letter and spirit . . . We have co-operated with other nations in trying to root out the causes which lead to war."

Hull said 16 reciprocal trade agreements have been made with other nations. In every case of an agreement, the flow of trade has shown substantial gains, Hull said.

"But even more gratifying has been the slow but steady change of attitude on the part of statesmen throughout the world, until today there is almost unanimous testimony that the policy of trade liberalization and international economic fair play can alone relieve the tension that is holding the world in its grip."

The agreements, he said, were made "without sacrificing a single vital or important interest, or yielding a principle for a point of expediency.'

On the other hand, the United

Revolt Growing Among Troops In Manchukuo

Two Regiments Rebelled, Observer Hears; Unrest Reported Rising.

By Mark J. Ginsbourg,
Special Cable to The Post.

Shanghai (Thursday), Sept. 2.—While Japanese troops are rapidly extending their control over Hopei and Chahar Provinces, authoritative information which has reached me from Manchukuo through British sources reveals a widespread and growing state of unrest in Japan's puppet state.

The Tungchow uprising of last July, when troops of Yin Ju-keng, pro-Japanese overlord of eastern Hopei, mutinied and slew a whole Japanese garrison is being enacted on a varying scale in many parts of Manchukuo.

Two regiments of the Manchukuo army stationed at Mukden, dusty and sprawling capital of Manchuria in the days of Chang Tso-lin and his son and successor, Chang Hsueh-liang, have rebelled. Many cases are also reported of assaults on Japanese officers in the border region separating Manchuria from north China.

Numbering around 130,000, the Manchukuo army is officered by Japanese. The latter have never wholly been sure of the loyalty of the men under their direction. There was a case last year when a whole company of Manchukuo troops mutinied and crossed over in Soviet Siberia, arms and all.

There was also the discovery, which caused considerable perturbation in Kantung army ranks, of an extensive espionage ring in the highest civil and military circles in Hsinghan Province, a Mongol area. The Mongol officials, the Japanese alleged, had sold out to the Soviets.

With this background in mind it is easy to understand why the Japanese garrison in Manchukuo is being reinforced rather than decreased

Manila Official To Confer Over Oriental Plague

Quarantine Chief Ordered to Honkong; Ships Are Cautioned.

Public Health Service headquarters here yesterday ordered Dr. H. F. Smith, its chief quarantine officer in Manila, to proceed to Hongkong following receipt of a cable stating that 802 cases of cholera, with 427 deaths, had been reported in the British crown colony up to August 24.

Dr. Smith reported the extent of the epidemic to Washington after receiving a report from Dr. Charles R. Mallory, the Public Health Service officer in Hongkong. Officials here said Dr. Smith, upon arrival, will confer with Dr. C. L. Park, director of the Eastern bureau health organization of the League of Nations.

Instructions are being issued to the medical officer in charge of the United States Quarantine Station at San Francisco to order all West Coast shipping companies and agencies to direct their vessels from the Orient, in the event of any suspicious illness on shipboard, to call at Honolulu for quarantine inspection and any necessary measures.

Attention of ship operators also is being called, authorities here asserted, to the necessity of maintaining competent physicians as ship's medical officers to diagnose cholera and other infectious diseases and institute measures for control.

Georgia Paroles Convict From Chain Gang To Live for Next 9 Months in Massachusetts

By the Associated Press.

Atlanta, Sept. 1.—Fleming (Sing) Willis, colored man convicted of lottery operations, headed today for Massachusetts as a pawn in a fight between Govs. Charles Hurley and E. D. Rivers over the merits of their respective penal systems.

Rivers paroled Willis from the remaining nine months of a chain-gang sentence on condition he make his home in the Bay State for that period.

Given money for tobacco, Willis indicated he would hitch-hike.

The parole order followed upon repeated exchanges between the Governors over Hurley's refusal July 27 to grant extradition of Will Cunningham, colored fugitive from a Georgia chain gang, who subsequently was fined $325 in Boston on a lottery charge.

"Governor Hurley seems to be in need of extra lottery operators," Rivers observed. "I am accommodating both Gov. Hurley and his prisoner by signing the parole."

Hurley said the extradition hearing disclosed "much evidence of brutality" on Georgia chain gangs and "a sense of humanity" prevented him from returning Cunningham, who escaped March 23, 1924, while serving a burglary sentence.

Rivers described Hurley's action as "an indictment of Georgia and her sovereign people," commented on Massachusetts' Sacco-Vanzetti case and announced he had heard its State prison was "the scene of several mutinies" and "condemned as a fire trap."

Willis said he was a former Sunday school teacher, a barber, married and the father of three children.

"The chain gang ain't a bit bad," he said. "I behaved myself."

Shanghai (Thursday), Sept. 2.—Chinese launched savage counter-attacks on the Japanese army at three points along an irregular front of 1,000 miles today and claimed major victories.

"The Japanese have been repulsed at Shanghai, in southern Hopei Province south of Tientsin and on the Peiping-Hankow Railway southwest of Peiping," War Minister Ho Ying-chin announced in Nanking.

Japanese admitted their own long-heralded "major offensives" were making no headway and that Chinese had penetrated their lines in some places.

Chinese fought their way back into the Pootung area of Shanghai, opposite the Anglo-American area of the International Settlement, and brought up batteries of field artillery with which they began shelling Japanese warships in the Whangpoo River.

The Japanese flagship Idzumo and other ships sent a rain of shells on the Chinese positions.

RA Killed; Loan and Land Duties to Be Absorbed by Two Other Agencies

Wallace Ends Housing Plans Of Rex Tugwell

By Sidney Olson.

Resettlement Administration yesterday became the first New Deal agency to be voluntarily killed by the Administration, with announcement by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace that the name had been abandoned.

Two of the functions of RA—tenant loans and rehabilitation loans—will be absorbed by the newly-created Farm Security Administration. Two others—land utilization and retirement of submarginal lands from cultivation—will be taken over by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, Wallace told a press conference.

But the grandiose schemes for model communities, the housing construction activities that brought the wrath of economists down on the curly head of former RA chief Rexford G. Tugwell have been completely abandoned, Wallace said.

New Corporation Ready.

Wallace said work that has started on RA projects will be completed but no new undertakings of that type begun.

The Secretary announced the Farmer's Home Corporation, authorized in the Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant act, is ready to begin its outlined activities, with a board of directors to include: Harry L. Brown, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, A. G. Black, chief of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, and Will W. Alexander, Farm Security Administrator.

Three Are Advisers.

Black, Brown and Alexander will act as general advisers on the entire problem of farm relief.

A $10,000,000 appropriation was set aside by the past Congress for loans to tenant farmers to permit them to own farms. Another $10,000,000 was appropriated for the purchase of submarginal lands, a concomitant measure in the Administration program.

Dr. Gray, with a lengthy record of experience in land use in the Agricultural Department, will direct the purchase and development of lands under the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, to which he was transferred yesterday as assistant chief. Previously he had been assistant RA administrator.

Under the new Farm Security Administration will come the $75,000,000 general loan and grant program formerly operated by the RA.

Change Long Forecast.

The change has long been forecast.

On July 1, 1935, the President turned over to Tugwell about $7,000,000 of work-relief funds. Since then about $450,000,000 had passed through the RA's administrative hands.

Tugwell was succeeded by the mild-mannered and gentle Dr. Alexander, a former preacher without wide business or professional background.

Cotton Control Planned.

Jasper, Ala., Sept. 1 (AP).—Senator John J. Bankhead (Democrat), Alabama, said today the new compulsory cotton control measure he will offer when Congress next convenes will propose that the 1938 crop be held at 10,000,000 bales.

After next year, the Senator stated, "my bill will provide that the average crops be held within limits to provide adequately for the annual consumption, domestic and foreign, and for an average carryover of around 4,000,000 bales, to meet all emergencies."

Father Who Slew Girl, 10, to Face Charge of Murder

Detroit, Sept. 1 (U.P.).—Joseph Jacobs, 52-year-old father, who confessed today to the murder of his best friend's 10-year-old daughter, and told police he had molested three other girls, will be arraigned tomorrow on a charge of first degree murder.

Jacobs' confession explained why he bashed in Evelyn Mack's head Monday afternoon. Until today, he had insisted that he was "out of his head."

"Yes, I was going to attack her," he admitted today. "I knew if I did she would tell. That's why I hit her."

In a farewell ceremony arranged by the fellow workers, Rear Admiral George T. Pettengill, commandant of the Navy Yard commended Newgent for his long service.

A native of Washington, Newgent served as an enlisted man in the Navy for 15 years before entering navy yard service, where he rose to the highest civilian rating in the transporattion department. His home is in Bennings D. C.

39 City Playgrounds To Stay Open All Year

At 2 p. m. today the Chevy Chase marionettes will entertain at Friendship House; at 4 p. m. Politics and People

Government Assistance Has Same Destroying Effect on Individual as Narcotics.

By Franklyn Waltman

WALTMAN.

GOVERNMENT assistance, like the use of narcotics, saps the vitality and destroys the fiber of the individual and gradually weakens his self-reliance until finally he plunges to his doom. To make such a contention is to invite being characterized sneeringly as a rugged individualist, a tory, an economic royalist, or worse.

But the contention is not just a shibboleth. It is true—although, as in the case of the narcotic addict, it sometimes requires a few years to demonstrate that truth. The narcotic victim is not destroyed by the first small doses. But those doses create a craving for the soothing narcotic. Sometimes, before his reason snaps, he realizes that he is following a path of self-destruction. But his vitality is too weak to stop. He cannot go back.

For a perfect analogy with the narcotic victim, take a look at the cotton planters of the South. Something happened to the cotton South in the year which ended July 31, 1930. Foreign consumption of American cotton fell off by 1,200,000 bales that year, but—and this is important—foreign consumption of foreign cotton increased by 1,300,000 bales. In addition, American consumption of American cotton fell off 1,000,000 bales.

With a big carry-over, cotton prices tumbled. They fell from 18 cents a pound to 9 cents a pound. In the 1931 cotton year the situation became worse. Prices went down to 6 cents and then, a year later, down to 5 cents. Coincident with the depths of this price decline, the South had unusually large cotton crops—a fact which intensified the depression of prices. The cotton South was, indeed, an ill patient.

The root of that illness was the trade policy of the United States, the refusal of the three Republican Administrations which held the reins of Government to realize the consequences of this country's transformation by the World War from a debtor to a creditor Nation. Significantly, the patient commenced to collapse with the enactment of the atrocious Smoot-Hawley tariff act.

Of course, the illness of the South was aggravated by the economic depression which had the world, no less than the United States, in its grip. But the underlying cause of the illness was the tariff and trade policy of the Nation, which now is evidenced by failure of the cotton planters to achieve the restoration of prosperity as has the remainder of the country generally.

Instead of going to the fundamental cause of the illness, the Hoover Administration undertook to administer narcotics to ease the patient's pains in the form of a price-pegging scheme. When the effect of this drug wore off and the victim came to with a terific jolt, he cried out for another dose of narcotics. This came in the form of the plow-up.

Then came the New Deal. Those who had heard President Roosevelt's 1932 campaign speeches and who knew his enthusiasm over the slashing assault of Senator Carter Glass on the Hoover policies, thought this business of administering narcotics would be ended—that a major operation would be performed.

But Dr. Roosevelt did not have the heart to cut so deep into tariff protection. He brought out the same bag of narcotic pills used by Dr. Hoover—and he increased the dose in the form of AAA adjustment payments. Again the patient's white cheeks became flushed and momentarily the old vigor flowed back—and then in order to prevent a relapse Dr. Roosevelt again gave the cotton South the needle in the form of the compulsory Bankhead cotton act and price-pegging cotton loans.

The gangrene in the body of the cotton South continued its work. The patient for temporary periods, however, felt better. The intelligence of the South saw that it was following a path of self-destruction; but yet, whenever the old pain struck, it cried out for another shot of narcotics.

The pain reappeared a month ago, with a price recession resulting from estimates that this year's cotton crop would be better than 15,000,000 bales. The South cried out. Old Doc Roosevelt came running with his little pill bag and again has used his needle, but this time he has undertaken to reduce the amount and potency of the drug—apparently not to cure the habit but to force the patient to yell out again within a few months so that he will have an opportunity to give a much larger dose.

It now should be apparent to all who wish to understand that the Roosevelt agricultural policies have been tightening the noose around the neck of the cotton South which the Hoover Administration put there. We have, year after year, ventured forth on the theory that cotton production and consumption is a domestic problem and that it can be made the subject of economic nationalism and planning. We have been indifferent to the two determining factors in their bearing on cotton prices, namely, world production and world consumption.

What has been the result? Dr. James E. Boyle, professor of rural economy at Cornell University, gave the answer tersely and authoritatively in a letter published several days ago in the New York Times.

"Eight years ago," Prof. Boyle wrote, "our share of the world's cotton exports was 63 per cent. Today it is 44 per cent.

"During the five years ending in 1929 the world used 8,300,000 bales of American cotton on the average each year.

"During the five years ending 1934 the volume was 6,000,000.

During the year ended July 1, 1937, this volume was 5,000,000. Here is a revolution which has put 1,000,000 people out of work in the South.

"Brazil in 1928-29 produced 376,000 bales of cotton. This was the year before the Hoover market restriction. In 1935-36 Brazil produced 1,530,000 bales.

"During these past eight years the world has increased its consumption of foreign cotton by 7,000,000 bales; at the same time it has decreased its consumption of American cotton by 2,500,000 bales.

"The Southern planter saw market restriction begin in 1929 with cotton at 18 cents. After eight years of restriction he now sees cotton at 9 cents.

"He has seen five years of crop restriction and at the end of these five years the world has the largest cotton crop of all time.

"He has seen seven years of prohibitive tariff barriers. At the end of these years of market restriction, tariff restriction and production restriction, he sees his market almost destroyed.

"With five more years of such restrictions, the Southern planter will be himself in the position of the American Indian—a ward of the Federal Government."

D. C. Scientists to Describe Work to Chemical Society

65 Educators and Government Experts to Attend Rochester Parley Next Week; Many Scheduled for Discussions.

More than 65 scientists representing the laboratories of the Federal Government, Georgetown University and other institutions of the Capital, will report researches emphasizing Washington's prominence as a science center at the ninety-fourth meeting of the American Chemical Society in Rochester, N. Y., September 6 to 10.

A symposium on gaseous combustion will be headed by Dr. Bernard Lewis, of the United States Bureau of Mines, of which Alden H. Emery, of Washington, is secretary, and by the divisions of industrial and engineering chemistry, petroleum chemistry and physical and inorganic chemistry.

Dr. M. K. Sullivan, of the Chemo-Medical Research Institute, Georgetown University, will read two papers before the division of medical and biological chemistry. Chemists from the industrial farm products research division also will present work dealing with the production of an unfermentable sugar from a hexahydroxyl alcohol.

Among the prominent Washingtonians who will attend the conclave are Dr. Harrison E. Howe, editor of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry; Dr. Parsons, business manager and secretary of the society, and councilors of the society, including Prof. N. L. Drake, of the University of Maryland; Dr. Vincent du Vigneaud, of the George Washington University Medical School; Dr. James H. Hibben, of the Geophysical Laboratory; Dr. Paul E. Howe, of the Division of Animal Husbandry of the Department of Agriculture; Dr. Gustav Ernst F. Lundell, of the Bureau of Standards, and Dr. William H. Ross, of the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils.

Light Pole Ruled Air Crash Cause

Failure to give notice of the erection of an electric light pole was the "probable cause" of the crash of an Eastern Air Line plane at Daytona Beach, Fla., August 10, in which four persons were killed and five injured.

The report of the Commerce Department investigating board, released yesterday, said the pole, together with others, had been erected between the hours of 9:30 p. m. August 9, and 2 a. m. August 10, after a storm had caused a break in an underground circuit.

"With respect to the erection of the poles in question," the report said, it does not appear that the power and light company gave formal or informal notification. Furthermore, it was established that these poles were not lighted or marked."

Fascists Claim Sweeping Gains Near Zaragoza

Loyalists Enter Belchite, Menace Rebel Drive on Madrid Road.

By the Associated Press.

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Sept. 1.—Insurgent troops, in a sweeping counter-offensive, reported tonight recapture of all territory taken by the government in its drive against Zaragoza on the Aragon front.

For eight days the government forces have been trying to invest the insurgents' northeast Spanish stronghold hoping to smash it before Gen. Franco could bring up reinforcements.

The insurgent troops made their biggest advances in the Almudevarzuera sector northeast at Zaragoza.

Only in the Belchite sector southeast of Zaragoza, the insurgents said, did the government continue to exert pressure.

A loyalist army of 33,000 men and a fleet of new Russian tanks entered Belchite tonight, the United Press reported.

May Halt Teruel Drive.

If Franco's garrison, barricaded in an ancient seminary and the city hall, is annihilated, Teruel will be cut off from the Zaragoza base and the rebel threat to the Madrid-Valencia highway might be wiped out.

Defense commanders, although admitting insurgent counter-attacks have "slowed up somewhat" the offensive on the Aragon front, declared their troops still hold every important position.

Enter Asturias.

In northwest Spain, Gen. Franco's troops crossed the Santander border into the province of Asturias, virtually unresisted by Asturian militiamen who fled into the Cuera Mountains.

Pushing steadily westward from conquered Santander, Franco's column headed for Gijon, last major port held by the government along the northern road.

Three tri-motored insurgent planes bombed Port Bou, just opposite the French frontier, for 15 minutes late today, damaging 15 buildings.

Anonymous Letter Adds $50 Taxes to 'Conscience Fund'

The District tax collector's "conscience fund" was increased by $50 yesterday.

An anonymous letter was received by Tax Collector Chatham Towers with the request that it be added to the delinquent tax returns.

About a year ago Towers got $670 in this manner. He places the revenue in a "conscience fund" because of the lack of information on the taxpayer and the tax paid.

Roosevelt Awards Horse Show Cup

The cup went to Prince Charming the Second, a bay gelding from the Claredda Farm, ridden by Joe Molony for Owner E. V. Quinn, of Shrewsbury, N. J.

"That's a lovely horse and a great champion," the President said as Molony led the champion to the little pine shelter where the President sat in an open car.

St. John's College Puts Felix Morley On Executive Unit

Annapolis, Sept. 1 (AP).—The election of Felix Morley, editor of The Washington Post, as a member of the board of visitors and governors of St. John's College, was announced today by Dr. Amos F. Hutchins, president of the board.

Dr. Hutchins also announced the appointment of Dr. George Comenetz and James Martin as members of the faculty.

Martin was recently graduated from the law school of the University of Chicago.

Dr. Comenetz took his doctor's degree in mathematics at Columbia University. He taught physics at the College of the City of New York, mathematics at Columbia and has been a member of the Bamberger Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton University for the last two years.

Playground Staff Seeks New Offices

An investigation was ordered yesterday by the District Commissioners to find new quarters for the playground department, now housed on the third floor of the District Building.

The move is necessitated, it was explained, by the expansion of the corporation counsel's office to care for the special tax staff.

Roosevelt's Sugar Statement

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 1.—The text of President Roosevelt's statement on the signing of the sugar bill follows:

The problem before me raised by the enactment of HR 7667—the so-called sugar bill—is that the bill, intended primarily to benefit the many thousands of farmers who produce beets and sugar cane, and those who, at the place of production, refine the raw material into sugar, has been seriously impaired in its value by the inclusion of a provision intended to legalize a virtual monopoly in the hands of a small group of seaboard refiners.

I am primarily concerned with the interests of the domestic beet and cane growers and of the cane growers in the islands which are under the American flag, and the cane growers of some of our close neighbors, such as Cuba.

Bill on Whole Equitable.

So far as all of these growers, domestic and insular, are concerned, the system of quotas provided in the bill is, on the whole, equitable. From this, the most important objective of the bill, I have no reason to disagree.

The sole difficulty relates to a little group of seaboard refiners who, unfortunately, for many years were able to join forces with domestic producers in the maintenance of a continuing and powerful lobby in the National Capitol and elsewhere. This lobby has cost the stockholders of these refining companies millions of dollars and it has been wholly unnecessary so far as protection of the domestic beet and cane producers has been concerned.

It is with great regret, therefore, that I find that the Congress has accorded a status quo continuation of this seaboard refinery monopoly for 2½ years to come. The bill, in this respect, gives only one ray of hope—for it provides that this refining monopoly shall terminate on March 1, 1940, whereas the beet and cane producers' quota is extended to December 31, 1940.

Since the passage of the bill, I have been given the following assurances by Senators representing the great majority of continental sugar producers:

1. That their primary interest in sugar legislation is to afford protection to the growers of sugar beets and sugar cane in all domestic sugar producing areas of the United States, and when the sugar act of 1937 comes up for renewal they will endeavor to deal with the question of refined sugar quotas in a separate measure.

2. That they recognize the fact that Hawaii and Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands are integral parts of the United States and should not be discriminated against.

3. That when the refined sugar quotas for Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands are terminated, they will endeavor to enact legislation providing that minimum labor standards in sugar refineries in these offshore areas shall not be lower than the minimum standards in refineries on the mainland.

4. That in future legislation, they will see to it that the American housewife is protected adequately.

"Gentlemen's Agreement."

I have received similar assurances from responsible leaders of the House of Representatives. In view of these assurances, therefore, I am approving the bill with what amounts to a gentlemen's agreement that the unholy alliance between the cane and beet growers on the one hand, and the seaboard refining monopoly on the other has been terminated by the growers.

That means that hereafter the refiners' lobby should expect no help from the domestic growers. That is at least a definite step in the right direction.

I hope that the next session of the Congress will consider repealing or shortening the clause which continues the refining monopoly to March 1, 1940; but, even if Congress does not then act, the end of the monopoly is definitely in sight and I sincerely trust that nothing will be done by the domestic growers of beets and cane to perpetuate it.

The monopoly costs the American housewife millions of dollars every year and I am just as concerned for her as I am for the farmers themselves.

Offer in Bottle Returned to Bilbo

By the Associated Press.

Aides of Senator Theodore G. Bilbo, of Mississippi, said yesterday an offer of service literally cast upon the water had returned to the Senator without being accepted.

The Senator's assistants said the bottle, containing written assertion that Bilbo would seek to serve the finder, was thrown from a boat August 18 while Bilbo was accompanying the President to Roanoke Island, N. C.

They reported receipt of a letter from Wilbur Daniels, 17, of Powells Point, N. C., saying he had found the bottle.

West Virginia Charter Is Revoked by A. F. of L. Council

Action Forced By Seating of C. I. O. Faction

NLRB Accused of Move to Designate 'Lewis as Labor Czar.'

By the Associated Press.

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 1.—The American Federation of Labor's Executive Council today revoked the charter of the West Virginia Federation of Labor for seating C. I. O. delegates at its recent convention.

The council also accused the National Labor Relations Board of violating the Wagner labor disputes act in ordering an Armbridge (Pa.) electrical concern to break its contract with the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, an A. F. of L. union. At the request of the United Radio and Electrical Workers, a C. I. O. union, the board ordered an election at the plant.

William Green, A. F. of L. president, said he soon would call a convention of loyal West Virginia unions to form a new State federation. If necessary, he added, legal action would be started to obtain the present State federation's books and property.

Similar Situation Expected.

The council last May ordered all State federations and city central bodies to expel C. I. O. locals. Most of them obeyed. However, when the West Virginia federation met last week, President John B. Easton put the question up to the convention. A substantial majority of the delegates belonged to the United Mine Workers, a C. I. O. union. They voted to disregard the council's order.

Green said he expected a similar situation to arise in Pennsylvania, where the State federation also is controlled by C. I. O. unions.

N. L. R. B. Action Attacked.

Regarding the Labor Board's order, Green dictated the following statement.

"The executive council of the American Federation of Labor condemns the action of the National Labor Relations Board in declaring the agreement between the National Electric Products Co., of Armbridge, Pa., and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers void.

"The board's action is a violation of the national labor relations (Wagner) act. The board has no right to void any agreement entered into by any employer with a legitimate labor organization."

NLRB Action Attacked.

By the Associated Press.

An American Federation of Labor leader charged in effect yesterday the National Labor Relations Board is undertaking to designate John L. Lewis and his allies as the official labor movement in this country.

The accusation was made by Dan W. Tracy, president of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. He declared the board had attempted to destroy a unit of his union by declaring invalid its closed shop contract with the National Electric Products Corporation of Ambridge, Pa.

Historic Tavern On Virgina Road On Auction Block

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 1.—Historic Boswell's Tavern, more than 200 years old, located at the intersection of the Spottswood trail, James Madison and Jefferson highways, 18 miles east of Charlottesville, and one time retreat of Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe and Marquis de Lafayette, will be sold at public auction on September 16.

The original wing of the present tavern, which was a stage junction, was built on the 19,000-acre Nicholas Meriwether grant, which extended to and included a part of Charlottesville. It was erected in 1735, seven years before Louisa County was formed from Hanover County and named for the Queen of Denmark, daughter of King George II, and nine years before Albemarle County was formed in 1744 from Goochland and named for the Earl of Albemarle.

Close to Boswell's Tavern is Roundabout Plantation, where Patrick Henry lived from 1765 to 1768 and sat for Louisa County in the House of Burgesses at the beginning of his political career.

Hyattsville Motorist Killed in Crossing Crash

C. L. Joneston, of Hyattsville, Md., ran his car into a fast freight train in Bladensburg early yesterday. Joneston was killed. The junk pile above is what was left of his car.

Speeding to the Bladensburg Fire House for an ambulance to aid a dying woman, Clarence L. Joneston, 43-year-old rescue squad driver, was fatally injured less than two blocks from the station when his automobile was struck by a train.

Routed from his bed at 3 a. m. Joneston, who lived in Hyattsville, failed to see signals of a crossing watchman and crashed into a fast Baltimore & Ohio freight at the Defense Highway crossing in Bladensburg.

Members of the rescue squad who were waiting for Joneston to drive them on the emergency call heard the crash. Forty feet up the tracks they found the broken body of their comrade. They rushed him to Casualty Hospital, where he died a short time later.

The watchman told police he was in the middle of the road with a red lantern. He said he signaled but Joneston ran head-on into the locomotive.

Joneston, head blacksmith at the Rural Resettlement project at Berwyn, had been a member of the rescue squad for seven years. He is survived by his wife.

Edward Merson, 40, Prince Georges County policeman, was killed yesterday when his automobile crashed into a tree near Muirkirk, Md., and Thomas Leroy Aires, 23, of 2848 Connecticut avenue northwest, died in Wilmington (N. J.) General Hospital of injuries suffered Saturday night.

Merson died in Casualty Hospital of a fractured skull several hours after he lost control of his speeding patrol car. Fellow officers said he was responding to an emergency call.

Third Victim of Crash.

Aires, the son of Clifton Aires, local advertising executive, is the third victim of the Saturday night collision near Porters Crossroads, N. J. The others who met death were Miss Gwendolyn Moore, 22, of Reading, Pa., and Robert Gates, 21, 1721 Lamont street northwest.

Associates of Merson at the Hyattsville police station said he was answering a call that a car was submerged in Blue Pond, near Rossville, Md., and that the driver was drowned.

Merson was removed from the wreckage and taken to the hospital by members of the Bladensburg rescue squad. He died without regaining consciousness.

Father of Six Children.

The father of six children, the policeman had been a member of the county force for the last four years. He lived with his wife and family on a farm at Laurel, Md.

Later investigation by police disclosed the submerged machine was unoccupied.

Cardenas Tells Enemies He'll Push Farm Aid

By the Associated Press.

Mexico City, Sept. 1.—President Lazaro Cardenas warned enemies of his regime today that he intended to carry on his social program regardless of "discontent at popular conquests."

He told Mexico's new Congress, convened in joint session to hear his report on accomplishments of the last year, "we intend to go forward firmly and fearlessly."

After giving an optimistic picture of the government's accomplishments and financial situation, and reasserting his intention of giving women equal rights, the President drew cheers with an attack on unjustified strikes.

Success Held Demonstrated.

Cardenas defended his agrarian program—giving land to poor farmers and breaking up huge landed estates—against the "clamor of enemies of the revolution." He asserted the increased production of cereals had demonstrated its success.

The president said revenues of the government had been increased in the last year to permit the budget to be raised from 333,000,000 pesos ($92,574,000) to 423,000,000 pesos ($117,594,000).

Discussing foreign affairs, he said Mexico, "while respectful of treaties, has striven to modify those which in any way might be prejudicial to her liberty or sovereignty."

He cited an agreement signed at Washington in April canceling a clause permitting United States troops and munitions to be moved in transit across the Isthmus o Tehuantepec.

He also disclosed that Mexico had sold the Spanish government arms and munitions worth $2,275,000 for use in its civil war against the insurgents.

Tabler Is Held In $50,000 Bail In Attack Case

Awaits Action of Grand Jury; Charged With Shooting Associate.

John M. Tabler, 30, underworld figure, yesterday was held for grand jury action and placed under $50,000 bond by Judge Robert Mattingly in Police Court, after pleading "not guilty" to a charge of assault with intent to kill.

Tabler, at the time of his apprehension Friday, was out on five-year probation in connection with a housebreaking charge.

On that day, police state, the man had gone to the home of John Hiter, colored, of 492 Florida avenue northwest, and requested Hiter to accompany him in an automobile.

The pair drove away and an altercation occurred. Hiter was shot in the abdomen and during the fight the car crashed into another car.

FBI Seizes Pair In Drive to Halt Bankruptcy Theft

Continuing their drive to apprehend suspected violators of the national bankruptcy act, the Department of Justice has announced arrests of Martin Krompier, alleged lieutenant of the late "Dutch" Schultz, and Charles S. Scheinman, both of New York.

Scheinman is said to have bought approximately $100,000 worth of merchandise on credit a short time before bankruptcy proceedings were brought against him, and a search of his fur dealing establishment revealed practically no stock.

Special agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and members of the New York Police Department apprehended Louis Bobker, proprietor of Bobker's Specialty Shop, Brooklyn, N. Y., in 1936, and seized about $30,000 worth of furs. A number of the furs were identified as being part of the assets belonging to Scheinman's establishment.

131 Indicted As Grand Jury Cleans Slate

Evidence Held Too Flimsy in 95 Cases; 4 to Face Safe-Theft Charge.

Completing one of its most industrious months in recent years, the District grand jury yesterday wiped its slate clean of all pending cases when it returned 131 indictments, ignored 95 others in which the evidence was too flimsy to warrant a presentment, and left a clear calendar.

The jury has averaged some 26 indictments a day for the 21 working days in which it has been in office.

Assistant United States Attorneys Clinton Vernon and Charles B. Murray have handled the cases. They have sought to clear up the docket so that when the District criminal court convenes late this month, the justices will have no idle moments.

Four Safes Stolen.

Among those indicted were Robert T. Brown, Mike Mitchell, Richard Goodwin and Robert G. Moseby, all colored, who are charged with not only taking the safes at four business places, but with making off with the contents as well. The places they are charged with having entered were the Garden-T Shoppe, 1835 Columbia road northwest; a cafe at 1212 U street northwest, the Nunnally store at 1208 F street northwest, and the Liberty Laundry, 427 New York avenue northeast. From each location the safe was removed and later found rifled.

A criminal operation charge was booked against Dr. James W. Hart, middle-aged physician, who is alleged to have performed an operation on a young girl who died in Sibley Hospital.

Mrs. Sara E. Sandridge, 51, who allegedly sold a rooming house and then did not produce it, was indicted on charges of grand larceny, false pretenses and larceny after trust. She is said to have obtained more than $1,000 from persons who were willing to buy a rooming house on Clifton street northwest.

Jack Berger was indicted for manslaughter when the jurors were told that his car had struck and killed Lorenzo Jackson, colored, last March. William Law, 25, was indicted for allegedly attacking a young girl who has repeatedly ran away from home.

Indicted for Bribery.

Harry M. Braxton, colored, was indicted on a charge of bribery that grew out of a recent expose of alleged police favoritism in Prince Georges County, Md. He is said to have offered a $35 bribe to a witness who was to appear against one of the Prince Georges County police with the understanding the testimony would not be forthcoming.

The indictments:

Senator Would Dedicate Due Dates to Keeping Out of Conflict.

By the Associated Press.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 1.—U. S. Senator Bennett Champ Clark proposed today June 15 and December 15—the due dates for war debt payments—be made national holidays.

"I would proclaim them 'keep out of war days,'" the Missouri legislator said in a speech before the National Encampbent of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

"I would have them established as days of fasting and prayer to the end that Uncle Sam would never again be hailed as Uncle Santa Claus and that our boys never again will be sacrificed in foreign quarrels."

Defaulting nations, Clark said, are attempting to negotiate small settlements with the United States "to get away from the wise provisions of the Johnson act, which prohibits the flotation of lons in this country by nations in default."

Clark said veteran organizations should make it their concern "to see that the United States does not again drift into a war protecting the profits of banking houses in Wall street."

YOU SUPPLY THE REPLY FOR THE EMPTY BALLOON

HERE is what you do to win in this contest. Just study the conversation in the cartoon, and then YOU SUPPLY THE® REPLY FOR THE EMPTY BALLOON.

Mary's reply might be:

"Old Golds. They hold their ash better. Nobody'll burn your tablecloth."

Or, Mary might say:

Mary might say:

"Get Old Golds. They're always fresh. They'll please everybody."

There are so many things that Mary could reply that it seems almost needless to give any more examples. For instance, Mary might very well make any of the following three replies:

"My choice is Old Golds. They're always fresh, always Double-Mellow."

"Get Old Golds. Their double Cellophane package keeps them wonderfully fresh."

"Either buy several brands or get Old Golds. Old Golds please everybody."

There is nothing hard about this contest. Almost anybody can think of dozens of things that Mary would reply. And it's the same with all of the Official Cartoons in this contest. Just study the picture and the conversation and supply your own, original reply for the blank balloon. That's all there is to it.

Under each of the Official Cartoons you will find suggestions to help you write the missing conversation for the empty balloon.

ARE YOU ONLY A THREE-QUARTER WIFE?

THERE are certain things a woman has to put up with and be a good sport.

Men, because they are men, can never understand a three-quarter wife—a wife who is all love and kindness three weeks in a month and a hell cat the rest of the time.

No matter how your back aches—no matter how loudly your nerves scream—don't take it out on your husband.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Don't be a three-quarter wife. Take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through." Adv.

.. Sit at home and visit in these Mountains

PERHAPS as nearly as we can come to sending you "a sample" of The Homestead, for consumption at your own home, would be by sending you a just-published map of the place which can indicate to you something of what's waiting here—so far as a map can show it.

Unfortunately it can't show the contented state of mind which is characteristic of the way of life at The Homestead; nor the "lift" of one's spirit in the altitude of these oldest mountains in the world.

But the map is, in a way, an introduction to The Homestead; and if you've ever had even a little taste of the flavor of life here it'll bring you some new enjoyment of your recollections.

May we send you one? And mightn't you like to come back, this fall? We'll send a booklet, "Living at The Homestead," if you'd like it

The Washington booking office of THE HOMESTEAD is in the Mayflower Hotel in charge of Miss Frances Curtis. Make inquiry there and you'll find interested, helpful assistance

Hearst Gives Up Plan to Borrow $35,500,000

bentures. Of this sum $1,000,000 was to be used for retiring debentures maturing this year; $1,900,000 for the retirement of bank loans to the Chase National Bank; $2,000,000 due to printers for printing Hearst magazines, and $3,000,000 for the retirement of notes payable to Halsey, Stuart & Co., representing advances made by that company in anticipation of this debenture issue.

Numerous complaints against the two registration statements were filed during the last five months with the SEC. Whether this had anything to do with the action taken yesterday could not be learned. Hearst Publications, Inc., issued a statement in New York last night asserting the reason for the action was unfavorable market conditions.

According to the Associated Press the statement was as follows:

"The market for industrial debentures was turning less favorable at the time of filing, and has continued less favorable up to the present time. Our proposed underwriters have therefore not been in position to market the debentures at an interest rate and at an underwriting commission which we considered attractive."

Long-Term Debt Reduced.

"In the meantime, we have been meeting regularly the payments on our old long-term debt, thus reducing the net amount outstanding from $18,776,706.96 (pro forma consolidated basis) at December 31, 1936, to $16,549,541.29 at the date of this letter. Some reduction also has been made in our interest-bearing current obligations.

"As a result, the amount of the debentures which, ultimately, we may wish to sell may be substantially changed, and when such time arrives we may wish to issue securities with different provisions and of a different type than those described in our present registration statement.

"In the case of the magazine issue, a similar letter was sent. The reduction of the funded debt was not so large, but more than half of the funded debt has been paid since the registration statement was filed for the magazine company."

The SEC never reveals its attitude toward registration statements except through issuance of "stop" or "refusal" orders. The two Hearst registration statements never reached this stage through action of the two companies in voluntarily seeking postponement of the effective date through the filing of delaying amendments.

Ordinarily a registration statement becomes effective 20 days after it is filed with the SEC, unless that agency issues a "refusal" or "stop" order or unless the registrant files amendments. In the latter event the 20-day period must run over again. Once a registration statement becomes effective, the registrant may sell the registered securities on the open market.

Hearst Magazines originally filed its registration statement March 10. Two amendments were filed during that month. Thereafter about every 15 days the company filed a delaying amendment, the latest on August 16. Hearst Publications, Inc., originally filed its statement March 30. Delaying amendments had been filed regularly about each fortnight since.

The Hearst newspapers included in Hearst Publications, Inc., are the Los Angeles Evening Herald and Express, Chicago Evening American, Detroit Times, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Los Angeles Examiner, Oakland Post Enquirer, San Francisco Call-Bulletin, San Francisco Examiner and the Seattle Post-Intelligencer. According to the registration statement all these newspapers showed a profit, except the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, of which John Boettiger, son-in-law of President Roosevelt, is publisher.

Purpose of Issue.

In addition to those newspaper properties, assets of Hearst Publications, Inc., included the Hearst American Weekly, a Sunday supplement; radio station WCAE, the Cosmopolitan New Corporation of Illinois, Through the Evening American Publishing Co. of Illinois, publisher of the Chicago Evening American, the company owned 50 per cent of the stock of the Garage Service Co. in Chicago.

The proceeds of the proposed $22,500,000 debenture issue by Hearst Publications, Inc., would have been used, according to the registration statement, for the following purposes:

Retirement of remaining outstanding Hearst Publications, Inc., first mortgage and collateral trust 6½ per cent serial gold bonds due 1928-1947, $12,283,250.
Retirement of Hearst Publications, Inc., purchase money notes, $550,000.
Retirement of Evening Herald Publishing Co. mortgage payable, $5,400.
Retirement of bank loans of Hearst Publications, Inc., $460,000.
Retirement of bank loans of Evening American Publishing Co., $650,000.
Retirement of Cosmopolitan Newspaper Corporation bank loans, $42,500.
Retirement of remaining outstanding the Times Publishing Co. debenture gold 6s, $1,382,563.35.
Retirement of bank loans of the Times Publishing Co., $125,000.
Retirement of bank loans of Pitt Publishing Co., $430,000.
Retirement of Pitt Publishing Co. mortgage payable, $40,000.
Retirement of bonds of WCAE, Inc., $297,000.
Remainder of the proceeds, $2,123,192.87, to be added to working capital.

Magazines Listed.

Hearst Magazines, Inc., through subsidiaries, publishes Good Housekeeping, Cosmopolitan, Motor, Motor Boating, American Architect and Architecture, Harper's Bazaar, Town and Country and House Beautiful, in this country, and British Good Housekeeping, British Harper's Bazaar, Nash's Pall Mall and The Connoisseur, in England. The British publications are published by National Magazine Co., Ltd., formerly owned by Hearst but recently transferred to Hearst Magazines, Inc.

Part of the proceeds of the Hearst Magazines debentures would have been used to purchase for that company, from the Hearst-owned New York Evening Journal, Inc., the so-called Hearst Magazine Building at 951-969 Eighth avenue, New York City, for $3,253,000. According to the registration statement the building was appraised at a value of $2,753,000, or $500,000 less than the proposed purchase price, and was assessed for taxes at $3,000,000, or $253,000 less than the proposed purchase price.

The explanation given in the registration statement for paying a premium for the building was that the present annual rent of $796,875, under terms of a 17-year lease between the Hearst-owned Hearst Magazines, Inc., and the Hearst-owned New York Evening Journal, Inc., was "burdensome."

Owned Castle in Wales.

The Hearst Magazines registration statement also revealed that among the assets of its subsidiary, the National Magazine Co., Ltd., was St. Donat's Castle in Wales, formerly owned by Hearst. He acquired the property in 1925 for £24,694 or approximately $125,000, the registration statement explained. Subsequently he rehabilitated the castle, and it is now carried on the National Magazine Co.'s books at $262,032.

The registration statement asserted use is made of St. Donat's Castle "from time to time to promote good will for the publications of the National Magazine Co., Ltd., though its commercial value to the company is probably small and substantially less than the book value."

Both of these aspects of the Hearst Magazines registration statement figured in the criticism of the debenture issue. In addition the Hearst newspapers have been sharply criticized in weekly and other periodicals because of their vigorous assaults on the Roosevelt Administration and on the President in the last campaign.

Filene Backs Co-operatives For Greenbelt

County, Md., for the first year. The board will supply the teaching staff and materials and the town will maintain the building and grounds.

"The Consumer Distribution Corporation is a nonprofit organization and has agreed that it will retain no profits from the operations of the Greenbelt enterprises, but all such profits will accrue for the benefit of the inhabitants of the town," Herbert E. Evans, vice president of the corporation, said in New York last night.

"The corporation will turn over the enterprises to a consumer cooperative if the residents desire to organize one. A percentage of gross sales will be paid to the Government as a rent for the business properties."

"Normal Enterprises."

"The stores will be run without subsidy from the Government as normal business enterprises, and will purchase from regular sources necessary goods and supplies.

"All will be operated through one organization. A single co-operative will be set up which all residents of the community may join, and all of the co-operative benefits will be available to the residents on the joining of this one organization.

"Consumer Distribution Corporation has agreed for a period of years to assist in the management and operation of these co-operatives and will act as a central personnel, management, wholesale and research organization."

Filene has been preaching the gospel of co-operatives for many years. He and his brother, A. Lincoln Filene, established the Filene Co-operative Association before the turn of the century, and in 1908 he introduced the credit union plan into the United States to "encourage thrift and democratize finance."

Denied College Education.

Born of immigrant parents in Salem, Mass., in 1860, he was forced to end his education at high school when family reserves ended his dream of attending Harvard.

He passed off his life of accomplishments with the statement: "I'm just an unsuccessful millionaire."

He has written many articles on business and allied topics, and founded many philanthropic and economic organizations. He aided in founding the Boston and United States Chambers of Commerce, founded the Twentieth Century Club and was co-organizer of the council of administration of the International Management Institute at Geneva, Switzerland.

He set aside $1,000,000 to establish the Consumers Distribution Corporation, with which he hopes to push his idea of co-operative communities and enterprises.

shore producers—the aim being to stabilize the industry.

The domestic market is divided among various producing areas—United States, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, Cuba, Philippines, Virgin Islands and other countries.

A tax of 50 cents a hundred pounds on raw sugar to finance benefit payments to growers who comply with crop control and other regulations is provided, the tax being retroactive to July 1.

Proponents have estimated the tax would raise $70,000,000 annually, or $20,000,000 more than necessary for benefit payments.

The raw sugar quotas would expire December 31, 1940; the refined quotas on March 1, 1940, unless Congress changes them meanwhile.

Talks With Bingham.

The President had a long luncheon conference with Robert W. Bingham, Ambassador to London.

Ambassador Bingham said he discussed both the Spanish and general European situation with the President, as well as the warfare in China.

The Ambassador commented: "England, like ourselves, wants to maintain peace if possible" in both Spain and the Far East.

Bingham said England was making "first-class progress with her armament program," adding:

"I think this program has had a great deal to do with making for peace in Europe."

Early Marriages Held Solution Of Sex Problems by Ervine

British Dramatist Says Women of Affairs Do Not Wish to Abandon Careers to Enjoy Extra-Marital Privileges.

Cambridge, England, Sept. 1.—The determination of British women to avoid marriage and still enjoy "extra-marital privileges" precipitated bitter debate today at the Annual Conference of Modern Churches.

St. John Ervine, famous Irish dramatist and critic, who has deeply explored the sex situation, said the only solution lies in a crusade for earlier marriages.

"The problem is one in which able women of affairs and business do not wish to give up work in order to marry, yet wish to enjoy sexual experience," Ervine said.

The Bishop of Birmingham, the Right Rev. Ernest William Barnes, agreed with Ervine that there was widespread polygamy, but he blamed it all on war.

Future wars may have a more equalizing effect, however, because airplane raids will "destroy men and women without discrimination," the bishop said.

"This would be valuable," he added.

"The sex immorality of the present is caused by the inequality between men and women, due to war's destruction."

Ervine, one of whose earliest plays was called "Mixed Marriage," said Christianity's most pressing problem was adjustment of sex relations thrown out of balance by economic revolution.

Chinese Drives Check Japan's Big Offensive

Japan is sending 120,000 reinforcements to Shanghai.

Thus, as the war which started outside Pieping the night of July 7 entered its fifty-eighth day, Japan's promises to smash all organized military resistance throughout China in a lightning campaign were bearing fruit only on one sector—along the Peiping-Suiyuan Railway northwest of Peiping—and they admit they achieved their initial objectives there only after bitter fighting in which they suffered heavy losses.

Fight to Finish.

Other major developments during the last 24 hours included:

1. The Japanese foreign minister announced in Tokyo the war will be carried through to a finish, and the Japanese government prepared to ask the special session of Parliament which opens tomorrow for additional appropriations of $580,000,000 which will swell Japan's total national debt to around $3,480,000,000.

2. Japanese airplanes started widespread bombing operations against Chinese airdromes and other bases.

3. United States Consul General Clarence Gauss reiterated his warning to all Americans in the interior, including missionaries, that they should flee at once to ports from which they can be evacuated.

4. After a report that a French merchant ship had cut through the Japanese naval squadron off Woosung, a Japanese naval spokesman again warned all foreign vessels to avoid such actions, because of danger of collisions and damage by Chinese bombing planes.

Cholera Threat Minimized.

5. Reports abroad that cholera epidemics are endangering Americans and other foreigners in Shanghai were formally denied. The government of the French Concession, where many Americans and other foreigners live, said the few cases of cholera reported were confined to Chinese refugees.

6. American businessmen requested Rear Admiral Harry Yarnell, commander of the United States Asiatic Squadron, to use his warships to round up mail for this port which was not delivered when the American steamers President Hoover and President McKinley avoided Shanghai because of bombing of the Hoover by Chinese war planes, which mistook the United States refugee liner for a Japanese army transport.

The fighting around Shanghai continued with savage intensity today. Chinese military headquarters admitted Chinese casualties around Woosung alone were more than 5,000, including approximately 1,500 killed in the last two days.

Wreck U. S. Radio Station.

Japanese airplanes, bombing the Chenju area outside the International Settlement, had demolished the International Radio Station there used in radio communication with the United States. A large American flag spread in front of the main radio building did not deter the bombers.

[Admiral Yarnell inspected the American defense lines, which are patrolled by 1,000 United States Marines, and stated they were ready for all emergencies. Thirty-eight American refugees, in the absence of American ships, left the city aboard the Japanese steamer Nagasaki Maru, the Associated Press reported.]

By the Associated Press.

A Japanese warning that foreign ships must steer clear of the Japanese naval concentrations that clog the route from Shanghai to the sea added new complications to an already worrisome situation last night.

Directly involved was the problem of evacuating American refugees from the Chinese metropolis, a problem that has given officials here much concern since the bombing on Monday of the American liner President Hoover by a Chinese warplane.

While American vessels were promptly ordered to avoid the Shanghai danger zone, indications were the order would be quickly lifted so that the evacuation work might go on, and there might be no departure from the standing policy of insisting upon the maintenance of all American rights in the Far East.

Japanese Under Guard.

Hongkong, Sept. 1 (AP).—Officials of this British colony massed 1,300 Japanese today to protect them against Chinese crowds infuriated by Japanese bombing raids yesterday on Canton, China's southern metropolis. Mobs of Chinese gathered in front of Japanese shops.

Two hundred Japanese women and children will leave tomorrow for Japan.

Soviet Maneuvers.

Tokyo, Sept. 1 (AP).—The Domei (Japanese) agency reported today radios in Korea had intercepted broadcasts from Vladivostok stating the Soviet's Far Eastern army was maneuvering at Possiet Bay southwest of Vladivostok.

Nazi Youth Congress Told to Love Neighbor

Stuttgart, Sept. 1 (AP).—"Love thy neighbor" was invoked as the guiding principle for Hitler youth by Baldur von Schirach, Reich youth leader, in an address to the junior section of the Germans Abroad Congress today.

Dead Mother Delivered Of Twins Who Live

Kingsville, Tex., Sept. 1 (AP).—Dr. D. A. Harrison reported today he successfully performed a posthumous caesarean operation upon a tenant farmer's wife and delivered twins who still were alive. The 41-year-old woman, Mrs. George Conde, died of heart disease.

Dr. Harrison said as far he knew it was the first successful operation of its kind in medical history.

Mellon Trust May Pay State But Not U. S. Tax

Pittsburgh, Sept. 1 (AP).—Pennsylvania will collect a 10 per cent inheritance tax on the fortune of Andrew W. Mellon left to the A. W. Mellon educational and charitable trust, H. M. Johnson, his former secretary predicted today, but said he thought the trust would be exempt from Federal tax.

Cuba Uses More U. S. Rice.

Revolt Growing Against Japan In Manchukuo

British Report That Two Regiments of Native Troops Mutinied.

despite the need of troops on the other fronts.

Japanese alarms are growing. Through bribery by Chinese and Russian agents who have secretly gone into Manchukuo, and because of the propaganda of resentful Chinese officials displaced from their jobs by the Japanese the spirit of rebellion in the Manchukuo army is certain to be increased. This the Japanese know. Strong action is needed. But strong action may only make matters worse.

What makes the situation particularly dangerous is that, even without outside stimulation, a considerable degree of disaffection is already prevalent in that force. For the anti-Japanese feeling that has flared up to such record heights throughout the length and breadth of China has spread across the border into Manchukuo. The 30,000,000 Chinese of that artificial state are related by blood and sentiment to their fellow Chinese south of the Great Wall. Many of them are immigrants of recent years.

Military experts here who are familiar with the Manchukuo situation believe that the Kwantung garrison has a real job on its hands in keeping down disaffection.

British military authorities following an investigation this afternoon denied the claims of the Japanese invading army that the occupation of Woosung has been completed.

While the Japanese forces have apparently got more than a foothold in that strategic area at the confluence of the Whangpoo and Yangtze rivers, the vigorous counter-offensive waged by the Chinese troops defending the zone have put a crimp in the plans of the islanders. The elimination from Woosung of all Chinese troops still remains to be accomplished.

Japan Planning 'Fight to Finish,' Hirota Asserts

To Ask $580,000,000 to Prosecute War; Talks With China Envoy.

By Ray G. Marshall.

Copyright, 1937, by the United Press.

Tokyo (Thursday), Sept. 2.—Japan is determined to carry through her unofficial war with China "to a finish," Foreign Minister Koki Hirota told the Japanese Press today.

Simultaneously it was revealed the Government will ask the special session of parliament which opens tomorrow for additional appropriations of 2,000,000,000 yen ($580,000,000), bringing the national debt to a new high for modern times.

Latest available figures place the Japanese national debt around 10,000,000,000 yen. The emergency appropriation would swell the national debt to around 12,000,000,000 yen ($3,480,000,000 on the basis of current exchange).

Hirota will receive foreign correspondents at 3:30 p. m. (2:30 a. m. Thursday, E. S. T.), to issue a statement clarifying the Sino-Japanese situation, and is expected to reiterate the "knockout" declaration he made to Japanese reporters.

Talks With China Envoy.

He will be asked specifically to state what China must do to induce Japan to call off her invasion.

The new Chinese Ambasador, Hsu Shih-ying, conferred with Hirota late yesterday and explained the terms of the Russo-Chinese nonaggression treaty signed this month in Nanking. He denied it contained secret annexes or that it in any way provides Russian military aid for China.

He described the treaty as similar to the Kellogg pact, outlawing war, and said China would be glad to enter a similar treaty with Japan.

Reiterates Demands.

Hirota deferred a reply to this suggestion, and was reported to have reiterated Japan's basic attitude toward China, which is:

That China shall accept Japan's desire for Chinese-Japanese cooperation in all fields, especially in suppression of the Chinese Communist Party, which Japan views as an instrument of Soviet penetration for the early communization of all China.

That China shall disband immediately all anti-Japanese groups in that country, recognize the present independent status of Manchukuo, and agree to accept Japanese assistance in the "renovation" of all phases of Chinese life.

With regard to claims for damages to United States property in China, it was understood the foreign minister's attitude is that Japan insists she has no responsibility, since China started the war. As in 1932, however, she may offer "consolation" payments to Americans.

Chiang Apologizes And Offers Redress

By the United Press.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek has made formal apologies for the bombing of the Dollar liner President Hoover, has offered full redress and said steps have been taken to avoid recurrence of such incidents, Nelson T. Johnson, American Ambassador to China, reported to the State Department late yesterday.

Chiang Kai-shek made his apology, offer and pledge to Johnson at a conference arranged by the Chinese military leader in Nanking.

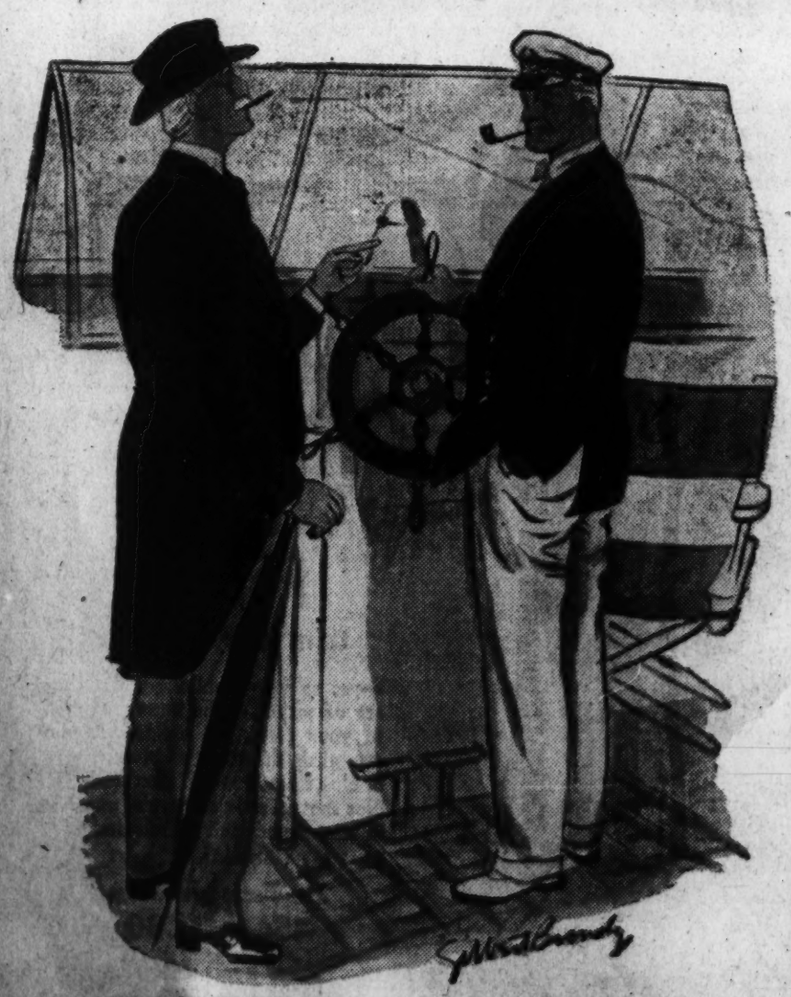
"I steered a YACHTSMAN to a whiskey he could anchor to"



HE SAID

"From your description I'd surmise that your Four Roses Whiskey was smoother than a landlocked harbor, and richer than a rajah's treasure-house. But why is it so?"

I SAID

"Commodore, imagine the four best yachtsmen you ever knew, transformed by some miracle into one. How would you describe him?"

HE SAID

I SAID

"Of course!—and Four Roses will take first place with you for a very similar reason.

"You see, in making Four Roses, we use several fine American straight whiskies (and nothing but straight whiskies!). Each of these whiskies is specially outstanding for some quality—aroma, body, smoothness, or flavor.

"Blended together with the skill our 72 years have taught us, these straight whiskies contribute to Four Roses every quality you could possibly ask for in a whiskey."

Federal Field.

Of chief interest here now are the conventions of Federal employes, the N. F. F. E. getting under way Monday in Springfield, Ill., and the A. F. G. E.'s big meeting starting in Philadelphia on the 13th . . . Each promises considerable business action and programs of fun for the off-moments . . . Luther Steward, N. F. F. E. chief, predicts that "the need for extension and strengthening of the Federal merit system" will be the theme note for his organization . . . At least some spirited resolutions will come and otherwise the patronage "grab-bag" will be mauled considerably—for whatever the effort may be worth.

Nearer at hand, the Washington locals of the U. F. W. A. will hold a joint picnic in Rock Creek Park on Labor Day . . . Oratory will come from Jacob Baker, the provisional chief, and several national and local officials . . . Games, entertainment and a buffet luncheon will fill the hours between 2 p. m. and early evening . . .

The Pennsylvania Voters Official Bureau has arranged special low fares for those wishing to return to the Keystone State over the holidays . . . Tickets may be purchased 24 hours before train time, and are good for return trip within 10 days . . . Details may be obtained at the club headquarters, suite 225 Colorado Building, between 10 a. m. and 8:30 p. m. daily . . .

U. S. Exhibit.

Boys and girls 4-H Club work is the theme of a carload of educational exhibits the Department of Agriculture is sending to the Rochester Exposition, September 6-11 . . . Someone from the Department will go along, to display the various publications and answer questions on farm problems . . . One fact to be pointed out: "It's a $12,000 enterprise to feed a family while two club members are raised to the age of 18" . . . This exhibit will emphasize the "contribution made by club members in helping to produce, preserve and prepare the family food supply . . .

The Acting Comptroller General, in a recent ruling, notified the Electric Home and Farm Authority, that the United States employs plenty of legal talent; that it should get its opinions within the service, rather than from private firms . . . Again: A ruling bars payment of costs of transportation from one station to another in an employe's automobile, even though he was to use the car in his work at the new station.

Shoulder Pat.

"The Postoffice Department has a merit system distinctly its own. There is a real opportunity to rise to the top in the Postal Service. This is one thing which makes postal employes alert and efficient. The department, as is alleged, may be used frequently as a machine to foster measures with the view to retaining in power whichever political party has control over it, but that fact has no bearing upon the rank and file of workers themselves . . ."

Reading casually an address by John P. Blandford, jr., general manager T. V. A., before a Tennessee Rotary Club, these interesting lines were come upon: "We frequently hear the proposal of more business in government. That is a good suggestion. American business has much to contribute. But that contribution should consist of best practices rather than the worst. There should carry over into public business the composite of all that is outstanding in private business.

"If we have occasional examples of complete personnel turnover in private business due to the change in financial management, that should not be the precedent for a similar turnover in public personnel when the political complexion changes. Public business must provide for the continuity of trained personnel. There must be no nepotism. There must be a basic principle of merit."

Departure.

Another after-adjournment leave-taking: Charles F. Wahl, who is president and legislative representative of the Canal Zone Central Labor Union, has returned to Panama . . . Wahl sailed on the Santa Lucia and is expected to return to the Capital when the next session of Congress convenes . . . Mrs. Wahl is remaining in Washington for the present . . .

The Postoffice Department reports that first-day sale of the 10-cent souvenir sheet of stamps in connection with the convention of Society of Philatelic Americans, on August 26, and at the Philatelic Agency in Washington on August 27, amounted to a total of 2,290,954 stamps, or more than the original order for the souvenir sheet . . . The original order was for the printing of but 2,000,000 . . . As result of the heavy demand, the order for printing has been increased to 5,000,000 . . .

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad advises that it will give special service to the delegates and others who wish to travel over its line to the N. F. F. E. convention in Springfield.

Second Porker's Brain Cracks As Scientists Ask Too Much

Minneapolis, Sept. 1 (AP).—The mental trail to nervous breakdowns, mapped by study of the world's first two nervous pigs, was described to the American Psychological Association here today.

Both pigs are on an experimental farm at Cornell University. One of them, Achilles, was the first to have a nervous breakdown, announced last May. The mental breakdown of a second pig was announced today by Dr. Quin F. Curtis, of the Cornell physiology department.

In becoming nervous both pigs followed the same "pattern." Their successive stages were so alike as to appear stereotyped. The experiences of pigs were so closely parallel to human reactions as to promise a useful key to the intricate "map" by which human minds go wrong.

No physical work or movements were involved in causing the pigs' nervous breakdowns. They caught the "heebie jeebie" soley by trying to solve mental problems that were beyond their mental capacities.

In a comfortable "sty," in a laboratory, they learned to obtain meals by lifting the lid of a box with their noses. This was not their only food, but just a luxury. There was an apple in the box.

Sometimes it wasn't there. The pigs learned that certain tones of a signal meant "apple" and others "no apple." Their troubles began when the "apple" and "no apple" signals were given in more and more irregular sequence.

The first mental signs were agitation, shown by false motions. The second stage of the nervous breakdown was a period of delayed decisions.

The last stage was curiously human. The pigs became "inert," pretending to sleep. Sometimes their confused mental state showed in their legs. The hind legs would try to walk to the apple box, while the forelegs pushed away from it.

Further evidence that the troubles of the pigs were entirely mental was found in the fact that outside their laboratory styes they were able to eat. Whether they can be cured of the nervous trouble is yet to be learned.

Both the nervous pigs are females. A third pig, male, has so far been more resistant to mental upset than his girl friends.

Survey Urges Game Refuges In 3 Sections

South, East and Midwest Wild Life Sanctuaries Called Necessary.

By the Associated Press.

The Biological Survey disclosed yesterday it is considering establishment of a system of major key refuges for big game in the South, East and Middle West.

In a report to the Senate dealing with wild life restoration work as it relates to land usage, the Survey said the program contemplates establishment of refuges in the South in Oklahoma, Texas, Virginia, South Carolina and Louisiana. Definite sites were not mentioned.

Required for Research.

"The establishment of refuges in all or most of the States indicated," the Survey said, "would provide a big game refuge system where study and research could be carried on under varied climatic conditions and from which information essential to the proper development of these resources under existing conditions could be gathered."

The Survey explained considerable progress has already been made in the Far West toward meeting the needs of big-game animals and other species of wild life, including fur animals, under the program for establishment of ranges under the Taylor grazing act.

"This program, however," the Survey said, "serves to emphasize the wholly inadequate provision at present for the proper conservation and perpetuation of similar species in the Midwestern and Eastern sections of the country.

Results Adequate to Cost.

"Extensive public domain areas are not available in these regions for the establishment of a uniform correlated system of refuges.

"The purchase of privately owned lands for inclusion in such a system may, on first consideration, seem somewhat staggering, but on the other hand, when the great value of these resources to these regions is taken into consideration, such a program would be highly desirable and could now be carried out to better advantage than at any time during the past few decades."

A Safety Tip FOR YOUR Labor Day Trip

TAPPING RUBBER TREES ON FIRESTONE PLANTATIONS IN LIBERIA
From the Firestone plantations in Liberia comes an ever-increasing supply of the world's finest rubber. Money saved here and in manufacturing and distribution enable Firestone to sell a safer, first-quality tire at lower prices.

Here's why FIRESTONE STANDARD TIRES GIVE YOU MORE FOR YOUR MONEY

DON'T take chances on your Labor Day trip. Protect yourself and family by equipping your car with a set of new first-quality Firestone Standard Tires. Firestone builds extra quality and extra safety into these tires and sells them at lower prices because Firestone controls rubber and cotton supplies at their sources, manufactures with greater efficiency and distributes at lower cost.

YOU GET EXTRA PROTECTION AGAINST BLOWOUTS — eight extra pounds of rubber are added to every 100 pounds of cord because every fiber of every cord in every ply is saturated with liquid rubber by the Firestone patented Gum-Dipping Process. This counteracts the internal friction and heat that ordinarily cause blowouts.

YOU GET LONGER NON-SKID MILEAGE because of the extra-tough, long-wearing tread.

You need all of these features to make your car tire-safe on your Labor Day trip. Firestone gives them to you at lower cost. Join the Firestone SAVE A LIFE Campaign today by equipping your car with a set of new Firestone Standard Tires — today's top tire value.

Germany's Second Thoughts.

In view of the recent anti-communism agreement between Japan and Germany the latter power might be expected to look favorably on Tokyo's policy in the present undeclared war in the Far East. For the same reason it would be logical to presume that the new Sino-Russian pact of non-aggression would be regarded in Berlin as opportunity to speak out loudly in Japan's defense.

Actually the drawing together of China and Russia is causing Germany to question whether the agreement with Japan is not more of a liability than an asset. It has not had the effect, hoped for in Berlin, of serving as a major link in that anti-Communist chain which the Third Reich has hoped to forge. On the contrary, the Berlin-Tokyo pact has tended to alienate other countries. And, by giving the impression that Germany is willing to play Japan's game in the Far East, it has obviously helped to throw China into Russia's arms.

This was anything but the German intention. In her trade with China that country ranks second only to the United States and Great Britain. Expansion of the Chinese market for German products was a primary objective in the negotiations this summer between Dr. Schacht, the German Minister of Economics, and Dr. Kung, the Chinese Finance Minister. Germany can no more view with equanimity the extension of Japanese control over a large part of China proper than can the United States or Great Britain. The closing of the open door in Manchuria has sounded warning on this point.

Now, even if Japan's ambitions in China fall short of achievement, the unhappy possibility has opened up that Russia will displace Germany in trading with China. Under the circumstances, enthusiasm for Nippon in Germany is likely to undergo a considerable diminution.

Ways And Means.

The library trustees have asked for $1,101,930 for the fiscal year of 1939. This is an increase of 170 per cent over their current appropriation. No extravagance, however, is contemplated by the librarian; in fact, Dr. Bowerman in his estimates has held operating expenses closely to this year's figure. The huge increase is explained by the library's crying need for physical expansion. Another branch building is asked as well as purchase of the site for a new central library, necessarily an expensive item.

These are valid needs. But so are the requests of the education department, the health department, the welfare department and the public utilities commission—all of which have already submitted budget estimates contemplating 50 and 60 per cent increases over current appropriations. The question is not need. It is how the District can possibly meet these projected extra expenses. For the gallant offer of the fire department to reduce its expenditures by $20,000 does little to offset the increases asked by other departments running well into the millions.

Of course, the budget applications will be pared. The departments expect them to be. That is part of the theory of budget-making: A department asks for all it dares and the Commissioners shave it to a fair compromise. In the District, however, the interference of the Federal Budget Bureau too often throws the system out of kilter by demanding additional, and arbitrary, cuts.

But, regardless of the Budget Bureau, this year the District Commissioners will be put to it to maintain a balanced budget. Needs postponed during the depression can no longer be wholly denied. Yet the extent of additional income under the new tax law is still uncertain. To assist them in this dilemma, the Commissioners have wisely appointed a committee of experts. Headed by the District auditor, this group will make a thorough study of all revenue prospects, not merely under the present law but as they might be expected with more scientific revenue legislation.

The results will be set down beside a seven-year program of the city's probable operating expenses and "reasonable" capital improvements. At a glance, then, the Commissioners should have all the alternatives before them. By recommending this tax, such departmental requests would be possible; by eliminating such improvements, an increase in that tax could be avoided. In short, the Commissioners will be provided with an integrated picture of the District's needs on the one hand and means of attaining them on the other.

This in itself should be a welcome influence for efficient administration of the city. And its utility for more intelligent treatment of local needs by Congress is apparent.

A Labor Dispute With A Moral.

There is a very serious underlying note in the seemingly ridiculous situation which has arisen at the plant of the National Electric Products Corporation, in the Pittsburgh area.

Two governmental agencies, each interpreting the law as it finds it, have taken diametrically opposite positions with regard to labor policies at this plant. A Federal district court recently ruled that a closed-shop contract between the management and an A. F. of L. union must be enforced. Now the National Labor Relations Board, the C. I. O. complaining, orders an election at the plant to determine whether the A. F. of L. union or the C. I. O. union actually represents a majority of the workers.

Should the voting favor the latter the A. F. of L. contract, as approved by the Federal court, would presumably become null and void. For under the labor relations act the organization chosen by a majority of the employes has sole right of representation for collective bargaining purposes.

The case is of general importance because the situation revealed may easily be paralleled throughout the country. Indeed, the intense rivalry between the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. in the basic industries is almost a guarantee that the problem confronting the National Electric Products Corporation will soon be duplicated on a wide scale.

These hostile labor organizations are each endeavoring by ceaseless propaganda to secure a majority of the employes in the factories where their interests clash. And as soon as either has secured a majority, confirmed by a N. L. R. B. election, it seeks to perpetuate its gain by a closed-shop contract. Generally these provide for the "check-off," a device whereby the company deducts union dues from the pay envelopes of all its workers. This insures 100 per cent organization and saves the union all the trouble of collecting these assessments itself.

The position therefore is that 51 per cent of the employes in a plant can determine the body which shall represent all the employes for collective bargaining purposes. The other 49 per cent (or less) may then be made subject to an enforced collection of dues for the benefit of an organization with which they may be completely unsympathetic.

This procedure is neither democratic nor wise. It is not democratic because under the check-off system there is no protection of minority rights, which is as essential a part of democracy as is the principle of majority rule. Nothing is more repugnant to democratic theory than a system whereby an individual is taxed for the express purpose of keeping in power those whom he opposes. And that is precisely what the check-off tends to do.

The procedure is also unwise. The enormous advantage which the check-off gives the dominant majority is certain to stimulate representatives of the rival unions to work for an overturn. If the C. I. O. secures a closed shop in one plant, A. F. of L. agents will continuously be endeavoring to convert enough employes to swing the majority to their standard. Down the street C. I. O. agents will be doing exactly the same in a factory where the A. F. of L. is dominant. This can only lead to ceaseless confusion, waste motion and bitterness, interfering with production and enormously complicating the problems of even the most considerate and socially minded managements.

In many plants, moreover, there is a strong group whose members are adherents or neither William Green nor John Lewis, but who prefer some form of company union. In such factories the internal disputation is three-cornered and no group may be able to secure the clear majority necessary for its recognition as bargaining agency under the labor relations act.

In the case of the National Electric Products Corporation the A. F. of L. is in the saddle and the C. I. O. is the protestant. The latter now seeks to gain for itself the check-off advantage at present possessed by the followers of William Green.

The N. L. R. B. is convinced that the C. I. O. has a case; that the company encouraged its workers to join the rival A. F. of L. union. But if this is so it is only natural. There are many coal mines operating under the check-off where management accepts the C. I. O. and of necessity encourages membership therein, thus giving the A. F. of L. a legitimate grievance. Successful management must co-operate with its employes. When there are two strong unions at dagger-points this naturally means some measure of favoritism to one group or the other.

In spite of ample evidence of its shortcomings, the last Congress did nothing to make constructive amendments in the labor relations act. The next session can scarcely be so passive. As the incident of the National Electric Products Corporation shows, the shortcomings of the legislation, plus the check-off, plus the bitterness between A. F. of L. and C. I. O., is rapidly producing an impossible situation.

With the check-off as the rich prize of success, rivalry between A. F. of L. and C. I. O. to secure its advantages is inevitable. That is why many sincere friends of the labor movement are coming to the conclusion that the closed shop may easily lead to the destruction, rather than the firm establishment, of an orderly and progressive unionism.

Accolade To Mr. Hull.

At its closing session on Tuesday the conference of the Little Entente nations went out of its way to single out for warm praise Mr. Hull's declaration of July 16, in which the Secretary of State laid down the principles necessary for the attainment of enduring peace.

Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Rumania may seem remote to Americans. But the governments of those nations fully realize that the United States exercises an enormous pull on world events. Not surprisingly, therefore, any measure of support, moral or material, which this Nation gives to the forces of peace is welcomed by them.

They have reason to be grateful to Mr. Hull on two counts. The strong stand he took on July 16 in favor of the loyal observance of treaties and the settlement of differences between nations by negotiation is in line with their interests, as with those of all peace-loving nations. And more and more the Little Entente countries have come to see in Mr. Hull's trade policies a way out of the morass in which they and all the other nations of the world now find themselves.

As wartime passions have subsided, the worship of extreme economic nationalism in the Danubian area has declined. Despite political obstacles and external pressures, progress is being made in restoring the flow of trade which obtained in the days of the Hapsburg monarchy. This is true not only so far as Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Rumania are concerned, but also with respect to Austria, Hungary and Bulgaria. Indeed, the idea of a Danubian economic federation including victors and vanquished alike is now entering into the realms of practical politics. It is an unquestionably encouraging development.

In the reciprocal trade agreement now being negotiated between the United States and Czechoslovakia one obstacle to such an arrangement bids fair to be further undermined. As in the case of a similar arrangement with Austria, our Government in its negotiations with Prague has again indicated readiness to make certain concessions in our usually rigid interpretation of the most-favored-nation clause. The intent is to place no obstacle, so far as we are concerned, in the way of a Danubian economic pact.

This is sound and practical statesmanship. It sets an example which, if followed by other nations with special interests in that region, will make it easier for the Little Entente and its neighbors to lower the barriers now restricting that trade which would be so much to their mutual advantage.

The Little Entente conference has thus given timely confirmation to Mr. Hull's statement, over the radio last night, that "today there is almost unanimous testimony that the policy of trade liberalization and international economic fair play can alone relieve the tension that is holding the world in its grip."

Ermine Entanglements.

Are women athletes graceful or gawky? Does Hollywood or Paris rule the permanent waves and the impermanent styles? These questions have been buried and exhumed so often that it is a wonder there is anything left to resuscitate. Yet the issue is never a dead one to fashion experts. So it will be interesting to see their reactions to the address made this week on the subject by Lucien Lelong, Paris couturier.

"I find it much easier to fit the American girl," said M. Lelong before 137 handpicked Manhattan merchants, "because of her athletic figure." Shades of Paul Gallico and the hullabaloo he raised recently when he said that muscles and modishness do not go together. Amazons are all right on the court and on the green, contended Mr. Gallico, but they are a total washout on the ballroom floor. And now comes a foremost designer who says he uses our girl athletes as models for his modes.

Not content with shaking that old skeleton again, M. Lelong is on his way to California to effect, if possible, a fashion alliance between Hollywood and Paris. In this he is apt to incur not only the ire of designers for the movie world but also of husbands all over the United States. For a glance at Paris forecasts clearly indicates that if he is successful, the cost of fall ensemble will make the French war debt look like pin money.

"Floor-sweeping ermine," "the return of chinchilla," and "rugged individualism in jewels" are some of the predictions from abroad. Here, indeed, is an alliance with entanglements so pernicious as to appall the most internationally minded.

A girl is a person who strings 43 independent sentences together with "and so."

Sharing The Credit.

From the Pittsburgh Press.

The American Petroleum Institute boasts that the industry's wages support a million Americans and that the industry's taxes support another million on the public pay roll.

The implication is that oil is a very patriotic industry, which doubtless is true.

But while we are distributing credit, how about giving some recognition to the services of Mother Nature, who arranged those deposits of plant and animal life and their transmutation into reservoirs of organic ooze deep beneath the earth's surface multi-billions of years before John D. Rockefeller ever sank a drill bit into the ground? And how about recognizing also that it is the Government's laws which protect the industry's exploitation of what nature provided?

Too Fast For Him.

More Park Criticism.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Can a worse example be found anywhere of blundering inefficiency and waste of public money than is being demonstrated in the small park between the North and South Interior buildings?

The space is less than 200 feet wide by 300 feet long, and last year had a good many nice trees. During the winter all the trees were destroyed, and in the spring the surface was graded and some small trees set out. Later, hundreds of loads of fine top-soil were hauled and dumped on the park, and many days spent raking and shoveling this soil around, smoothing it off, and seeding it to grass. Some portions were covered with sod. Since then, nearly the entire surface of the park has been dug up for one purpose or another, and hundreds of loads of dirt hauled away.

Six parallel sidewalks, each approximately 12 feet wide, are under construction or already finished, extending lengthwise of the park, four of them having reinforced concrete bases with flagstone surface. Narrow reflecting pools are being constructed down the middle of the park. When completed, it appears that only four narrow strips of ground will be left for vegetation comprising perhaps 30 per cent of the area of the park, while the balance will be covered with reinforced concrete.

What possible use can there be for six parallel walks in a distance of less than 200 feet, any one of which could easily carry all the people who have ever been seen in this park at one time?

Engineers have been constantly in evidence on the ground, making measurements and taking levels, yet hundreds of loads of dirt have been brought to the park, and then dug up by steam shovel and hauled away again.

My office window looks out upon this park and although I try to keep from noticing things too much, it is impossible to avoid being distressed by the waste and confusion and the destruction of a fine little park. OBSERVER.

District Drinking.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A friend has sent me a clipping from The Post of August 21. This clipping is an Associated Press dispatch from New York. Ordinarily I do not attmpt to correct the errors in a press report, but this report attributes to me almost unthinkable ignorance and clearly impossible knowledge. The report states:

"I think, he said, that Congress will pass an amendment to restrict the liquor traffic. Washington, which had 400 speakeasies during prohibition, now has 1,800 saloons, he observed."

I certainly did not say that Congress would pass a constitutional amendment. It has no such power. What I did say was that an amendment, in my judgment, would be passed which would give to Congress the ability to prohibit, or to restrict the liquor traffic in accordance with its judgment.

I did not say that Washington had 400 speakeasies during prohibition. I have no knowledge as to how many speakeasies there were, nor has anybody else. What I did say was that Washington had only 400 saloons in 1917, before District prohibition, and it now has 1,800 saloons. JAMES CANNON, JR.

Labor Day Memorial?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: On Labor Day two years ago hundreds of lives were whisked away by the maelstrom of fury that swept the Florida Keys.

Hundreds of brave men who survived the Meuse and the Argonne were destroyed without a hope or a chance. Twisted, torn and mangled bodies were strewn in tree tops, wreckage, and buried in the mud. The train that awaited to remove them was swept from the roadbed. Too late, after hours of waiting, came the order to evacuate. All were trapped as rats in a trap.

I venture to suggest that Labor Day be a memorial day for them.

Auto Drivers' Tests.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your recent issue Newton V. Blakeslee complains of having had to wait three and one-half hours with a learning driver for a driving test at the Traffic Bureau, and then not getting it before closing time. He says, "Only one man was on duty to take care of 70 or 80 applicants . . . If the man on duty could have worked only half an hour longer he could have taken care of the remaining applicants."

Is this the way they put them through down at the Traffic Bureau? An automobile drivers' test is quite as important as a locomotive drivers' test—at least to those involved in future accidents in such connections.

I always knew their tests didn't amount to anything at the Traffic Bureau. I took one and they passed me—and I can't drive a golf ball! I wobbled home and after burning up a few gallons more of gasoline my car sat out in a back lot and rusted. Some day I believe a driver's test will be a much more complicated thing than it is now.

C. I. O. Campaign.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have before me a pamphlet entitled "A Message to the 800,000," soliciting membership of Government employes in the United Federal Workers of America, which is an organization affiliated with the Lewis organization known as the C. I. O. Such an affiliation is enough to damn the proposed organization in the minds of every patriotic American, and its solicitation is an insult to every true American in the Government service.

The Federal employes are asked to join an outfit that is dominated and controlled by the C. I. O., which has demonstrated itself to be a lawless and un-American organization. Precious little do Lewis and his gang care about the Federal employes. What they are interested in is getting a million or more dollars per year out of the Federal employes to help carry on their campaign to sovietize the industries of the United States and reproduce in America the same social, economic and political conditions that now prevail in Russia.

People And "The People."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Do those readers who agree with Macauley, Cicero et al., in the distrust and contempt of the "people" and the "mob" at self-government include themselves in the category of people or mob? If not, what form of conceit prompts them to except themselves?

In the use of the ballot do they, or if they were granted the ballot would they, exercise such discrimination as would indicate their superiority to the aristocratic cliques who were favored by the "rottenborough" system of old England, or to the blue-bloods who left such menial duties as reading and writing and other intellectual tasks to clerks?

What audacity! to refer to the "intellectually obtuse" as being courted by politicians, when the history of all political battles is replete with references to appeals based on prejudice, hate and misrepresentation made by representatives of the propertied elements to our self-designated elite, who by some supernatural process are removed from the common aspirations of the great mass.

Probably the dumbest clerk or the shoddiest middle-class Philistine considers himself superior to that abstraction called "people."

Disagrees With Mr. Ginzburg.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read a letter from one Benjamin Ginzburg in The Post of August 31 and noticed that he gave you quite a going-over. I am sorry to disagree with him, but I cannot fall in with anything he had to say.

I believe most everyone, except those who are directly on the receiving end, knows that the WPA is wasteful and ineffective. After everything is counted up you will find out that very little permanent good has been accomplished. As far as relief money is concerned the Government might just as well have opened up a free bank. That way we would have saved a lot of overhead expenses.

I do not agree with the further contention that the reason Great Britain does not give away more relief money, is because they are poor and do not have it. Why not go to the Scandinavian countries for ideas? They seem to be getting along rather well without new deals, relief projects, court changes and the other numerous ills that pursue this country.

I notice also that Mr. Ginzburg sneaks in a little reference to the court and states that acts of Parliament are not invalidated by the English courts. The only answer I have for that is, that the English Parliament is not being constantly filled with a lot of small-time politicians with great ideas how to cure all evils with the steady application of money, like our Congress is. I have no doubt that they would soon have a court similar to our Supreme Court if the Parliament kept putting out goofy laws like the ones we have over here.

It may be true that the Republicans ruined the country, but it is also true that they did not run us heavily in debt to do it. What kind of shape is the Government going to be in after the Democrats get through pensioning every Tom, Dick and Harry? Even Farley, with his weekly sop to stamp collectors, will not be able to equal the money going out to all the boys who have to be taken care of. W. E. D.

Antilynching Bill.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A letter to the editor dated August 12, signed by William E. Dixon, stated that "one of his favorites," Mr. Borah, had assailed the Federal antilynching bill. But he could not determine why, etc.

I understand that murder in any State is a criminal offense which is supposed to be prosecuted within the borders of the State in which such crime is committed. Under the general head of murder comes lynching. Gangster killings should also be included here.

However, I understand the lynching bill was drawn up with a provision specifically exempting gangsterism. This, I believe, turned many Senators against it and was the principal reason for the Idaho Senator's opposition to it.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: One notice will shock every American who has a feeling for democracy and liberty: The official participation of our Government in the Nazi party convention in Nuremburg. In former years our representatives honored themselves in rejecting the invitation.

Section 213 Repeal.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Repeal of the marriage clause or section 213 of the economy act was the rankest unfairness and injustice toward the many unemployed of both sex and color.

In my opinion husbands and wives should not both be employed under the Government, either Federal or District governments. In my opinion it behooves Congress to re-enact legislation to that effect during the next session. HENRY F. ASH.

Guild Meeting.

OUT of the pretty hectic feud now seething among newspaper people over whether their fair young Guild shall mate John L. Lewis or William Green there came, last month, at least one rather amusing incident. Well, anyway, it was amusing to me.

The feud, by the way, reached its big climax last week when the national membership voted on which of the charming gentlemen it will accept. As this is written it looked like a narrow escape for both the intendeds, who, it might be said, seem to view the entire controversy with apprehension and await the counting of the ballots with the trembling demeanor of swains facing a shotgun wedding.

Two years ago the Guild wanted William, the philosophical, and no one else. Heywood Broun did a magnificent impersonation of John Alden as with fine, dulcet adjectives he pleaded the charms of the American Federation of Labor to the membership. No sooner was the A. F. of L. cause won, however, than Heywood eloped with the dashing newcomer on the labor scene, John L. Lewis. This latter indiscretion a large part of the national Guild family resented, with Washington fairly screaming. Mrs. Roosevelt, a Guild member, kept silent.

So, to defend his practice of free love, Mr. Broun, president of the Guild, put on his customary unpressed suit, and also a new straw skimmer with a yacht-club ribbon, and ambled into the Washington Hotel to address the outraged Capital newsmen, gathered 200 strong and muttering in their teeth words which sounded ominously like lynching. It was a crisis. Oh, boy!

Mr. Broun's preamble was patient, like that of an old and bored schoolma'am opening her forty-eighth kindergarten year. The newsmen listened courteously to his introductory remarks, applauding especially his announcement that he would be brief. But Mr. Broun, it seems, talks as fluently when unpaid for his words as when writing his column at so much per inch. The minutes fled into an hour.

• • • •

From time to time Mr. Broun moistened his lips from the water tumbler. After each sip he seemed to gain new fire. Soon he had his coat off and little black eyes blazing. Waving his massive arms in ferris-wheel gestures, he stomped down off the platform onto the floor, where he was shortly involved in numerous hand-to-hand arguments with hecklers, which were pretty funny, at least once approaching mayhem.

The speech was entering its second hour when chairs began scraping and reporters were bouncing up, giving little extemporaneous orations of their own in sad disrespect to their president, who had the floor. Mr. Buck, immaculate in white and looking as benign as a parson at first, began smacking the gavel like an angry blacksmith practicing the Anvil Chorus, at the same time rendering a recitativo of his own, which could not be understood in the melee.

Mr. Broun, suddenly and with great heat, whirled and seized the water tumbler, swallowing deeply. He then loudly stated that the chair was giving him a raw deal and denounced Buck for permitting booing. "It's the first time I've ever been booed by a Guild unit," declared Mr. Broun, hurt and peevish.

Mr. Buck with equal heat grabbed the tumbler. Though he privately didn't mind Broun being booed, it was a reflection on his chairmanship that a complaint had been made. With roars he let it be known he did not approve the booing, if any, and assured Mr. Broun he would get a square deal if he had to kill somebody. Whereupon Mr. Buck, too, swallowed deeply, the draught draining a glass still a third full.

Then came the explosion. Mr. Buck's eyes popped. He gulped. He choked. He bolted from his chair, cheeks bulging like a pumpkin. The audience, in fascinated terror, could not imagine what had happened. Then Mr. Buck, with truly beautiful heroism, swallowed whatever was in his mouth.

It seems that all that looks like water is not H_2O. Nor is it always gasoline, kerosene or ammonia, either. Nostrils trained in the art of quick detection, fine old reportorial nostrils, knew instantly that Mr. Broun's libation was gin. Explanation swept through the audience. People laughed. The tension was eased. Mr. Buck chuckled. Mr. Broun shortly went over in a corner and sat down, abandoning the floor to his hecklers, who, not unexpectedly, in no time began heckling each other.

Judging from the general reaction to the national president's noble address, nothing was proved by the whole evening except that certain refreshments add length to a speech, if not conviction. When Mr. Broun finished, the Washington newshawks admired him for his prowess as a trencherman, if not for his explanation of his elopement with John L. Lewis. EUGENE WARNER.

Farr's Courage, Etc.

WAIT A MINUTE! Let us get this straight about the raw, red, flaming courage of Tommy Farr, who lost a decision to Joe Louis, who fought a shrinking fight, hit him only one right-hand punch in 15 rounds, missed him with more lefts than he landed, and was, by many expert accounts of the scuffle, afraid to lead to a notorious nonpuncher lest he draw a counter.

The testimony on this fight is the most confusing that your correspondent has ever read—or written. The action was so bashful on the part of Joe Louis that the customers gave it the owl's love-call several times, but in standing up to a left jab and nothing else worth mentioning Farr has earned the reputation of a Jimmy Hanlon or a Fay Kaiser, gentlemen of the old Garden days who could pull the Indian rope trick to come off the floor ten or a dozen times or even 20 times. They would come up as often as they were knocked down except toward the end of their careers, when they developed a tendency to linger on the canvas. But they were pulpy by then.

Yet those boys and a few other lithe, lean bodies of the same type who did not fight for titles were known merely as club fighters, and instead of praising their courage press and public called them fighting fools.

* * * *

TOMMY FARR, on the other hand, was not hit hard enough to be knocked off his feet once, and thus didn't have to come off the boards, and it is given out now that he was fighting a one-hander from the third round on because Louis broke his right in that one. This also is confusing, because it is in the record that the only real smash which Farr was asked to endure in proving a bravery under punishment that puts to shame the insensate rage of Battling Nelson was a right-hander delivered in the fifth, two rounds after the accident which made Joe's hand useless. If it was broken and useless, how comes it that a man is another Greb or Wolgast or a Chuck Wiggins to absorb a punch from same?

Of course, your correspondent does not doubt the brokenness and uselessness of Louis' right after the third round. Champions often come up with broken bones which require months to heal when they are confronted with professional and economic problems. They even come up with X-ray pictures of the fractures to prove the damage, and only a cynic—of which your correspondent happily is not one—would suspect that the X-ray pictures ever had been just lifted out of some hospital file at random as a means of deceiving the press and the readers. Such suspicions there have been in cases past, but your correspondent never shared them.

Louis' earnings for the tax year, are such that a fight with Max Schmeling this fall, with the big, additional income, might run his brackets 'way up, so a delay until the next year would be very profitable.

Moreover, the man whom Farr so fearlessly hustled around the ring, oblivious of left jabs in the features, is such a mediocre fighter, with so little versatility, that Schmeling is now said to be a sure thing to knock him out again and take his title. So, from the professional and economic standpoints, Louis is lucky that he did break his hand, an injury which doubtless will prevent his fighting Schmeling this fall. And let there be no skepticism regarding the injury, because the boy may ram your suspicions down your throat with X-ray prints.

* * * *

WELL, Farr was one of the gamest of them all in refusing to fall unconscious before a left jab delivered in fear and hesitancy, and Louis is injured, and Schmeling, by an ill chance, will find himself postponed until 1938, by which time, unless he violates precedent by risking his prestige in an interim fight, he will have been idle two years. That will be seven years after the savage struggle in which he won the title sitting down and more than ten years after his American debut.

Again, a cynic might suspect that the circumstance of the broken hand—see X-ray, if in doubt—the advance of age and the effects of idleness in Schmeling, as well as income tax considerations, all jibed a little too well in postponing the defeat of Louis. But again your correspondent is no cynic, only just a true believer and a notorious sucker for X-ray pictures of broken fighters' metacarpals.

The Simplified Tax Blank.

(The Treasury Department has simplified the income tax blank."—News item.)

Don't let the little income blank
Your mind and spirit cow;
They've simplified it so that you
Can understand it now.
They've taken all the puzzles out
That made you wince and groan,
And lightened it so any man
Can lift it all ALONE.

II.

(And top to bottom, too.)
So when you've pinned it to the floor
It can't out-wrestle you;
It weighs a whole lot less, they say,
Which seems to me quite fair,
So when he's thrown it on its back
A man can keep it there.

III.

They've made it watch its calories
And take off lots of fat;
They've taken off its double chins
And other things like that;
They've given it a bath and rub
To cut its waistline down;
It isn't hard to look at now
When tax time comes aroun'.

IV.

You can unfold it all alone
And spread it, so they say,
Without assistance on your desk
In less than half a day;
It isn't cumbersome at all,
And they declare it true
That when a tax blank's in your home
There's room for you there, too.

V.

They've gone and used some common sense,
A forward step, my dear,
And worded all the questions so
In spots they're almost clear;
They've taken out the excess words
(A million, more or less)—
And here and there it's possible
To answer "no" or "yes."

VI.

"Deduct your interest on your rents,
Plus gains in capital,
And all your losses from a fire,
And how's your Sister Sal?" . . .
Questions like this are now no more,
And gone from every line
Is "See Page 7, Section 5, Clause 40, Item 9."

VII.

What have your losses been from storms?
And multiply by two;
What is this total minus six,
And, tell us, how are you?" . . .
These, too, have now been stricken out,
And all things made so clear
You may know what it's all about
IF YOU BUT PERSEVERE.

England's Great Expectations

British Hope Potential Enemies Will Burn Selves Out.

By David Willis.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

London.

WAR IN SPAIN, piracy in the Mediterranean, murder in Shanghai, a breach of diplomatic recognition between Portugal and Czechoslovakia. And Mr. Chamberlain is coming to town. He has been holiday making in Scotland, is coming overnight to London, returning the next night to the north. Coming to London not, so far as one can gather, to do anything about any of these troubles abroad, but simply because it looks better to come, shows the British people at home that he is on the job, consoles the British in Shanghai, and keeps the Prime Minister well informed so that he can keep up with the dinner table conversation when he goes to stay with the King at Balmoral.

And what else can he do? The National Council of Labor, the shadow cabinet of the Labor Party, has framed a resolution condemning Japanese aggression in China, along with other manifestations of militarism and fascism; and doubtless these sentiments will be indorsed by the Trades Union Congress and the Labor Party conference. The Liberal papers say we told you so; now the empire is reaping the results of Simon in Manchuria in 1931, of Hoare in Abyssinia, of Baldwin and Chamberlain in Spain. If only you had stuck to the League of Nations, there would be none of these present troubles.

But the League is gone. And the Labor Party which deplores nearly everything it sees abroad is still strenuously opposed to any united action between left-wing parties in England to attack the present government; so strongly opposed that the executive is using its control of procedure to stifle discussion of the subject at the coming annual conference.

Government Seen Free To Move Independently.

THE GOVERNMENT need make no pretense of conforming to any theory of collective security; it is free to apply the rules of ordinary, familiar selfishness, or of realism, if you prefer that term.

With the theory of collective interests vanished, every incident can be treated separately on its merits. In 1931 our good friends and old allies the Japanese were a little ruthless, but Britain had little interest in Manchuria, and, of course, the Chinese needed putting in their place. Britain had no particular interests in Abyssinia, and everybody knows that the Abyssinians needed cleaning up. In Spain it doesn't really matter to us which side wins, so long as the winner is Spanish; and since the government side smells of communism, we prefer good old Franco.

True, Mister Franco has Italian and German allies who might be able to make trouble for us if they wanted to, but our expert on foreign relations, Neville Chamberlain, is busy putting that right with our good friends the Italians, and Mussolini has been so kind as to say that there have been very great misunderstandings between the Italians and the British. Everybody knows the Germans are anxious to have our friendship; unfortunate, of course, that they should be so silly over the matter of foreign correspondents, but that trouble will pass.

Shanghai Contains Half Of Britain's China Capital.

AND SO comes a Japanese war against China. Shanghai, which contains perhaps half of the reputed £200,000,000 worth of British capital in China, is being burnt out. We have taken some precautions to protect our nationals, we have told the Japanese and the Chinese that we will hold them responsible for destruction of British property, but nobody believes that we can or will protect the International Settlement against determined Japanese force.

If we write off Shanghai, what do we do about Hongkong? Our most recent policy has been to build up defenses on the island, and our naval expansion is to include larger and more ships for the Far East. Japan it now seems is about to launch an attack on all the maritime provinces of China; she may attempt a blockade, through which the main opening will be via Hongkong and Canton. If the Japanese make a definite threat against Hongkong, it is hardly conceivable that even the present government could give up that territory, however indefensible it may consider it to be.

But if the Japanese are discreet, and merely strangle British trade, without threatening our territory, we may quietly write off Hongkong just as we may discard our interest in Shanghai. The British flag will still wave over our most easterly naval base, but it won't be of any importance. It is not that we want this to happen, but merely that we are not prepared to use force to prevent it.

The prevailing opinion here seems to be that we should not attempt to defend anything farther east than Singapore, the Dutch East Indies, and Australia. The Dutch East Indies are part of the British empire for defense purposes, and although Australian opinion is divided between an official strong policy and an unofficial Little Australia policy, even the strong line does not believe that Hongkong is of use for the defense of Australia, or is worth an effort by Australia to retain.

Low Countries And France England's Concern In Europe.

IF THIS is our ultimate line of retreat in the Far East, just what is our similar line in Europe? The most probable answer is in terms of Mr. Eden's speech at Leamington: "We defend the Low Countries and France." We might deplore a German occupation of Austria or Czechoslovakia, but if we can help it we will not go to war to defend either country.

In the event of a German attack on Czechoslovakia, if France implemented her treaty and went to the assistance of Czechoslovakia, we might go in with France. But we might take some time to come to this decision, particularly if France made herself appear the aggressor by attacking Germany.

It is believed here that if British were involved in a major war, America would probably adopt the same attitude toward France.

Our only other fundamental necessity in Europe is control of the Mediterranean, and even here we are prepared to yield a long way before using force to maintain our claim. Our apparent retreat before the Italians is attributable in part of a desire to increase the size of the navy, in part to a belief that there is no real unity of interests between Italy and Germany, and that Italy can be bought away from her present alliance.

Limits Of Retreat Described By Observer.

SO FAR AS they can be precisely stated, these seem to be the limits to which Britain, controlled by her present government, is prepared to retreat without fighting. Outside these limits sufficient may happen to make the position of the empire insecure even within its line of retreat.

China may collapse before the Japanese onslaught, and Japan may secure hegemony of the Far East, Germany may dominate Czechoslovakia, Austria, and then the whole of the southeast of Europe down to the Mediterranean. Germany and Italy may manage their alliance without threatening Italian interests, and Italy may secure sufficient control of the Mediterranean to endanger Britain's life line to India and Australia.

On purely strategic grounds, if we wished to oppose this kind of development, we should ally ourselves with France, Czechoslovakia and Russia. But a mutual alliance with Russia would not be acceptable to the British government or public, although it is highly probable that in an emergency we would be quite happy to find Russia fighting on our side. And with a Russian alliance barred, Czechoslovakia becomes a liability rather than an asset.

On paper, therefore, it is possible for Germany, Italy and Japan to secure sufficient power for themselves to present in consort a group of enemies against which the empire could not simultaneously defend itself.

It is not credible that the British government should be indifferent to this danger. By far the best defense would have been an effective system of collective security, with power for the League of Nations, but that defense was incompatible with the ideas of British government, which was not prepared to pay the necessary price.

British Defenses Today Based On Power Politics.

ITS PRESENT defense is in terms of power politics. We retreat before aggression, partly because we are lazy, although the archbishop of laziness, Mr. Baldwin, is no longer in control. We retreat because we believe that we can build up a bigger navy and air force than anybody else. And we retreat in the hope that our possible enemies will overreach themselves.

We have no belief in the potential military strength of Italy. We hope that Germany may emasculate herself in an economic collapse, and that Japan will be exhausted by the tragic role she has cast for herself. If these things happen, we shall be at the height of our strength when the dangerous countries are completely exhausted.

We hope that this exhaustion will not be so great that a wave of radical revolution spreads round the world, and to protect ourselves against this possibility we endeavor to improve Anglo-German, Anglo-Italian and Anglo-Japanese relations. But we hope that the exhaustion will be sufficient to make our possible enemies no longer dangerous.

These expectations may be reasonable. But if events develop in such a way as to justify our present foreign policies, what will be created will not be any basis for a new system of international peace and order, but merely a division between a protected British empire and a number of frustrated would-be great imperial powers. And if events do not turn out as we hope, we may have to fight long before our present lines of retreat are reached, and fight under very adverse conditions.

San Juan's Chief Of Police in City

By the Associated Press.

Miguel Carreras, chief co-operator of the insular police at San Juan, Puerto Rico, arrived here yesterday accompanied by Mrs. Carreras.

They conferred with Resident Commissioner Santiago Igesias and with Senator Rafael Martinez Madal, president of the Island Senate and of the Union Republican Coalitionist party.

Mrs. Carreras, who is manager of the city hospitals at San Juan and campaign organizer for the Coalition party, said "Puerto Rico is happy to be within the folds of the United States."

That, she continued, is what her party has been fighting for, "and will continue to fight for."

"We of Puerto Rico," she said, "wish to become more and more a part of the United States, and women as well as men of our island are striving toward that end."

Reds Are Blamed In Labor Trouble

Communists and professional agitators were active in the Government's $12,000,000 Inland Waterways Corporation up to only a few months ago, it was charged last night in a hitherto unpublished exchange of correspondence between Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring and Maj. Gen. T. O. Ashburn, corporation chairman.

Ashburn complained against a "radical element" among the corporation's employes, but concluded by saying "most of our labor troubles have been solved for the present."

Ashburn blamed the American Federation of Government Employes, the International Longshoremen's Association and the American Federation of Labor for initial strife which, he claimed opened the way for acts of intimidation by agitators and Communists.

McCarran Censures Airline Rejection

Senator Pat McCarran, of Nevada, said yesterday the Postoffice Department's rejection of leases planned to establish transcontinental sleeper service was "one of a long series of discouragements which have met every effort of the Nation's airlines to improve their service to the public."

The decision, recommended by Solicitor Karl A. Crowley, of the Postoffice Department, prevented United Air Lines and Western Air Express from leasing their equipment to each other for use of their own mail routes.

Copeland Blames Veto Vote for Split

New York, Sept. 1 (AP).—Senator Royal S. Copeland, Tammany candidate for mayor, today traced his break with the White House to a vote against a Presidential veto.

Describing amendment of the independent offices appropriation measure in March, 1934, Copeland said rejection of President Roosevelt's veto of the revised measure marked "the end of my popularity with the White House."

Three-State Reunion Scheduled for Sept. 12

The third reunion of Virginia, West Virginia and Maryland residents of the District of Columbia will be held September 12 at Miller Cabin, Rock Creek Park, it was announced yesterday by Washington I. Cleveland, chairman of the reunion committee.

The meeting is sponsored by the Maryland counties of Montgomery and Howard, and approximately 500 persons are expected. The guets of honor and principal speaker will be John J. Cornwell, general counsel for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. The assembly will begin at noon.

Nine Fronts

By Barnet Nover.

Will Japan Overextend Itself?

UNLESS a decisive victory over China is much nearer within its grasp than the world at large believes, Japan may soon be fighting on no fewer than nine fronts.

This is hardly what the army chiefs of Dai Nippon bargained for when they employed the Lukuchiao incident of July 7 as a pretext for a new advance into China. But that is the girm situation now facing them and their nation. For the first time since 1904, when the Japanese battled the armies of the Czar on the plains of Manchuria, Japan has a real fight on its hands.

As a result of large-scale resistance by the Chinese, now united as they have never been before against a foreign aggressor, there will be no such easy victories as that won in 1894 against the Manchu empire or in 1915 against the German garrison at Tsingtao or in 1931 against Chang Hseuh-liang.

But the Japanese military oligarchs cannot afford to stop. They must go forward at all costs. For a retreat now would be fatal to the power they have exercised in Japanese affairs since Japan emerged from medievalism. That prestige is based on an unbroken chain of victories. If that chain is now broken the magic of their influence would vanish.

The Japanese militarists are not the only ones who have persuaded themselves that the interests of their nation is but their own interests writ large.

JAPANESE ARMIES are today engaged in three major areas. There is the original front extending from Tientsin to Peiping and points north and south. Within that region itself Japanese dominance is unquestioned. But along the periphery of this zone Chinese troops are giving the invaders more than a little trouble. And there is always the danger that the Chinese forces below the Yellow River may move north.

There is a second northern front in the mountain passes separating China proper from Suiyan which is on the direct route between China and Outer Mongolia and Siberia. For two weeks the Chinese troops at Nankow Pass have managed to hold up their enemies. The longer they continue to do, so, the greater the strain on Japan.

And there is Shanghai. Exactly why Japan chose to extend the fighting to that great port is not yet clear. Possibly they came to the conclusion that the only hope of forcing the Nanking government to capitulate lay in striking China at its most vital port, the point of entry for a large part of its imports levies which provide the central regime with a large part of its revenue. But whatever the reason, the Japanese are now determined to clear the Shanghai area of Chinese troops. They have not yet done so. Every gain has been achieved at an enormous price. And ultimate victory is not yet certain.

WHAT WAS no doubt expected to be a short and easy war is proving to be something else again. So, still without benefit of any formal declaration of hostilities, a naval front has been established. A blockade of Chinese ports from Shanghai to Swatow has been imposed.

In some respects this may prove the most fatal move of the Japanese war lords. For, as pointed out in this column some days ago, this blockade if effectively applied must go beyond the limits originally fixed by the Japanese, and if it does it is certain to get Japan into difficulties with neutral nations.

By the same token the Japanese now feel themselves impelled to carry the war into South China and Shantung. The reported bombardment of Canton represents but the initial move in the direction of cowing the south. The Shantung incursion follows naturally from the North China operations of the Japanese army. But with every raid made by the Japanese air force new converts to Chinese nationalism are made.

"Japan's policy of bombing peaceful inhabitants of villages and cities in widely scattered sections of China," writes a correspondent of the New York Times, "has had the worst possible result. Every Chinese farmer in these sections has become the enemy of the Japanese."

THERE ARE three other fronts that Japan will have to reckon with if the war continues much longer.

Least tangible, but for that reason not least in importance, is the front of world opinion. The feeble efforts which Japanese spokesmen have made to justify the course pursued by their government and their armies in the Far East have met failure. World public opinion and certainly public opinion in this country is bitterly hostile to the Japanese. This state of mind cannot safely be discounted by Tokyo. What it may ultimately lead to the demand made on the government by the C. I. O.'s maritime conference, to enforce an economic embargo against Japan, clearly reveals. And, at Geneva, the presentation of China's case is likely to lead to a further hardening of world public opinion against the brutal aggression of Japan.

Then there is Manchuria. The reports of uprisings against Japanese domination emanating from that puppet state may prove to be premature. But the more Japan gets entangled elsewhere in Eastern Asia the greater the likelihood that it will have a war on its hands in Manchukuo. For the overwhelming majority of the people of that state are Chinese. Between them and the Chinese on the other side of the Great Wall are ties of blood which no amount of Japanese propaganda can destroy. Not surprising is it, then, that at a time when troops are needed elsewhere the Japanese garrison in Manchukuo is being considerably enlarged.

BUT THE MOST crucial of all fronts, for Japan, may be the home front. Correspondents report that all classes of the population and all parties have rallied in support of the army. This is believable and understandable. It almost always happens at the beginning of a war.

But for how long the present solidarity and enthusiasm of Japanese public opinion will continue in a war which, win or lose, may prove disastrous to Japan, remains to be seen.

No nation, we have often been told, is too poor to finance a war. There was Germany. More recently there was Italy. By tightening their belts another notch and still another the Japanese may manage to get along. But the trouble is that Japanese stomachs were already emptier, when the present war began, than were those of the Germans during the first years of the World War and those of the Italians at the time of the Ethiopian campaign.

Even without the extraordinary appropriations voted recently, about 80 per cent of the government's actual revenue went to the fighting forces. That percentage will now arise. And coupled with a mountainous trade deficit, a shortage of raw material resources far greater than that faced by Germany in 1914-1918 and a war in which the enemy's resistance is far greater than was that of the Ethiopians, the theory that war can be waged indefinitely on a shoestring is likely to be blown sky high.

It is not unlikely that if the war lasts long enough Japan's home front, like Germany's in 1918, may be the first to crack.

Lourdes

By William Lyon Phelps

City Of Miracles.

This city of miracles, which has for a long time attracted the attention of the world, maintains its privacy, for in this present summer its prestige and popularity have still further increased. During the third week of August, 157 special railway trains brought more than 150,000 pilgrims to Lourdes. Perhaps the steady rise of interest in this place from year to year is as remarkable as what happens there.

During this month of August the population of the town increased up to about 15 times its winter census; the permanent population being only about 9,000.

* * * *

The feeding and housing of such a tremendous invasion in so small a place would seem to be almost an insoluble problem; but the civic authorities have never failed to be equal to the situation.

There are villages in the vicinity which can take care of some of the overflow, and even the famous cities of Pau and Tarbes show an increase.

Every French province is represented by regular delegates; all join hands and kneel at the sacred grotto, where the Virgin made her traditional announcement. Masses are, of course, in Latin, but sermons are preached in every language known to France and to French-speaking countries, Basque, Provencal, Flemish, etc.

U. S. Is Ready To Quit Arms Race, Says Hull

States did not try to "outsmart" any neighbor or competitor, he said, "or to use any superiority of size or wealth or position to coerce him into doing what he believes to be against his true interests."

"Trust" in U. S. Motives.

This has resulted in the growth of a "feeling of trust" in the United States' motives, the Secretary said.

Referring to the troubled international situation, Hull said "I wish I could tell you that the situation was easing, but for the past few years the world has seen a succession of wars and threats of war, of revolution and crises that have confronted us with a series of situations that have required the most careful handling.'

The Administration's reciprocal trade program, Hull said, is designed to approach the problem of world peace from another angle.

"I confidently believe," he said, "that if we could solve the economic difficulties now facing the world, political appeasement would shortly ensue."

Delay Sending More Ships.

After a conference with Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, at Hyde Park, President Roosevelt let it be known the Government will depend on its present naval squadron in China waters to evacuate Americans.

The State Department during the day made public a message from Nelson T. Johnson, Ambassador to China, in which Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek conveyed to the United States "its apology for the very regrettable bombing of the Hoover, adding that the Chinese government was prepared to assume responsibility and make any amends within its power."

Chiang added, Johnson said, China "had taken steps to avoid such incidents in the future."

After the Leahy parley, summer White House officials said there is no need of augmenting American naval strength at Shanghai at this time.

Warn Shipping of Cholera.

[It was understood three heavy cruisers, which are being provisioned on the Pacific Coast for an unnamed destination, will not be dispatched immediately to the Far East, according to the United Press.—Editor's note.]

Meantime the Public Health Service announced all ships arriving from the Orient must be certified as free from cholera.

Dr. Charles L. Mallory, health service officer in Hongkong, reported to his superiors here 802 cases of cholera were under observation in that city, and that 427 persons had died. News dispatches have told of cholera in Shanghai also.

On receiving Mallory's report, the health service ordered its chief quarantine officer at Manila, Dr. H. F. Smith, to go to Hongkong immediately. It also warned all ships by radio to stop at Honolulu if any evidence of infection is found aboard.

Meanwhile the Commerce Department tossed into the situation a call for business as usual in the Orient. Secretary Roper asserted "tension has been relieved" in the Shanghai area, and predicted American ships soon would be given "access to Chinese waters."

Discussing Navy orders to American merchant vessels to stay out of the war-torn Shanghai area, Roper told his press conference no orders had been issued withdrawing American passenger and cargo vessels from Chinese waters.

He added that after the bombing of the liner President Hoover, the Navy had stated "that merchant vessels should not enter Chinese waters under the conditions then existing."

Roper declined to say when American cargo and passenger ships might be permitted to go freely into China waters again, but indicated it would be soon.

Asked what the Government would do if the Wichita, a Government-owned vessel reported carrying planes to China, is stopped by the Japanese blockade, the Commerce Secretary replied:

"Under their own statement, we have no reason to believe the Japanese embargo will be enforced against vessels which are bona fide under the supervision of citizens of this Nation."

Neutrality Action Urged.

By the Associated Press.

The Japanese blockade of the China coast calls for invocation of the United States neutrality act, an article in the bulletin of the Foreign Policy Association declared yesterday.

Written by William T. Stone, vice president of the association, the article expressed fear trouble may arise unless the United States cuts off arms shipments to the fighting powers.

D. C. Man Heads Astrology Conclave

The American Association of Scientific Astrologers will hold its convention in Washington next spring, the Greater National Capital Committee announced yesterday.

U. S., District Employes To Hear Pay Discussion

Under auspices of the United Government Employes, Federal and District employees will hold a mass meeting at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow in Garnet Patterson Junior High School auditorium to hear Edgar G. Brown, president, discuss recent pay increases.

Fifteen hundred custodial employes of the National Park Service this week obtained the first $5 a month increase in their pay checks, climaxing a campaign waged by the U. G. E. Five hundred others received their efficiency marking too late for the first increase and their wage boost will start September 15 or 30.

World Institute Sights 'Suicide' In Crop Control

Coordinated Expansion Is Real Need, Report Declares.

By the Associated Press.

Rome, Sept. 1.—Crop restriction to keep pace with dwindling demand was condemned by the International Institute of Agriculture tonight in a report branding the world's present economic recovery largly artifical.

Agricultural experts of several dozen nations issued the report advocating that co-ordinated expansion replace crop scarcity measures.

"Unless the world is to acknowledge utter intellectual and moral bankruptcy, and admit its planned economy is a system of bold economic suicide, it eventually—and the sooner the better—must change the direction of its planning efforts," said the report.

"Instead of leveling down, it must begin to plan co-ordinated expansion."

Government intervention and rearmament have resulted largely in an artificial world economic revival, the experts concluded.

The report commented only briefly on United States conditions.

"The attempt by the United States Government in 1934 to achieve a reduction in tariffs and trade restrictions through bilateral commercial agreements, though it has produced few such treaties based on the most-favored nation clause, could not be said to have succeeded to a marked extent."

This was because "the general trend of commercial policy continues to point to further restriction," declared the report, adding that:

"In the United States, which after the totalitarian states and Soviet Russia is the country where government intervention in economic activity under the Roosevelt administration has been the most thorough and comprehensive of all, agriculture and trade have been placed under the strictest control."

"The policy of government intervention and planning, justified as it was by the vital interests at stake and often imperatively imposed by economic, social and political considerations of overwhelming importance for the countries concerned, however, necessarily is costly," the report stated.

One branch of production cannot be subsidized indefinitely at the expense of the general community, the experts held.

Russia Executes 7 Former Chiefs Of Georgia Soviet

Moscow, Sept. 1 (AP).—Soviet Russia today added seven more officials—former chiefs of the Georgia Soviet—to the swelling roster of alleged plotters executed by firing squads for Rightist activity.

The Tiflis newspaper, Star of the East, declared the seven Georgians admitted membership in a Rightist wrecking organization headed by G. A. Mgaloblishvili, premier of Georgia, who was removed from office in June.

Trial testimony asserted that Shalva Agnyashvili, former vice premier of the Caucasian Republic, prepared to head an armed rebellion and seize power in 1937 if unnamed capitalist countries waged war against the Soviet Union.

Enforce Laws, Says New York Traffic Expert

'Fixing' of Auto Violations Quashed in Manhattan, Inspector Avers.

By Howard F. Wentworth.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, Sept. 1.—Strict and impartial penalties for traffic offenders is New York's secret of safety, said Inspector James J. Sheehy, Manhattan borough's traffic chief, today.

Awarded honors as the safest traffic city during 1936, New York, through a continuing enforcement and education drive, has awakened motorists to the necessity of co-operation and law observance in a comprehensive life-saving program.

Courts and prosecutors, said Inspector Sheehy, have loaned support to a co-ordinated traffic safety movement. So-called "fixing" of traffic charges has been eliminated, he added. During the last year, convictions for major offenses have increased nearly 50 per cent throughout Manhattan.

Strict Penalties Meted Out.

"We have found," said Inspector Sheehy, "that strict penalties for all—with favoritism or discrimination—have been the answers to our troubles. Drivers in New York know they can't get away with breaking the law. If apprehended, they must face the music."

Told of the recent instances in Washington where police and city prosecutors were apparently working at odds, Inspector Sheehy frowned.

"Lack of co-operation from those charged with prosecuting offenders," he said, "was our greatest problem until we convinced the courts that adequate penalties meant the difference between life and death. We still have our troubles, but to a major extent, we have worked out a co-ordinated program."

Approximately 95 per cent of New York's drivers, said Inspector Sheehy, are willing to co-operate in a movement to promote safety. This co-operation, he continued, has been built up during the last year.

"An aroused public," said the inspector, "can do more toward saving lives than all the safety preaching and teaching we can do."

A respect for traffic regulations—and a willingness to accept penalties provided by law—must first be installed in the minds of motorists, he said.

Leniency, if circumstances justify, may be accorded first offenders. But the repeaters should be shown no mercy, Inspector Sheehy added.

Most Congested District.

Inspector Sheehy is one of New York's foremost traffic authorities. He is in charge of the Fourteenth Precinct.

His district is conceded to be the most congested in the world. Special police squads constantly patrol the precinct. Every regulation—from parking to reckless driving—is enforced and prosecuted without respect to persons or so-called "influence."

In Washington, recently, an assistant corporation counsel refused to prosecute a major offender because the arresting policeman was the only witness. The charge was reduced and a minimum fine recommended.

In New York, said Inspector Sheehy, a policeman's word is as good "as a dozen witnesses."

"Our men are on the streets for the sole purpose of enforcing the law. If an officer sees an infraction and testifies to it in court, his word is accepted without question.

Protest Stops Stage Travesty On Southern Girl's Trip North

Sheila Barrett's characterization of a Southern belle loose in a New York night club was cut from Loew's Capitol Theater bill last night after Mrs. Catherine Lane Hungerford, of Kensington, Md., late of Georgia, branded the skit "disgusting and not a true picture of Southern women."

Mrs. Hungerford's action came after a matinee performance yesterday. After witnessing Miss Barrett's portrayal of a young Southern woman who tried every drink on the wine list in a Broadway club, with resultant affects, Mrs Hungerford stormed backstage.

She wanted to see Sheila. Miss Barrett had left the theater. Mrs. Hungerford then cornered Carter Barron, Loew executive and also a native of Georgia. He and Mrs. Hungerford are friends. They were raised in the same locality.

Barron listened and finally decided that Miss Barrett would have to leave out the intoxication scene.

"We do not want to offend anyone," he explained last night.

That is their side of the story. Miss Barrett's is entirely different.

"The thing is caricature," she stated. "They are always cruel. I've done similar things about every race there is, I guess, and this is the first complaint. I don't see why the manager made the change."

Mrs. Hungerford wanted it made plain, however, that she is a great admirer of Miss Barrett.

Half Holiday Set For September 17

President Roosevelt yesterday ordered a half holiday for all Federal employes Friday September 17, to permit them to join in commemoration of the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Constitution.

His order will affect workers in all Government departments, and employes of the District, except those whose absence would conflict with existing law.

Heat Prostrates 1; No Relief Sighted

One person was prostrated by the heat yesterday as Washington's cool wave was brought to an abrupt end. The mercury soared to a high of 91 degrees at 2 p. m.

Climbing from the low of 70 at 6 a. m. yesterday morning the mercury registered 86 at 6 p. m.. Partly cloudy and little change in temperature was the Weather Bureau's forecast for today and tomorrow.

The heat victim was George C. Scurlock, 85, colored, of the 1700 block of Second street northwest. He was treated at Emergency Hospital and later released.

Steel Counsel Insists C. I. O. Name Members

Court Upholds S. W. O. C. Chief in Refusing to Disclose Weirton Roster.

New Cumberland, W. Va., Sept. 1 (AP).—Counsel for the Weirton Steel Co. employe representation plan demanded today that the membership of the C. I. O., "this mythical or invisible empire of John L. Lewis," be disclosed.

Attorney William T. Fahey made the demand at a labor board hearing on charges that the steel company intimidated its workers against joining the Steel Workers Organizing Committee.

But Trial Examiner E. G. Smith upheld Secretary Nick Malakis, of the Weirton S. W. O. C. local, in his refusal to give the names of the members.

Clyde A. Armstrong, chief counsel for Weirton Steel, had asked Malakis if he kept records of the membership. The union officer replied:

"We don't keep records here. We got national orders not to because of Weirton spies."

Malakis testified that members of the "Hatchet Gang" had fled from the mills when Senator LaFollette's Civil Liberties committee sent agents to Weirton to investigate S. W. O. C. charges that the "gang was sponsored by the company to intimidate union organizers."

Malakis declared that Claude Conway, chairman of the Employes Security League, which sponsors the employe representation plan, led several other men into the plant and drove him out last June.

Mrs. Fondersmith Burial Set Today

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary S. Fondersmith, 35, an employe of the Veterans' Administration for many years who died Tuesday at Columbia Hospital, will be held today at 3 p. m. at the Calvary Baptist Church, Eighth and H streets northwest. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Surviving are her husband, Ralph W. Fondersmith, infant twins, Mary Anne and Donald Lee Fondersmith, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Addison L. Sampson, three brothers, Bertram, Earl and George Sampson, and three sisters, Anne Elizabeth Sampson, Mrs. Dorothy S. Harrill and Mrs. Irene S. Fowler, all of Washington.

2 Doctors Arrested In Misprision Case

Department of Justice agents yesterday arrested two Atlantic City, N. J., physicians on alleged charges of misprision of felony growing out of vice raids.

Dr. M. H. Axilrod and Dr. Herman Klein were said to have been engaged in examination of prostitutes. A number of these women had been named as defendants and material witnesses in white slave traffic cases brought by the Department of Justice operatives, it was said.

The physicians will be taken to Trenton for arraignment. The misprision of felony statute makes it an offense to withhold knowledge of the commission of a felony cognizable by the courts.

G.O.P. Asks Credit For Court Defeat

By the Associated Press.

Senate Minority Leader McNary, of Oregon, in a statement issued from Republican national headquarters, praised the Senate Democrats who opposed the legislation.

"They were only a minority of their party's Senators," he said, adding, "they would have been powerless without us, even though their opposition was valiant and unyielding. We are proud to have worked with them in preserving a free and independent judiciary."

Joining McNary in the tribute, John D. M. Hamilton, Republican national chairman, said:

"I want to take my hat off to the solid ranks of Republicans who enabled the opposition to be successful."

N. Y. Strike Halts District Painters

Painters employed by New York contractors in Washington and five other cities have been instructed to cease work pending settlement of the painters' strike in New York City, the Associated Press reported last night.

The instructions were issued by L. P. Lindelof, general president of the international union, to painters in Milwaukee, Indianapolis, Cincinnati, Kansas City, Mo., Stamford, Conn. and Washington.

After a second breakdown in negotiations, employers and strikers have agreed to arrange another conference to discuss union demands for shop stewards.

Girls' Track Meet Scheduled Today

The Department of Playgrounds girls' city-wide field-day program will be staged today at Roosevelt High School Stadium under the direction of Maude N. Parker, director of girls' and women's activities. Some 63 playgrounds are expected to be represented.

All teams are asked to report at Roosevelt at 9:30, with the first events scheduled at 10 o'clock. The parade of playgrounds around the circular track, with some 2,000 girls dressed in vari-colored playground suits participating, will open the program. This will be followed by the playground Olympic oath ceremony.

Contact Man Rules Roads, Group Told

County Commissioner Paul M. Coughlan last night charged that the Maryland State Roads Commission had an unofficial "contact man" who decided where projected roads would go and who would build them.

At a meeting of the East Sligo Valley Citizens Association, Coughlan said roads were built by the State at a 30 per cent overhead cost, and that the county could construct them at but 5 per cent overhead.

The association ordered a study of the county building inspection service. It was said the service had failed to inspect 8,000 buildings.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

Amid all this Washington persiflage I'm still gullible, but I don't know whether or not to believe the tale that the father of one of the Cabinet members killed four neighbors for revenge in a vendetta after the Civil War . . . (Quite justly, if the story is true.) The son is an apostle of peace.

Wives of the new members in each Congress form a club; the latest is the Seventy-fifth Congress Club . . . They huddle together pretty companionably for two or three terms, like classmates and college chums . . . Then some begin to fall by the wayside, and after four or five terms the surviving alumnae of the Class of 1937 will begin to drift apart.

When a young inland statesman buys a house in Washington, like Representative Nichols, of Oklahoma, instead of renting, his colleagues call him an optimist; the caprices of the voters are so uncertain . . . But Nichols, famed for his oratorical gesture which starts at his heels and terminates high in the empyrean (like a bowler's motion, or a cheer leader's), probably will live in his new house long enough to avoid tripping over the furniture in the dark.

Of Washington's hundreds of monuments, many of them extremely odd, two of the strangest are the "flaming sword" monument to an A. E. F. Capital's Only Gun Stocker Utilizes Finest Wood in World in Fussiest Profession Known

Everything from the rainfall in Russia to the length of a man's arm enters into the production of a custom-made stock for a rifle, according to John Hutton, Washington's only professional gun stocker.

In his workshop at the National Target & Supply Co., 1249 Twenty-fifth street northwest, Hutton turns out gun stock for some of the fussiest marksmen and big-game hunters in the country, and he maintains there are more tricks in his trade than in any other you can name.

Russia's rainfall has a great deal to do with the material he uses, which is the finest grade of Circassian walnut obtainable. Grown in southern Russia, where rain falls sparsely, but at regular intervals, these walnut trees maintain an unusually even rate of growth.

As a result, the annular rings, one of which develops each year, fall close together, giving the tree great strength and fine grain. But excellent as the wood is, just any part of the tree trunk will not do for the gun stocker's purposes. The section he uses is taken from the "butt logg," the part which extends from about 2 feet below the surface of the ground to about 6 feet above ground.

It is slow, painstaking work, requiring endless patience as well as the skill of a sculptor. Using a bandsaw, Hutton shaves the wood down into what is known as an inletted blank, in which form it begins to look like a gun. The barrel and other metal parts are set into it, and it is ready for the "fitting."

"A custom-made stock must be fitted like a custom-made suit Hyatt says. "If it doesn't fit, the gun is apt to kick back and give the customer a black eye. If it fits, all he feels after he shoots is a slight push against his cheek."

So to prevent the possibility of "shiners," Hutton has his customer come in, aim the gun and tell him how it feels. Then he whittles away at the cheek-piece until the customer is satisfied with the fit. The ultimate test is whether the marksman can close his eyes and tell just by the feel of the stock against his cheek whether the sights are in line.

The bill for all this amounts to about $200, over three times as much as a customer would pay for a factory-made stock. But he has the satisfaction of knowing that the stock and the barrel of his gun are so closely welded together that they form a single unit—and that the stock will outlive the barrel.

Hutton's gun stocks are used by hunters all over the country. One of his customers is shooting in Alaska now. All of them have several guns—some as many as 30. And as they're always buying new ones or wanting old stocks repaired, he keeps pretty busy.

He has in the shop now an antiquated muzzle-loader which belonged to Gen. Pershing's father. A member of the family brought it to Hutton last year, saying that he was sending for some wood from his father's home in Pennsylvania and would like Hutton to make a new stock. Soon afterward he died, and Hutton is still uncertain about what to use for the stock.

Fight to Stop Abattoir Here Is Abandoned

Health Officer Told to Keep Close Watch on Place.

District and Federal officials yesterday came to the conclusion that there is no legal means by which they can halt the Adolf Gobel Co. from building an abattoir on Benning road northeast.

While nit admitting defeat officially, they stated that Health Officer George C. Ruhland had been designated to make a thorough study of the company's contemplated operations with a view of enforcing rigid health regulations.

If the meat-packing concern meets these requirements, which legally cannot be unreasonable, however, the health officer will be forced to issue an operating permit.

Capt. Patrick H. Tansey, acting Engineer Commissioner, issued a formal statement following a conference of officials of the District, the Public Works Administration and the Public Health Service.

"The PWA and District officials are in substantial agreement," he said, "as to the effect of operations of the abattoir on the sewage treatment plant and the condition of the river.

It was the sense of the meeting that conditions to be incorporated in an operating permit, when issued, will tend to assure the abattoir operating with a minimum adverse effect upon the treatment plant, the river, and adjacent property."

The Public Health Service has contended that industrial waste from the slaughter house would be equivalent to the sewage from a population of 140,000 persons.

District sanitary engineers, however, were less seriously concerned over the threat to the sewage treatment plant.

Fire Extinguishers Go 2 Directions, And Chase Is On

"Wonder where the fire is," thought Ralph A. Scroggs, attendant at a gas station in the 2000 block of Georgia avenue, yesterday when two colored men dashed into the station, removed two fire extinguishers from the wall and sped away again.

Scroggs, who lives at 524 Varnum street northwest, became suspicious, however, when the men started to run in opposite directions.

Scroggs chased and overcame one of the pair and managed to retrieve his fire extinguisher, but was unable to hold the robber.

Police are on the lookout for the two men—and the other fire extinguisher.

Law Scholarship Given by Legion To Miss Simmons

Miss Florence Marie Simmons, of 3917 Eighth street northwest, has been awarded the American Legion scholarship to Columbus University law school, it was announced yesterday.

Maj. Thomas J. Frailey, chairman of the war orphans committee of the District American Legion, announced the award, which includes tuition for the three-year law course.

Miss Simmons graduated from the Roosevelt High School and attended Strayer's Business School.

Mysterious Prowler Sought in Two Thefts

Police were searching last night for a mysterious prowler believed to have robbed two homes and escaped unseen with more than $50 in cash and some jewelry.

The victims were Phoebe M. Shaffer, 1920 Calvert street northwest, whose pocketbook with $26 and jewelry was taken from her bedroom, and Marie Blake, 1858 Columbia road northwest, who lost $25, also from her bedroom.

The robberies occurred within a space of 20 minutes, in homes five blocks apart.

Anna May Wong Visits Envoy Here to Secure Red Cross Aid

Actress Spends Only Two Hours in Capital; Gains Backing of Embassy for New Picture About Mme. Chang Kai-shek.

Anna May Wong, Oriental movie actress, was in Washington yesterday to solicit the aid of Ambassador Cheng Ting T. Wang "to help us raise funds for the Chinese Red Cross."

Traveling light and fast, Miss Wong arrived by plane and went directly to the the embassy. Less than two hours later, she returned to the airport, had a cup of tea in a barbecue shop and boarded a return plane.

Miss Wong said she also conferred with the Ambassador about a motion picture depicting the life of Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, wife of China's president, which Miss Wong is planning to make.

Dressed in native attire, the actress said she represented a committee of Chinese women, who hope to raise funds for Chinese sufferers by giving a series of benefits including a New York show. Should the show be a success, she said, it may be brought to Washington.

When she returned to the airport, Miss Wong was elated over her visit. She said she had expected to find the Chinese Government opposed to the proposed picture. "Instad," she declared, "they thought it an excellent idea."

Maj. Stonewall Jackson, U.S.A., Joins Georgetown's R. O. T. C.

Memories of the war days of 1861 at Georgetown University were evoked yesterday when Maj. Stonewall Jackson, U. S. A., reported for duty in the R. O. T. C. department as an instructor in military science and tactics.

Maj. Jackson is the son of a Virginian who soldiered under the famous Confederate, Gen. Thomas J. (Stonewall) Jackson. His father, Samuel Warren Jackson, of Warren County, being a great admirer of his old commander, christened his son "Stonewall."

"Way back there was some sort of connection between our families" Maj. Jackson explained yesterday, "but it was so slight we have never claimed relationship."

"Stonewall" Jackson was a name revered by many former Confederate soldiers who returned to Georgetown College after the Civil War to complete an interrupted education. The student body in 1861 was predominantly Southern and, in later years the univrsity adopted the Blue and Gray of its Great Seal as symbolic of a reunited country.

James R. Randall, author of "Maryland, My Maryland," left Georgetown College just before the war. So also did a young man named Edward Douglas White, who returned to Louisiana to enter the Confederate Army. Later he became Chief Justice of the United States.

Maj. Jackson comes to Georgetown from the Twelfth Infantry at Fort Washington where he was assigned a year ago following service in the Philippines.

At Georgetown, Maj. Jackson who lives at 4447 Greenwich parkway in Foxhall Village, will succeed Maj. Charles E. Rayens, who has been assigned to take the course at the Army War College. Maj. Rayens had been at the Hilltop only a year as an assistant to Col. Jesse C. Drain, head of the military department.

Rents to Soar September 15 Board Hears

Increase in Realty Tax Cause, Investigation Discloses.

D. C. Wage Body Fears Room Charges Will Advance Too.

Indications that rents will be raised in Washington September 15 to meet the 25-cent increase in realty taxes have reached the District Minimum Wage Board, Miss Gwen Geach, secretary, said yesterday.

A preliminary inquiry by investigators of the board, Miss Geach said, has disclosed that landlords interviewed are planning the increase. The investigators were concerned chiefly, however, with rents on rooms.

Miss Geach said that Miss Mary Anderson director of the Woman's Bureau, and Dr. Isador Lubin, commissioner of labor statistics, both of the Labor Department will be asked to assist in a broader survey to determine the present cost of living for wage earners.

This study will include clothing, food, board, restaurant prices, and sundries, such as costs of beauty treatments, church donations, reading, and amusements.

While the board has not yet scheduled any public hearings, unofficial forecasts are the minimum wage for women may be raised $1 a week. Under the original act, recently revived, it was $15 and $16.50 a week, depending upon the class of work done.

Safety Zones Put Man in Hospital Twice in 2 Weeks

William Hundley, 33, 4011 Georgia avenue northwest, vowed last night never to set foot upon another street car loading zone.

Twice during the past two weeks, he has met with accidents while on the "safety" platforms. Each mishap sent him to the hospital.

Two weeks ago in Richmond, Va., he was struck by an automobile while waiting for a street car. Last night, still on crutches, Hundley attempted to board a street car at Twelfth street and New York avenue northwest. A defect in the platform caught one of his crutches and sent him sprawling.

Taken to Emergency Hospital, he received treatment for an injury to his left leg, the same that was injured in the previous accident.

Trustees Seek 170% Boost in Library Funds

Following the lead of schools, welfare and health departments, the board of public library trustees yesterday submitted estimates of $1,701,930 to the District Commissioners. This represented an increase of 170 per cent over current appropriations.

Included in plans for expansion was an item of $850,000 for the purchase of a site for a new central library, total cost of which will be approximately $2,500,000.

A bill authorizing construction of this library was introduced last session by Chairman Collins, of the House sub-committee on District appropriations. A hearing was held before the House District Committee, but no action was taken.

The trustees asked $50,000 for preparation of plans for the new main library. The building, it was estimated, will cost $1,600,000.

Other building items are a $175,000 branch library as a part of the proposed Thomas Jefferson Memorial Junior High School, and $15,500 for purchase of a site and preparation of plans for a new branch in Anacostia.

Inauguration of a mobile library service for suburban areas was proposed, and $700 was requested for purchase and outfitting of an automobile trailer.

The proposed Anacostia branch would serve Anacostia, Congress Heights, Randle Highlands and the Good Hope section. The estimated cost of the building is $150,000.

The board asked for $59,460 for 40 additional employes. Twenty of these, however, would go to the new Petworth Branch Library. Seven new jobs are asked to keep the Chevy Chase and Woodridge sub-branches open full weekly hours.

Five positions are asked to enlarge the child reading service, and three are requested to improve the advisory service at the music division of the main library.

Beer's Virtues for Cooking Extolled by Brewers' Group

Bohemian Lager Soup Only One of Many Tarty Dishes Prepared From Frothy Beverage; Smothered Celery Another Delicacy.

How about some Bohemian beer soup for lunch, followed by some beer-smothered celery and topped off with a nice big glass of beer?

If you like that—and the United Brewers' Industrial Foundation is positive—you will—then you can have rarebit with beer for supper, baked ham basted with beer for dinner and pancakes made with beer for breakfast.

No fooling, that's the new idea in cookery. It's as smart to serve beer on your dining table these days as it was to be thrifty back during the depression. (At least, the foundation says so, in the week's best handout.)

Beer Soup Recipe.

Just in case you don't run across the little book, here's the recipe for Bohemian beer soup:

2 cups beer (room temperature)
2 cups milk
2 tablespoons white sugar.
2 whole eggs
Little grated neutmeg
Get the milk very hot and then add it to eggs, sugar and nutmeg beaten together. Stir until slightly thickened and then pour in the beer. Then pour all the mixture back into the kettle from which you poured the beer. Try this pouring back and forth for 4 to 6 times and serve immediately—to six of your best friends.

Aim to Spread Joy.

The foundation is not trying to take beer out of beer parlors, but just to spread its joy to the cooking stove area. Also, the foundtion believes beer has a "message" for the intemperate and the believers in prohibition.

American women, through the use of beer in the wholesome environment of their homes, "can do more to prevent intemperance and the tragedies of prohibition than all the legal coercion in the world," declares Mrs. Helen Wa''s Schreiber, who prepared the beer recipe booklet.

Although some of Mrs. Schreiber's recipes call for question marks (until we have had time to try them), some of them strike a palatable note from the beginning. That one about 3 pounds of fish in dark beer, for instance, and that one about ring sausage and beer sauce.

Diminutive and Blonde Sonja Henie Scores Again With Her Miraculous Skating Tricks in New Film

Olympic Figure Skating Champion Is at Her Best in "Thin Ice," an Agreeable Romance With Alpine Settings; James Hilton's Works Popular; July Box-Office Champions; Notes and Gossip of Theater.

AS ONE who practically grew up on the ice out around the Great Lakes—from about Thanksgiving Day to approximately St. Patrick's Day each year, that is—and thought he was pretty good at cutting figure eights, doing the outer edge and otherwise getting very fancy, indeed, on his blades, this column never will cease to marvel at the amazing agility, speed, grace and co-ordination of the diminutive Sonja Henie on ice skates.

BELL.

One naturally expects a good deal in the way of intricate goings-on from an Olympic champion figure skater, but hardly all that is revealed by the blonde Miss Henie in her second stellar screen play, "Thin Ice" privately screened for the drama desks in the Twentieth Century-Fox bijou refrigerator yesterday afternoon. Her ice ballets and acrobatics are the last word in feminine prowess—or masculine either, for that matter. How she manages it all and unfailingly comes out right side up is one of the wonders of our time.

While the star's demonstrations of what may be done on two narrow runners of steel constitute the real raison d'etre of the picture, as we say in the back room, there is much more to the film than that. It has some strikingly beautiful outdoor scenes in which the Henie talent for winter sports is taken out in the open, for one thing, and, for another, is favored with a story that gives frequent opportunity for an engagingly ingenuous sort of comedy and some that is not so ingenuous. This is intrusted to the ample capacities for tickling the risibilities of Raymond Walburn, Arthur Treacher and an eccentric young woman by the name of Joan Davis, for fullest exposition.

This Miss Davis is possessed of as sure a comedy sense as might be expected from a combination of Fannie Brice and Florence Moore. Her songs, sung in the guise of leader of a feminine orchestra, are enlivened by a Ben Blue brand of acrobatic fun which, in a woman, proves very much funnier than Washington's former haberdashery clerk makes it appear—with all due respect to "Artists and Models." Mr. Treacher I have found more amusing than in his present assignment, but that is largely due to the fact that it is impossible for him to be any more convulsing here than the lines with which he has been supplied—some of which are highly ridiculous, at that. Mr. Walburn does exceedingly well with a role that one somehow feels ought to have been played by W. C. Fields.

And then there is Tyrone Power in the costellar part, as Miss Henie's unsuspected royal love interest—unsuspected, that is to say, by everybody but the audience and all the world, except Miss Henie. Mr. Power here reveals a fine improvement over anything he heretofore has done for the cameras, playing with a complete and disarming naturalness and adding a touch of comedy on his own account now and again with a series of trick disguises.

This release, of course, will be completely reviewed on this page Saturday morning after its opening tomorrow at the Palace, but in the meantime it ought to be enough to say that in temperatures like these the snow scenes by themselves are worth the price of admission for their psychological effect alone.

* * * *

With "Lost Horizon" opening tomorrow on the screen at the Earle Theater as a popular priced attraction, it is interesting to observe what effect this "road show" picturization of the James Hilton novel has had upon its author's rating as a source of usable screen material. With the release of "Horizon," starring Ronald Colman, producers became suddenly Hilton conscious. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer pounced upon his "Good-Bye Mr. Chips," Alexander Korda has produced "Without Armor"—under the title of "Knight Without Armor," with Marlene Dietrich and Robert Donat—and Leslie Howard is preparing to produce and star in "And Now Good-Bye," on the London stage. That is what one substantial hit will do for you—provided you have what it takes and somebody finds it out.

* * * *

So along come another batch of "box office champions," this time for the month of July. The public choices at the ticket wickets of the country's key cities, as reported in the Motion Picture Herald of August 28, were about what Washington might have expected after having viewed and approved of all six of the winners.

The most profitable public reaction, then, was created throughout the land in July by "Wee Willie Winkie," "Saratoga," "Captains Courageous"—this one seems to be a perpetual winner, as it deserves to be—"Slave Ship," "The Singing Marine" and, of all things, "Mountain Music."

Produced and released by Paramount largely as an experiment to determine precisely how the public felt about hill-billy comedy, "Mountain Music," a symposium of all the "hokum" known to show business, has clicked in every theater in which it has been played. This, no doubt, has been due primarily to the presence in the cast of Bob Burns, The Post's humorous paragrapher, although Martha Raye, Terry Walker, Charles "Slim" Timblin, recently seen on the stage at Loew's Capitol, Spencer Charters and the rest of the principals probably had something to do with it. Not too much, but something.

* * * *

Gracie Barrie, one of the National Capital's favorite singing comediennes, returns to the Earle Theater stage to headline next week's vaudeville bill, beginning a week from tomorrow. Gracie came into Washington prominence 'way back yonder when Maxine Doyle decamped for Hollywood and the fillums after three years as mistress of ceremonies on Thirteenth street. She since has played many return engagements at the Earle and has soared in musical comedy and revue—"Strike Me Pink," George White's "Scandals," "The Show Is On" and the like. Gracie comes back "home" this time direct from a show-stopping engagement at one of the swankiest night spots in Saratoga, where she scored a tremendous hit while the racing season was on, running neck-and-neck, so to speak, with Sophie Tucker, Ben Bernie and others of the theater's thoroughbreds.

* * * *

Old familiar faces—most of them too young to be old—continue to bob up in the latest celluloid releases. We remarked upon some of them prominent in "Confession," with Kay Francis, and "The Life of Emile Zola," starring Paul Muni, if you recall, as seems unlikely.

In "Big City," opening tomorrow at the Capitol, there are some more. Those who watch this picture closely will have little difficulty in identifying Alice White, the former stenographer and script girl who made her screen debut with the late Milton Sills in "Sea Tiger," Regis Toomey and Mitchell Lewis.

Miss White last was in the Capital as a member of the cast of "Hey Diddle Diddle," at the Belasco, a better entertainment than its subsequent history might have seemed to indicate. Mr. Toomey has many able performances to his credit on both the stage and the screen and Mitchell Lewis is one of the cinema's bona fide old-timers, as those who can go back to the old silent days of such productions as "The Barrier," "The Bar Sinister," "The Sign Invisible," "Eagle of the Sea" and the likes of those will find it easy to remember.

Romance Is Born at Shangri-La

When "Lost Horizon," Columbia's picturization of the James Hilton novel, opens on the screen at popular prices at the Warner Brothers' Earle Theater tomorrow, the principal roles in the adventurous story's romance will be played by the able artists pictured above. They are, in the usual direction, Jane Wyatt, Ronald Colman, the star, and Margo. The film was "road-showed" on its earlier visit.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDLER

Hollywood, Sept. 1. — Settin' Around (Universal): Walking around this lot, I know how Alice must have felt in Looking Glass Land. Universal is the oldest of Hollywood's still-active studios—and it is also the youngest. Up on "the hill" stands the great cathedral built years ago for "The Hunchback of Notre Dame"—and, in its shadow, is being constructed the most modernistic set I have ever seen.

The ancient, ramshackle stages look just as they did 20 years ago—but inside their doors the latest methods of picture making are in use. Wherever I go here, I am conscious of the spirit of "Uncle Carl" Laemmle, hovering anxiously over the studio that was his pride—and I also am keenly aware of the driving, progressive spirit of Charles Rogers, big boss of the "New" Universal.

Rogers is one of the industry's most forward-looking men. When he took over the ownership of the "U," he started building for the future. Instead of spending millions for already established stars, he started recruiting new people—young people. He was determined to build his own stars, and one of the principal articles in his credo was "the world loves youth." Other producers considered him insane when he starred unknowns—and began to wonder about their own sanity when his pictures made millions. Already Rogers has made three of his youngsters popular favorites—and he has, in reserve, the most promising army of young college kids that ever threatened the screen's old-line favorites.

"Blonde Dynamite" is a remake of the famous prize-fighting epic, "The Iron Man," and the set today was overrun with famous pugs. William Gargan, who plays the fighter's manager in the picture has taken his role so seriously that yesterday he duplicated it in real life by buying the contract of Frank Rowsey, a contender for the light-heavyweight championship. I asked Bill "how come" and heard an explanation that is probably unique in the history of the prize ring. "You see," he told me, "this Rowsey is a good, clean kid with great possibilities. He's my friend and if I own his contract I can see to it that he gets a square deal." "And how much money will you make," I demanded. "Nothing," Bill said, "we've got some great fights lined up, but every cent that comes to me for my share will go into a trust fund for Frank. I'm doing all right in pictures!"

On the same set, I met Joe Smallwood, a light-heavyweight protege of Jack Dempsey. Joe plays an important role in the picture and thereby hangs a good laugh. Seems that they tried more than a dozen fighters for the part and failed to find one who was able both to remember his lines and time his actions in the ring to conform with the story requirements.

Finally they tested Joe and, very dubiously, signed him for the part. He played his big scene with Noah Berry, jr., today while I was on the set. They had to re-take it five times. But the re-takes were not the fault of Joe Smallwood. He was perfect in every one. It was Noah Berry, jr., the star of the picture, who forgot his lines and missed the timing of the scene!

On the "Westland Case" set Preston Foster, clad in a yachting cap and a sheepish expression, has just returned from a four-day fishing jaunt on the briny. Last week, after delivering a learned harangue on the importance of moon and tide conditions and predicting a record catch, he promised to bring everyone on the set "more fish than he could eat." But when he came in today, he was empty-handed.

Loew's CAPITOL FRIDAY

'Big' Pictures Continue Rule For Next Week

"Road Show" Attractions Prominent on Roster of Offerings.

"The Life of Emile Zola," Warner Brothers' superb picturization of a screen play by Norman Reilly Raine, Heinz Herald and Geza Herczog, with Paul Muni in the title role, will be held over next week at the National Theater. Muni's impersonation of Zola, the great French writer, marks his supreme achievement on either stage or screen. He is supported by a distinguished cast, led by Joseph Schildkraut, as Capt. Dreyfus; Robert Barrat, as Esterhazy; Robert Warwick, Louis Calhern, Montagu Love, Charles Richman, Donald Crisp, Gale Sondergaard, Gloria Holden, Gilbert Emery, Ralph Morgan and others too numerous to mention. The production is an impecable one, with flawless direction by William Dieterle. The picture is shown twice daily, at 2:30 and 8:30 p. m., with all seats reserved.

Frank Capra's $2,000,000 production for Columbia Pictures of James Hilton's "Lost Horizon" will be the screen attraction at the Earle Theater for the week beginning Friday. Presented as a "road-show" attraction in the National Theater last spring, this impressive subject now comes to the Earle screen at popular prices. Ronald Colman is the star, supported by Jane Wyatt, Edward Everett Horton, John Howard, Margo, H. B. Warner, Isabel Jewell, Thomas Mitchell, Eam Jaffe and others of note. The plane crash in the Himalayas is one of the most amazing scenes ever filmed. On the stage at the Earle next week the bill will be headlined by Paul Tisen and his Astor Hotel Orchestra, with the Legionnaires, nine singing stars, Harris and Yvonne Ashburn and other acts in support.

Spencer Tracy and Luise Rainer will be the pictured costars at Loew's Capitol Theater next week, beginning Friday, in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's production of "Big City," their first joint vehicle. The story is a romantic and amusing one, with a background of New York taxicab warfare and a climax that is one of the most stirring recently seen, engaging, as it does, the services of 15 champions of the prize fight and wrestling rings. Charles Grapewin, Janet Beecher, Eddie Quillan, Victor Varconi, Helen Troy, William Demarest, Andrew Tombes, John Arledge, Paul Harvey, Alice White and scores more head the supporting cast. Under the genial guidance of Johnny Perkins, held over, the stage will be headlined by Fifi D'Orsay, with Lew Parker & Co., heavily featured.

Joe Penner, Gene Raymond, Parkyarkarkas, Helen Broderick, Victor Moore and Harriet Hilliard are the stellar members of the cast of "The Life of the Party," the new screen comedy that comes to RKO-Keith's Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. Built for laughing purposes only, this subject is said to afford one of the comedy treats of the season. Six catchy song hits are introduced during the course of the action. The bill will be completed by the usual short-reel features and a new issue of the Pathe News.

"Thin Ice," the second screen production devised for the exploitation of Sonja Henie's almost unbelievable skill as an ice skater, will be the major offering at Loew's Palace Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. The leading male role in this lively subject is played by Tyrone Power, one of the foremost of the cinema's younger leading men and matinee idols. Arthur Treacher, Raymond Walburn, Joan Davis, Alan Hale and George Givot are prominent in the cast. Short subjects and "Events of the Day" will complete the bill.

"The Good Earth," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's imposing picturization of the novel by Pearl S. Buck, will be the screen feature at Loew's Columbia Theater for the week beginning tomorrow, with Paul Muni and Luise Rainer in the roles of Wang Lung and O-Lan. Already familliar to Washington audiences, this is recognized as one of the outstanding pictures of recent release.

Jack Benny, Ida Lupino, Gail Patrick, Ben Blue, Judy Canova, Martha Raye, Andre Kostalanetz and His Orchestra, Louis Armstrong and the Yacht Club Boys will resume their downtown popularity on the screen of the Metropolitan Theater for the week beginning tomorrow in "Artists and Models." Several of America's foremost artists and illustrators also take part in this glittering musical extravaganza, which already has enjoyed a successful week at the Earle.

For the week beginning Sunday, the Little Theater will present a revival of "Under Two Flags" as its chief screen attraction. Ronald Colman and Claudette Colbert are the costars of this picture, supported by Victor McLaglen, Rosalind Russell and a sterling cast. Ouida's popular novel has been given an elaborate production, with Nigel Bruce, C. Henry Gordon, Fritz Leiber, Herbert Mundin and John Carradine also importantly cast in leading roles.

Among the featured short subjects included in next week's bill at the Trans-Lux Theater, beginning tomorrow, will be "Going Places," with Lowell Thomas dissertating upon the beauties of Ireland; "Golf Magic" and "The Herring Round-Up in the North Sea." Complete world news coverage will, as usual, comprise an important part of the new program.

Next week's attraction at Col. Jimmy Lake's Gayety Theater, beginning Sunday, bears the illuminating title of "Scandolls" and will be found to embrace all of the attractive qualities of vaudeville, extravaganza and musical comedy. The stars of the troupe are Lillian Dixon, an authentic beauty, and Harry J. Connelly, former star of the two-a-day, famous for his creation of the comedy character of Wilbur, the prize "hick."

The three-day Labor Day holiday—Saturday, Sunday and Monday—will bring the season to a close at Glen Echo Park, where more than 50 amusements contribute to the gayety of the multitudes. The Crystal Pool will open each day at 9:30 a. m. On Saturday and Sunday all other amusements will begin operation at 1 p. m.; Labor Day, at noon. Preparations have been made for the accommodation of record-breaking crowds.

The Roadside Theater will present "Murder in the Red Barn" as its final offering of the season, beginning next Monday night. This is the third presentation of this roaring old melodrama by the Roadsiders. It will be embellished by the usual vocal entr'acte interpolations. Janet Coon, Margaret Osterwald, Fred Haskin and Eugene Kressin will appear in the pivotal roles and be heard in that luscious quartet, "She's More to Be Pitied Than Censured."

High Priestess of Woman's Wiles

When the high officials of that little village in Flanders found it impossible to cope with the invading army or a predatory and rival power, the women took the situation into their own hands and saved the day. They were led by the striking creature pictured above, who is that estimable actress, Francoise Rosay, gifted with both dramatic power and a fine sense of comedy. All this is in "Carnival in Flanders," revived on the Rialto screen yesterday.

THE PAPERS which reported those G-men raids on the Atlantic City resorts failed to mention the fact that among the customers caught in one of the fancier houses was a noted police commissioner . . . The raids aren't complete. Other arrests will be made . . . H. There will be a new special agent in charge of the New York division of the Federal Bureau of Investigation next week, replacing Rhea Whitley.

Mrs. Bernard Deutsch, widow of the former president of the Board of Aldermen, will be a candidate for the City Council . . . A reactionary commentator for one of the local papers soon will lose his New York outlet . . . Joseph Clark Baldwin, who was minority leader of the Board of Aldermen, is another who will announce his candidacy for the new City Council.

SIDNEY KINGSLEY, the Pulitzer Prize playwright, lives at an estate near the Ramapo River, at Oakland, N. J.—a few miles beyond the George Washington Bridge. Thus, when Mr. Kingsley lingers in Manhattan at too late an hour, the taxi problem is not inconsiderate, especially with the 50-cent bridge toll he'd have to pay, both ways. Recently, however, he discovered the solution . . . Ben Marden's Riviera has arrangements with the taxi companies to transport customers from any part of Manhattan to the Riviera, atop the Jersey Palisades, for $1.50. The management pays the difference in fare . . . And so when Sidney Kingsley wants to go home by cab, he taxies to the Riviera, for $1.50, enters that cafe for a drink, and then hires a Jersey cab to take him home.

TWO WEEKS AGO I reported that Eugene B. Dunkel, the artist, was searching for a model who resembles Czar Nicholas of Russia, so that he could complete the portrait which was left unfinished when the Czar was slain . . . Since that time hundreds of models have applied to Dunkel, who has called off the search and is returning to painting landscapes. This results from the appearance of a model, last Tuesday, who drew himself up to his full height and thundered: "Look like the Czar? Mister Dunkel—I AM the Czar!"

THE NEWSPAPERS front-paged the fact that Jeremiah T. Mahoney was hurt last week-end when a platform, from which he was to speak, broke. They reported also that Generoso Pope, the publisher, addressed that meeting and urged Mahoney's victory. But what hasn't been reported is that last Thursday Generoso Pope and Mayor LaGuardia dined together at Mori's . . . Jerry Finkelstein, editor of Politics, will bring out that magazine semimonthly, after the primaries . . . The producers of "Babes in Arms" have withdrawn their demands that the cast accept a one-third cut in salaries.

A NEW PLAY now being offered to producers, is entitled "Lanterns at Eve." The play is a dramatization of the life of Greta Garbo, and was written by George Mattern. Mattern wants to be the star—to play the role of Garbo . . . Richard Watts, the drama reviewer, and Richard Vidmer, the sports columnist, will exchange jobs for one day. Their respective pieces will bear the by-lines "Richards Watt" and "Richard Vidmers."

THE CURRENT ATTRACTION at a local theater is the amateur dance-team winners of the Harvest Moon ball. The ads also feature the presence of Mr. Ed Sullivan, an unassuming gentleman who styles himself "the famous Broadway columnist." He was present at the occasion when these amateur dance teams were selected for the signal honor of appearing with him on the stage . . . If Mr. Ed Sullivan had been paying more attention to his Broadway clubs, instead of to the art of being a ham, he might have discovered that one of those amateur dance teams now appearing with him worked last winter at the Harlem Uproar House on West Fifty-first street!

A STRANGE CEREMONY was enacted in an eastbound plane. It concerns Ted Husing's visit to Portland, Oreg., to cover the golf championships. Husing and a reporter decided that there was a woeful lack of pretty girls in that city, and so decided to present a medal to Portland's beauty. They went to the chamber of commerce, swiped a gold medal awarded many years earlier for a civic achievement, and had it silver-plated. Their search endured for six days, but to no avail. Somewhat disgusted, they entered the N. Y.-bound plane, and spied Betty Proctor, the plane's hostess. "I'm from Portland," she admitted. And in that plane, fiving over the Mississippi, the medal was duly and formally presented. They threw it at her!

Manville Seeking Ex-Wives' Advice

New Rochelle, N. Y., Sept. 1 (AP).—Tommy Manville, fiery asbestos millionaire and Broadway playboy, announced today that he was trying to arrange a meeting of the four women he married because he thought with their combined experiences they could figure out a suitable plan for cleaving him from his fourth spouse, blonde Marcelle Edwards, former showgirl.

"Marcelle wants a divorce and I want a divorce," the playboy reasoned.

Contrast Marks Feature Films At the Rialto

Grim Pictures of Russia Are Offset by a Gay Flemish Comedy.

The new bill opening at the Rialto yesterday comprised a double feature program—"Tsar to Lenin," released through Lenauer International Films and compiled and edited by Max Eastman; second, the ever delightful "Carnival in Flanders," winner of two national awards of merit for cinema par excellence. This latter was under the expert direction of Jacques Feyder.

"Tsar to Lenin" is an authentic photographic recording of outstanding incidents leading from the last years of the Czar's rule to the Red uprising under Lenin's leadership. These pictures have been culled from the late Czar's own private film library and gelatin records obtained by Russian, German and American war correspondents and photographers. They have been arranged in chronological order and the whole epic, accompanied by verbal narration, is a gripping drama of the not so glamorous side of human conflict. There are few flags flying and few people cheering the gallant warriors off to war.

Instead, faces lined with hunger and privation and forgotten corpses, lying in wasted fields to rot, form the nucleus of this picturization. One incident, particularly noteworthy, is the scene where a number of Bolsheviks are to be executed by their "White Army" captors. The unlucky prisoners, after having their shoes forcibly removed, are lined up three at a time at the edge of a pit and shot. One fellow keeps laughing hysterically through it all and dies in seeming mirth.

However, the sight of those bodies crumpling and jerking like marionettes, or an animated cartoon, provides little humor for the spectator. The photography is poor in spots, owing to the age of the film, but the complete film is engrossing and should be on the "must" list for the economically and politically minded.

Balanced by Comedy Classic.

The latter half of the entertainment is all on the side of levity. With the beauty of the Flemish landscapes so effectively presented by the camera serving as setting, "Carnival in Flanders" proves itself again one of the most robust and hilarious comedies to grace the silver screens in many months.

Terrorized by the proposed visit of the Spanish duke, representative of the nation which had invaded their domain a short time before and laid waste their wine, women and wealth, the Burgomaster of Boom, a little town in Flanders, is at a loss to avert another possible debacle. Calling his aldermen in conclave, he resorts to pretense of his demise in order to evoke sympathy and avert struggle. However, the ladies of the village decide to use their womanly wiles upon the Spanish soldiery in augmentation of their lords' and masters' scheme.

So, the men go in hiding, and the damsels bedeck themselves in their best and welcome the duke with their charms and the key to the city. The men stay overnight, the ladies are lovely, the duke distributes largesse and the audience is left to draw its own conclusions in one or two instances. The whole film is pure comedy, light and frothy, but beautifully done in the inimitable piquant French manner.

Francoise Rosay captures stellar honors as the Burgomaster's resourceful spouse, and Alerme as her pusillanimous husband gives a delightful performance. The subtitles are in English, but the pantomime and facial expression are so definite that one not conversant with French would experience little difficulty in understanding. Jean Murat, as the duke, and Louis Jouvet, portraying the chaplain, delineate convincing characters.

A Pathe News and organ selections by Pearl Hauer round out the entertainment. E. T. E.

Celanese Workers Clash in Maryland

By the Associated Press.

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 1.—Workmen abandoned their machines at the Celanese plant today to lean out of windows and watch a clash between two groups of employes at the big plant.

None was injured severely in the fighting, which forced a temporary suspension of work and resulted in suspension of negotiations for higher wages and a closed shop contract.

Neither union leaders nor company spokesmen would comment formally on the negotiations which have been in progress for several days, but said privately the conferences would not be resumed for an indefinite period.

'Right to Work' Held Peril in Case of Strike

By the Associated Press.

Williamstown, Mass., Sept. 1.—The "right to work," the Institute of Human Relations was told today, involved a moral responsibility toward political democracy.

The assertion of Rabbi Edward L. Israel, of Baltimore, that the "right to work" did not mean the right "to strike-break," was heard and applauded by several hundred institute members as they sat beneath the elm trees where Mark Hopkins, famous Williams College president, discussed philosophy with his students.

The "right to work" attitude in a strike, Rabbi Israel said, will simply throw industrial democracy into "chaos."

"The cry 'the right to work' is simply going to halt efforts for industrial peace and ultimately may lead to the destruction of democracy."

The Baltimore Jewish leader's stand was upheld by the Rev. J. W. R. Maguire, of St. Viator College, Kankakee, Ill., and labor representative of the Chicago Labor Relations Board under National Recovery Administration.

"When men are justified in going on strike," Father Maguire told his audience, "no man has the right to go to work.

"There is no need in this abundant world," Father Maguire said, "to furnish to labor the security of a job at decent wages and hours, so man can live as a man endowed in the image of God."

Asserting that labor had a right to organize, Father Maguire called the "outside union," the "only effective kind," and described a company union as "a sham, fraud and a delusion."

Stanley W. Root, director of the Regional Labor Relations Board of Philadelphia, asserted the "right to work" was a concern of organized society. He claimed that social security, unemployment insurance and the surplus profits tax were three ways in which the Government was attempting to handle the problem.

Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson

The Winning Guess.

Successful guesses as to the location of key cards require the closest analysis of the information that is in the guesser's possession. When the defenders have done no bidding, a guess may be indeed a "toss-up." But one or more bids on their parts, if properly dissected, will almost always prove to be the key to the mystery. Consider today's hand.

West, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.
Match point duplicate.

	♠ A Q J 9 6 ♡ 10 8 ◇ Q 10 6 3 ♣ Q 5
♠ 10 3 2 ♡ A Q J 7 5 2 ◇ 8 5 4 ♣ K	North West East South	♠ K 8 5 4 ♡ K 6 4 ◇ K J 7 ♣ J 10 6
	♠ 7 ♡ 9 3 ◇ A 9 2 ♣ A 9 8 7 4 3 2

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1♡	1♠	1 N T	2♣
Pass	Pass	2♡	3♣
Pass	Pass	3♡	Pass
Pass	Double	Pass	Pass
Pass

West's opening bid obviously was very light. But wit ha good major-suit, many first-rank duplicate players choose to open a hand on shaded honor values. It should be noted that having opened, West took no further action, leaving it to his partner to engage in the part-score battle. North's double of three hearts was, of course, extremely light, but this again was motivated by the fact that North's ear told him there was someting wrong with the bidding. In this he was quite right; a player who has opened the bidding will take additional action after his partner has shown distinct strength, except when the opening bid has been greatly shaded, or psychic.

North opened the club Queen, South won with the Ace, and returned the singleton spade. North cashed the Ace and continued with the spade Queen. Dummy's King covered and South ruffed. South decided there was a good chance that North had had a singleton club and therefore now returned the suit. Declarer discarded his remaining spade, then took out the trumps, ending in dummy, and discarded a losing diamond on dummy's remaining club. Ruffing a spade to re-enter his own hand, declarer was then faced with the guess in the diamond suit. He had already lost three tricks. If the diamond Ace was in North's hand, with the double, a lead to the King obviously would be required. If South had the Ace, dummy's Jack would be the winning play. Superficial reasoning on declarer's part would have resulted in defeat. North's double had, it is true, indicated the diamond Ace, but another line of thought made this very unlikely. North had shown up with five spades to the A Q J 9. Yet he had passed to South's two-club bid. Holding the Ace of diamonds in addition to this good spade suit, would he not have rebid his major-suit, particularly in a match point duplicate game? Certainly, a pass would have been inconceivable. This reasoning by declarer superseded the effect of North's final penalty double and pointed the way to the correct diamond guess. Declarer led to the Jack, and when South was forced to use his Ace, the doubled contract was fulfilled, for "top on the board."

Stop Chinese War, Cannon Urges Hull

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 1.—Bishop James Cannon, jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, suggested in a letter to Secretary Cordell Hull today the United States join with Great Britain, France and other "peace-loving" nations "to declare to Japan that her warfare against China must cease."

Should this demand go unheeded, he proposed that the great nations of the world sever diplomatic relations with Japan and lay an embargo on Japanese trade and monetary transactions with the co-operating nations.

Paralysis Gain Delays Chicago SchoolOpening

Pools Also Ordered Closed in Drive to Halt Disease Spread.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Sept. 1.—A sharp increase in infantile paralysis cases inspired prompt action to forestall the spread of the dread disease today.

The board of education ratified a health department order deferring the reopening of Chicago's schools until the current outbreak wanes. That meant 619,000 students, originally scheduled to resume classes Tuesday and Wednesday, would continue summer vacations indefinitely.

Forty-two swimming pools were closed. Boy Scouts at three camps were sent home.

These precautionary measures were effected after Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, reported 109 cases in the city during August, ten more than the previous high for the month recorded in 1916. Twenty-six fresh cases in the last four days—eight of them in the last 24 hours—emphasized the growing seriousness of the malady.

The death rate so far is 10 per cent.

Prevalence of the disease elsewhere in the Nation was noted by the United States Public Health Service. It reported a decided uptrend in the number of cases compared with 1936, but held there was no indictaion of a widespread epidemic.

A new and revolutionary "pusher" plane was flown yesterday for the first time by Lieut. Benjamin S. Kelsey, Air Corps, U. S. Army.

Accomodating a crew of five, the fighter has propellors placed in back of the wings in order to give a free field of fire and observation in front.

The performance flights, which were made at the Municipal Airport, Buffalo, N. Y., showed the plane to be highly satisfactory in performance, ease of control, and general flight characteristics.

The pusher, officially known as the XFM-1, carries six guns, more powerful armament than ever before carried on a fighter. It was designed to cope with giant bombers of the "flying fortress" type. Designers assert the new plane has sufficient speed to overhaul the largest bombing plane.

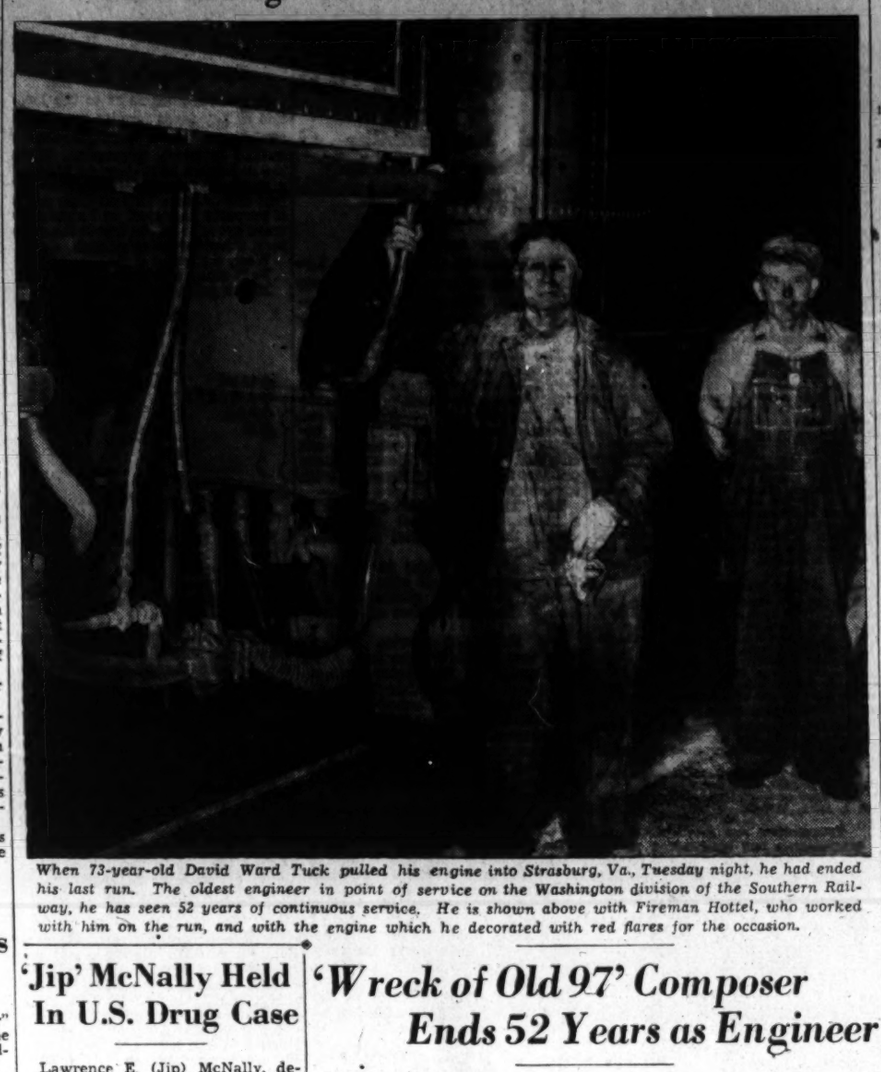
Veteran Engineer Pulls Throttle for Last Time



When 73-year-old David Ward Tuck pulled his engine into Strasburg, Va., Tuesday night, he had ended his last run. The oldest engineer in point of service on the Washington division of the Southern Railway, he has seen 52 years of continuous service. He is shown above with Fireman Hottel, who worked with him on the run, and with the engine which he decorated with red flares for the occasion.

'Jip' McNally Held In U.S. Drug Case

Lawrence E. (Jip) McNally, described by Washington detectives as one of a trio who attempted to kidnap the late Tom Moore, gambler, four years ago, was held at the First Precinct last night on a charge of violating the Federal narcotics act.

Arrested in his rooms yesterday by members of police narcotic squad and United States Treasury Department agents. McNally was on five years' probation for the attempted kidnaping.

'Wreck of Old 97' Composer Ends 52 Years as Engineer

Dave Tuck Makes Last Run for Southern in Blaze of Light and Shrieking Whistles; Plans Trip Behind Locomotive.

With whistles shrieking and flares covering his engine, Dave Tuck, veteran engineer, made his last run for the Southern Railway Tuesday night. Residents all along the run between Manassas and Strasburg, know Tuck, and when they saw the flares and heard the whistle blasts, knew the 73-year-old engineer was saying goodby.

Tuck has worked on the railroad since he was 12. For 52 years he has been an engineer on the Washington division, and there isn't a man on the line with a cleaner record, officials say.

For 30 years he sat at the throttle of a freight engine on the Strasburg-Harrison run. During that period he hung up an unofficial record for the number of carloads of apples he could haul with a single locomotive.

In Only One Wreck.

In all that time he had but one wreck, and he was exhonerated of blame on that occasion. The accident happened some 20 years ago on a single track bridge at Pugh's Run. He had started across the bridge when he saw coming toward him another train which had not followed its instructions to remain on a siding until Tuck got across.

Realizing a collision was inevitable, he dove out of the cab, breaking his shoulder. The crew of the other train was killed.

When the wreck of the 97 occurred 36 years ago, Tuck was one of the first to reach the scene. He and a friend, David George, were so impressed by the horror, he says, that they sat down on the track and composed that immortal ballad, "The Wreck of the Old 97." He wrote the music and George the words.

In later years they have tried unsuccessfully to collect royalties on the phonograph record sales of the song.

Tuck always has had a yen to get into show business, and every once in a while he has done it—on the side. He claims he showed the first motion picture seen in the Shenandoah Valley. It was many years ago, and people lacked sufficient faith in the new contraption to pay the entry fee.

Carnival Venture Fails.

Another time he put on an ice carnival in Strasburg. One of his productions was a modified burlesque show. The difficulty that time was that Strsburg didn't think it was modified enough.

Tuck was born in a Virginia town where there are so many Tucks that they call it Tucktown. He himself has 16 brothers. When he was 35 he married a 15-year-old girl. A year or so later she died, leaving him with one child. His second wife died last year.

Tuck plans to settle in Strasburg for the rest of his life. But before he settles, he wants to see what it feels like to ride behind the locomotive instead of in it. So he is going to get himself a pass and travel in style all over the country, looking up those of his 16 brothers who are still alive.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Men Readers Express Their Ideas on J. F. D.'s Lament That 'Good' Girls Lose Out in Modern Life.

COLUMNIST'S NOTE: The question, "Does it pay the modern girl to be good?" raised by J. F. D. in this column August 27, has brought a vast number of letters of comment. J. F. D., who described herself as a 22-year-old teacher in a private school in Washington, said her experiences had caused her to doubt that the old-fashioned ideals of morality, virginity and chastity still worked. She pointed out that the girls of her acquaintance who had clung to their ideals were "sitting at home waiting" while those who had relinquished these standards had married the pick of the matrimonial market. A surprisingly large number of letters of comment on J. F. D's predicament were from men. Today some of these masculine viewpoints are presented.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I would like to make a few comments in answer to the letter of J. F. D. I feel so sorry for her and other girls with the same perplexing problems. Though to me, it isn't perplexing. It is plain and it is simple—this question of relinquishing virginity before matrimony. Believe me when I say that all normal minded men admire and desire above all else in women that apparent rarity, chastity. Though men may pour out their philosophies that this is a world of candidness, of freedom and of intelligence, they know in their hearts that this is merely bait, that when the ultimate time comes for them to seek out a wife—someone they can love and respect for the next 30 or 40 years—they look for chastity.

* * * *

I am a man of 30 years. I have had my quota of dates. I have desired as all men have desired. I have lied as most men lie, and in the heat of a love affair have wilted the good intentions of a wondering miss. I can say now that there isn't one conquest gained by such persuasion that I don't regret. I wasn't fair to the girl nor was I honest with myself.

* * * *

Pre-marital relationships are always attended by fear and nervous apprehension. These elements overshadow any satisfaction attained and only increase the remorse and self-condemnation that inevitably follows. To the boy, perhaps, there is the selfish feeling of victory, but to the girl there remains nothing but self-pity and a horrible sense of guilt.

* * * *

These are my conclusions and discovered facts. I hope you will consider them, J. F. D., and realize the futility of relinquishing that which all decent men respect. J. M. G.

* * * *

Surplus of Women.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I was much interested in J. F. D.'s forthright letter. May I as a single man of 26 give my reactions?

* * * *

J. F. D.'s complaint is that she isn't making any progress in getting a husband. She lays this to the fact that she is too moral and that men prefer girls who will grant them liberties. Let's look at the picture from another angle. There are a disproportionately large number of women as compared to men in white-collar circles in Washington. You have commented on this fact often in your column. The bachelor in this city meets attractive, charming and cultivated girls wherever he goes. I hesitate to say too much on this point lest I be thought conceited. Suffice it to say that the single girl in Washington faces intense competition.

* * * *

Next comes the economic situation. An English book that I was reading recently said that formerly a young man could look forward to marriage and a home at the age of 21; now he was lucky if he could achieve that goal by 30. This statement is just as true of our country as it is of England. Marriage has become a luxury which many young men cannot afford.

* * * *

In closing, let me say that morals and ideals are not solely limited to the female sex. While I can speak only for myself and a few of my most intimate friends, we detest promiscuity and look forward to old-fashioned families with children as much as does J. F. D.

Cordially yours,
JOHN R.

* * * *

A Married Man's View.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I wonder if J. F. D. thinks that all men are alike? I know different. I am 29, married very happily for the last seven years and I have never had the slightest notion or ambition to seduce a girl, never did in my pre-married days and never will. If J. F. D. finds that all men she happens to go out with are inclined that way, why does she go with them? In my opinion J. F. D. is no more a virgin than myself, as she has already committed adultery in her heart by the mere fact that she is griping about the other girls and their relations to men.

* * * *

It may interest J. F. D. to know that I have read the article "The Case for Chastity" by Margaret Culkin Banning and would advise her to follow its advice. It is not the educated who scoff at this article, it is only the man or woman who is sexually immature who does not know the value of sex relations and, may I say, spiritual feeling of complete fidelity.

* * * *

I may say in all sincerity that I think J. F. D. an unfit person to teach Sunday school and sing in a church choir, as it is evident she is not interested in her church relations but is more concerned about her sex life. She is evidently on the outlook for sex relations in the men she goes out with and, conscious of it or not, she incites the desire in them.

* * * *

I do not wish to give the impression I have not been tempted by the sex adventurer. I have, but have been strong enough to stand by my guns so to speak and remain clean. I am not sorry for a moment that I led a clean life before marriage and I certainly have no cause to do otherwise now. If J. F. D. "goes over" it will be because she is a coward and has never been the virgin she brags herself to be. She is afraid of sex and its outcome, yet is howling because she lacks its fulfillment. Some day she will meet a man who will make her see the truth, but I wonder if she will recognize a chaste man when she meets him. PAUL.

Tomorrow's Letters.

Wives who are unhappy because of regret over past mistakes will reply tomorrow to the question "Does it pay to be good," raised by J. F. D. in a letter August 27. In reply to the letter, which questioned the working value of the single moral standard for women, the conductor of this column asked for comment by married persons. A vast number of letters has been received.

Joan Tries Needle-Point.

Her most recent creation is an afghan designed especially as a gift for the Gary Cooper heir, or heiress, as the case may be.

The shawl will be suitable for either a girl or a boy, since it is pink on one side and blue on the other. A tiny floral design is worked across the entire surface, and the edges are bound in satin ribbon.

Night and Day in the New Fall Interpretation

A basic black evening dress (right), topped by one of the popular short, chunky fur coats, in this instance the sleeves serve as a method of tying the garment about the neck. A coat suitable for all daytime and evening occasions. The tweed coat, one of the new fall formalized spectator sports models, is made glamorous by the brown fur collar and tuxedo front.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

New York, Sept. 1.

REPORTS are still trickling into town from Dennis, Mass., where that ambitious and talented actress-director, Eva LaGallienne, has just gone to bat with the Bard's Prince of Denmark. It was the first time a woman had tackled "Hamlet" in this country since Bernhardt played him here at about the century's turn. And the best Eva gets from many of the critics is credit for a hard try.

ALICE HUGHES.

Eva went to work with the smart plan of playing the doleful one as a youth of 19, but one critic says he emerged from her portrayal as a lad of 14, shrill of voice and ineffectual when the great role calls for vigor of attack. Hamlet may have been a dizzy stripling, but he certainly wasn't an adolescent.

LaGallienne has come very far since she first dazzled us in "Liliom" years ago, and at the head of her famous Civic Repertory Theater here played many great roles well. And she's always trying. A few years ago she essayed another youthful male role—Napoleon's young son in "L'Aiglon"—and I thought her pretty bad. Now comes some rather dismal verdicts on her "Hamlet."

Eva's a brilliant woman of the theater—and perhaps she'd better stick to skirted roles! After all, you don't catch our leading actors tinkering with Lady Macbeth or Portia. It is quite possible that Mr. Shakespeare intended that the male parts in his shockers should be played by men.

* * * *

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Lita Grey Chaplin, once the wife of Charlie and now prettier than ever, turned up here the other day, all smiles and affability for the press. Looking at the girl, still in her twenties, it's hard to believe that her two Chaplin sons are 12 and 11 now, and students at a California military school. She was married to the great comic at 15!

* * * *

Our school board examiners, busy trying out teachers for the onrushing season of booklearning, turn out to be a broad-minded lot. Their chairman, Dr. Van Denburg, says an applicant may pronounce it either "tom-aht-oh" or "tom-ate-oh" and still rate a job. Nice work, Doc, but be sure you assign the "broad a" type to the right neighborhood, that's all!

* * * *

The movie, "Dead End," had a nifty opening here on a drizzling night, but the usual hundreds clogged the sidewalk before the Rivoli Theater to see the notables and the rest of us fight our way in. Its star, Sylvia Sidney, turned up in the flesh. And if you think there aren't such streets as the pictured one here, a tenement on one side and a palace on the other, you just let me take you on a tour of the Fifties along the East River front!

I'm a little confused by the news that Emily has completely rewritten her "Etiquette" for its new edition which must be number 5,000. Don't tell me, Emily, that the proper fork has been shifted two places, or that correct behavior has altered so radically! I've been dreading it for years. Say it isn't so!

Elegance and Luxury Featured By Fall Clothes Fashion Clinic

By Ethel Ehlen.

The Post Fashion Editor.

THE members of the Hecht Co. who have returned recently from the Amos Parish Fashion Clinic in New York, where they learned all about the fall and winter fashion picture, gave the other employes the benefit of their "schooling" at a style presentation Monday night. Clothes for all occasions were displayed by the mannequins, accompanied by explanations and descriptions by members of the store. The 1900 influence, interpreted in a "million dollar look," was the theme throughout the entire showing from active sports costumes to those for gala formal evenings.

It is to be a season of elegance and luxury, featured by rich materials, jewelry, eathers and furs, accented by a molded silhouette and a corseted waistline, the show disclosed. Only the best from the 1900 period has been taken for the 1937 clothes, it was explained, and gaudiness has been changed to smartness in the styling of the current mode. The charmers of the turn of the century swished around in feather boas and beruffled skirts—today, the chic woman interprets this luxury trend by gorgeous silver fox scarfs and slim skirts. The same idea in a modernized manner.

Everything has a formal air, stressing femininity. Even the spectator sports clothes have been formalized in their styling. For instance, tweed coats with tuxedo fronts of fur, or nubby woolen coats with small collars and flowing sleeves of rich fur, are the latest toppings for suits and sheer woolen frocks of dark or brilliant color tones. The three-piece suit, consisting of jacket, skirt and matching topcoat, trimmed lavishly with fur or unadorned, was exploited as one of the most important items in the 1937-38 wardrobe. The short chubby fur coat, so versatile that it may be worn to school, business, football games, or over the formal evening dress, with equal appropriateness, was shown in numerous fur interpretations. The "dressmaker" touch was noted throughout the entire presentation, including dresses, coats and suits.

For afternoon as well as evening, there were numerous touches of gold (kid trimmings and gold jewelry); rhinestones in pins and clips; bracelets, colorful scarfs, feminine and formal-looking handbags of soft materials; veils, sequin jackets, chic gloves. Black, it was stated, leads the color parade for fall and winter, with various tones of blue, green and brown and a popular new deep red shade, sharing honors about equally. Color contrasts were exploited; black with bright color; brown with green; red with medium blue; beige with brown. The importance of accessories was demonstrated in week-end costumes which could serve for a number of occasions, by a mere quick change of accents; this applied to both daytime and evening clothes.

PLEASANT HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

WE'VE JUST finished a coast-to-coast trip in our car seeing America in a very big way. And having the time of our life . . . even if it was a sort of busman's holiday! Because the part we enjoyed most was sightseeing, but not the usual kind. We let the rest of the family oh and ah over mountains and desert. We found our thrills in seeing so many types of homes. And thinking how individual are the homes of each section . . . we've exclaimed our way across Europe many times, thrilled with the charm of the houses in various countries. But in America (particularly the Middle West) most of us are far too used to the domestic architecture to appreciate how distinct and native and altogether pleasing it is.

We thought it was a real privilege to stay at tourist homes in many parts of the country . . . they were so clean and cool and comfortable and so heartily and pleasantly American. Make no mistake about it . . . that's the real way to see America.

We made a lot of surreptitious notes of decorative ideas we saw worked out by ladies here and there. Not ideas that take a young fortune either . . . but ideas that will work in the average home where the furniture comes from here, there and everywhere. Such as:

A SMART LAMP SHADE—Made by an ingenious lady who started with a plain parchment shade bought in a store. She stretched a fine lace curtain net over this, blind-stitched the vertical seam and finished the horizonal edges with braid.

A PRETTY ROOM—Made out of leftovers. The wallpaper had a white ground with a floral design in blue and deep beige. Deep beige painted iron bed and beige painted chest of drawers. Beige curtains, beige candlewick spread, beige chintz dressing table skirt, rag rugs of blue and beige.

DECORATIVE CURTAINS—Made of perfectly plain white marquisette with flower pots and flowers appliqued on in checked gingham. The same idea we saw worked out in portieres—of basket-weave material in natural color and finished with appliqued medallions cut out of a fruit-patterned cretonne. The hems were run in yarn repeating the colors in the cretonne medallions.

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

Typhoid Vaccination.

LAST SUMMER, while traveling abroad with a small party, I found by inquiry that about a fourth of them had not been vaccinated against typhoid fever.

This meant that, although in general one may have every confidence in the municipal water supply in England and France, I was compelled to insist, since I was responsible for the health and good conduct of the party, that these unvaccinated members must drink nothing but bottled water. This was because we were traveling in the countryside, eating in small towns and stopping at small inns for tea or refreshment. These small inns were frequently placed by the side of a stream, with the nearest settlement a small village which could hardly be expected to have an adequate health department.

Precautions Necessary.

Precautions under such circumstances are still necessary, even though typhoid fever is a disappearing disease. Even yet autumnal typhoid fever is due largely to infection contracted at "health" resorts, and has therefore been called a vacation disease.

The decrease in typhoid fever is largely due to its decrease in large cities. And such cities do well to take adequate precautions. The law holds them just as responsible for adequate typhoid control as they are for adequate police control or adequate protection at grade crossings.

This is clearly set forth in a court decision which involved the city of Mankato, Minn. The drinking water here was furnished by four artesian wells, and during a flood in 1908 the sewer was allowed to back into them. A typhoid fever epidemic resulted and Delia McKeever and Kate Flanagan, administratrices of the estates of their husbands, who had died in the epidemic, sued the city of Mankato for damages. The city demurred on the grounds that as a government it was exempt because it was carrying out a government project. The Supreme Court of Minnesota held that "the State is liable if negligence can be proved."

Typhoid Not an Accident.

This view that typhoid fever is not an "accident" but a piece of negligence is a far step from the time when an epidemic was considered an act of God for which nothing could be done.

The Mankato epidemic just described illustrates also that typhoid fever is all around us still ready to start in with the least contamination of the drinking water supply. There had probably been no typhoid in Mankato for some time, yet when the sewage from that healthy community backed into the drinking water supply, typhoid germs were present in abundance.

This is seen also in the current year's report on typhoid in the large cities of the United States. While the progress is excellent, and the death rate the lowest of record, still there were twenty-four cities with no deaths from typhoid in 1935 and only eighteen in 1936.

Home Money Making Pursuits Offer Opportunity to Women

By Genevieve Reynolds.

OPEN a "Foot Grooming Parlor" if you are one of the thousands of housewives with plenty of spare time and a "yen" to make extra money at home.

This is one of the many methods suggested by Elita Wilson in her recently published book, "99 New Ways for Women to Make Money at Home."

She says, "Many girls have become foot conscious due to toeless sandals for both beach and evening wear. Toe-nail painting is especially popular in summer, but many people would like the foot manicure throughout the winter. You can do all your work in one room of your home, for your equipment will be simple and inexpensive. It should be the same as for manicuring, except that you should seat your client in a chair on a raised platform, bringing the foot on a comfortable level for you to work. Don't do any cutting; that work is for a chiropodist."

If running a "Foot Grooming Parlor" may be entirely foreign to your likes and aptitudes, then one answer to that, according to Mrs. Wilson, is a "Tots Laundry and Diaper Laundry." You can make a specialty of laundering clothes for babies and small children at a good profit. The price you charge will depend upon your locality and the financial circumstances of your customers.

Two young boys, college graduates, faced with the problem of finding jobs during the depression started a diaper laundry in New York on a small scale. They have built this up to a large profit-gaining business. Each baby's diapers should be washed separately, for sanitation is of the utmost importance. Prices may be determined by the number of diapers.

Mrs. Wilson further points out in her book that even the raising of fishworms can be turned into a money-making proposition by selling the worms and flies to fishermen or sporting goods stores. To raise fishworms, put 25 to 50 worms in a small plot of loose earth about 4 by 6 feet in area. Twice a week dump your dishwater on the plot and occasionally add a bucket of fresh earth in which some corn meal and coffee grounds have been mixed. You might charge from 25 cents a hundred to 25 cents a dozen, depending upon the neighborhood rates.

Now that everyone is becoming health conscious, people are getting more and more food concerned. One popular way to make money in Washington or any other city is to have "A Health Food Shop." You can do every bit of the work in your house or apartment. A ground floor apartment, with a neat sign in the window will bring trade.

Some of the health foods that can be made and sold, according to Mrs. Wilson's plans, are: "Cottage cheese, pure fruit juices, hard candies, raw vegetables salads with mineral oil dressing, coleslaw, grated carrots, whole wheat, nut, rain, date bread, doughnuts, fig and date cookies, strained vegetable juices."

With the exception of the candy, bread and cookies, all the above mentioned foods are raw. "In featuring health foods, you must carry out the idea in your wrappings and use oil papers plentifully to line containers. The food must not touch anything. Be sure that whatever room you do your cooking and selling in is spotless," insists Mrs. Wilson in advocating this method of money making.

Whatever your ability, the author maintains that you can find some niche in which to work that will bring in extra money. However, she cautions her readers to choose a line that is practical and different.

Some other of the "99 New Ways for a Woman to Make Money at Home" suggested by Mrs. Wilson are: "A Girl's Vacation Home," "The White Elephant Shops," "Shirt Hospitals," "Doll House Real Estate," "Decorated Novelties," "Convalescent Homes," "Making Clothes for Stout Women," "Children's Parties and Sewing Classes," "Collecting Bills," "Embroidery, "Agency for Amateurs," "Christmas Shopping and Gift Wrapping," "Tennis Courts" and "Sick Room Supplies."

Diet to Wear New Styles

HOW YOU HATE to squeeze into those matronly models. Then why do it?

By going on a low-calory diet for a few weeks you easily rid yourself of the poundage that stands between you and youthful, becoming clothes. You can lose 2 pounds a week, 10 pounds in 5 weeks!

No starving. Just substitute low-calory foods, rich in pep-giving vitamins and minerals, for fattening high-calory foods.

For your mid-shopping pick-up, turn down a chocolate soda—375 calories—and order a medium glass of orange juice—only 100 calories. Avoid such tidbits as doughnuts, for they have 200 calories each; delicious molasses cookies have only 33 calories each.

And don't think every salad's a reducer. One serving of tuna fish and egg salad, with 2 tablespoons mayonnaise, has 395 calories. But an autumn salad—diced apples, raisins, shredded cabbage, lettuce and mineral oil dressing—has only 60.

As for your regular meals, you needn't skip a course. Here's a typical low-calory meal you'll enjoy as is; with larger portions and a high-calory trimming or two it will be just right for your non-dieting family: 1 medium glass tomato juice, 1 medium slice boiled ham, ⅓ cup escalloped potatoes, ½ head lettuce and mineral oil dressing, ½ cup coffee jelly, 1 tablespoon thin cream. Only 450 calories.

Miss Anne Livingston Eustis Engaged To Grenville Emmet, Jr., of New York

Mrs. Eustis and Daughter to Return to Capital. Next Week.

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

While September gets under way in a whirl of rice and orange blossoms, bulletins of still other weddings to come break into the spotlight as the biggest society news of the season. That, at least, is the case regarding Mrs. William Corcoran Eustis' announcement today of the engagement of her daughter, Miss Anne Livingston Eustis, to Grenville Temple Emmet, jr., of New York.

Mrs. Eustis and her daughter have been spending the summer at Woods Hole, Mass., but will be back in Washington some time next week. Miss Eustis attended Foxcroft School, Middleburg, and made her debut here in 1933. At that time her family lived in the spacious residence on Rhode Island Avenue that was a center of social activity for a number of years.

Last fall, a smaller residence on Twenty-eighth and Q streets in Georgetown became the Eustis home. This handsome house formerly was occupied by the late Minister to Canada, Warren Delano Robbins and his family.

Ancestor Founded Corcoran Gallery

Miss Eustis is the daughter of the late William Corcoran Eustis and is a niece of the late Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock, of Westbury, Long Island, and Aiken, S. C. On her father's side she is descended from W. W. Corcoran, who built and endowed the Corcoran Gallery of Art.

On her mother's side, she is the granddaughter of the late L. P. Morton, vice president of the United States and one-time Governor of New York, and of Mrs. Morton who was Anna Livingston Street. The Rhode Island avenue house, which Mrs. Eustis gave up and which had a long tradition of hospitality, was once the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morton, Mrs. Eustis' parents.

Mr. Emmet is the son of Grenville T. Emmet, formerly United States Minister to the Netherlands and now United States Minister to Austria, and of Mrs. Emmet who was Miss Pauline Ferguson, of St. Paul. Both Mr. and Mrs. Emmet have an extensive circle of friends in the Capital. Last winter, she came to Washington to attend Mrs. Roosevelt's party for the "Gridiron Widows" and to visit for a few days. Later, she and her husband went to The Netherlands to attend the wedding of Princess Juliana and Bernard Zu Lippe-Biesterfeld.

Descendant of Irish Patriot

The Emmets, are descended from Thomas Addis Emmet, brother of Robert Emmet, the noted Irish patriot. The bridegroom-to-be is the brother of Misses Pauline and Patricia Emmet, and is the grandson of the late Richard Stockton, of New Rochelle.

Formerly a student in St. Paul's School and Harvard University, he is a graduate of the Law School at Columbia University and is practicing law in New York in the firm of Emmet, Marvin & Martin. He bolngs to the A. D. Club of Harvard and the Harvard Club of New York.

The wedding date has not been announced.

MISS ANNE LIVINGSTON EUSTIS, whose engagement to Grenville Temple Emmet, jr., son of the United States Minister to Austria and Mrs. Emmet, is announced today by her mother, Mrs. William Corcoran Eustis.

Two Weddings of Note Usher In Fall Season of Romance

Miss Virginia Pope Bride of Mr. Kreuzburg; Miss Mary Crowley and Edgar Ford Married at St. Gabriel's.

THE NEW MONTH was ushered in yesterday to the tune of wedding bells which rang for at least half a dozen couples in the Capital.

Two of the outstanding marriages were that of Miss Virginia Henshaw Pope, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Pope, of Washington, to Richard Thomas Kreuzburg, of Silver Spring, and that of Miss Mary Katherine Crowley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Crowley, to Edgar M. Ford.

Miss Pope, widely-known Capital golfer, was married at 4:30 o'clock in the National City Christian Church, the Rev. R. H. Miller officiating. Lighted candles shed a soft glow over the palms and white gladioli massed at the altar as the bride walked down the aisle while Sherman Kreuzburg, brother of the bridegroom, played the wedding march.

The bride's costume was a white satin gown made with long, tight sleeves puffed at the shoulder, and a high waistline, and was trimmed with Alencon lace. The tulle veil fell from a Juliet cap of silk net. The bride carried a shower bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Achenbach Is Maid of Honor

Miss Helen Achenbach, of Rockbridge, Ill., served as maid of honor, wearing a shell pink slipper satin frock trimmed with aqua velvet. The bridesmaids were Miss Gloria Rodgers, of New York, a cousin of the bride; Miss Lucia Kelso, of Carlinville, Ill., and Miss Margaret Clark, of Chevy Chase. They wore frocks of peacock slipper satin trimmed in shell pink velvet ribbon. All the attendants wore shoulder length pink veils caught with a bunch of pink flowers at the top, and carried pink gladioli.

Dr. H. Franklin Kreuzburg was his brother's best man, and the ushers were John Shinn, George Edwards, Richard Beers, John Holzberg, Harvey Kreuzburg, another brother of the bridegroom, and Midshipman David H. Pope, brother of the bride.

After a trip of two weeks to Bretton Woods, N. H., Mr. Kreuzburg and his bride will reside in Silver Spring. Both are graduates of Western High School. Mrs. Kreuzburg attended George Washington University, where she was a member of Pi Beta Phi Sorority, and last year taught physical education at the National Cathedral School for Girls. Mr. Kreuzburg attended Georgetown University and Georgetown Law School and is a member of the Roadside Theater and Civic Theater groups.

Miss Crowley Wed To Edgar Ford

St. Gabriel's Church, on Grant Circle, was the scene of the wedding yesterday at 9 a. m. of Miss Crowley and Mr. Ford. The Rev. William Sweeney performed the ceremony, which was followed by a reception in the Rose Room of the Washington Hotel.

The bride's only attendant was her sister, Miss Kathleen Janet Crowley. Philip N. Crowley was best man, and the ushers were Harvey C. Donaldson, John Victry, Robert A. Pugh and James L. Norris.

After a motor trip through New England and Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Ford will reside at 829 Quincy street. The bride attended George Washington University, where she was a member of Kappa Delta Sorority, and Mr. Ford attended George Washington law school and Columbus law school. He is a member of Sigma Delta Kappa and the District Bar Association, and was recently appointed assistant chief clerk of the Department of Justice.

Miss Rich Wed To Rev. Mr. Bell

Of interest to Congressional circles in the Capital was the wedding yesterday in Woolrich, Pa., of Miss Elizabeth Rich, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Robert Fleming Rich, to the Rev. Sheridan Watson Bell, jr., son of the Rev. and Mrs. Sheridan Watson Bell, of Buckhannon, W. Va. The bridegroom's father performed the ceremony, which took place at 4:30 o'clock in the Methodist Episcopal Church.

White gladioli, Boston ferns and palms were the setting for the wedding. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a cream-colored satin gown with a collar of rosepoint lace which belonged to her great-grandmother. The gown had a train and veil of Indian lace embroidered with lilies of the valley, and the bride carried a bouquet of these flowers mingled with white roses.

Mrs. Albert Butterfield, who served as matron of honor, was gowned in blue marquisette made with a bolero and trimmed in matching ruching. She wore a corn-flower blue coronet and carried peach-colored gladioli.

The other attendants were Miss Margaret Shaw Rich, the maid of honor, and the Misses Catherine Ann Rich, Julia Rich, Jean Sykes and Mrs. Donald Orwig. A reception at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony. Mrs. Rich wore blocked silk with an all-over design of hand-painted roses and a black velvet hat with a veil, and the bridegroom's mother was gowned in amethyst velvet with a matching turban.

ABOUT THE TOWN

With Dudley Harmon

TWO TRIPS TO South America in one year are plums which are apt to fall into the laps of people who work for the State Department. The lucky man in this case is Richard Southgate, chief of the Conference Division, who sets sail on Saturday to attend the Inter-American Technical Aviation Conference at Lima, Peru.

He will be accompanied by Mrs. Southgate, who has been summering at Hyannis, on Cape Cod, where the head of the family joined her for two weeks last month. They will depart from New York for Panama, and will fly from there to Lima. Also representing the State Department at the conference will be Warren Kelchner and Sydney B. Smith from the Protocol Office.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Southgate went to the Peace Conference at Buenos Aires last year. They will return the middle of October to their house on Kalorama Circle.

Mr. Southgate, as chief of conferences, is apt to attend more such gatherings than most people, even in the State Department. His job includes the ticklish assignment of arranging for meetings on these trips, seeing that dignitaries are met at the right time by the right people, and who is seated next to whom. He used to be chief of both protocol and conferences, until they were split into two divisions, of which George T. Summerlin now heads one.

On the last day of the conference Mr. Southgate will no doubt witness the aerial demonstrations being planned in connection with the dedication of a monument to the Peruvian aviator, Jorge Chavez. The United States will be represented in these exciting maneuvers by the U. S. S. Ranger, an aircraft carrier, which will have on board 78 planes. The carrier will be accompanied by two destroyers, the U. S. S. Worden and the U. S. S. Hull.

THEODORE OLIVIER and Paul Daniels quietly put one over on many of their Washington acquaintances when they were married last Saturday, as no date for the wedding had been made known. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Roaul Olivier, in Lafayette, La., and the announcements have just begun to reach Washington.

The new Mrs. Daniels served as hostess and secretary for her uncle, Representative Mouton, of Louisiana, and made her home with him in Washington. Mr. Daniels is with the Latin-American division of the State Department, and has about one more year of service here before being assigned to a new post.

After October 1 Mr. and Mrs. Daniels will take up residence in an apartment at 2540 Massachusetts avenue.

EVERYBODY SEEMS to be house hunting like mad. The Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. George Messersmith have leased the home built and for many years occupied by Viscount "Pete" de Sibour, at Q and Twenty-ninth streets. They have been residing at the Carlton Hotel since Mr. Messersmith arrived from Austria, where he was minister, to take up his new duties in the department. Mrs. Messersmith, who is in Delaware, is expected to join him today or tomorrow.

Edwin Smith, member of the National Labor Relations Board, and Mrs. Smith, have signed on the dotted line for a house on N street in Georgetown. They formerly lived in Alexandria.

The Counselor of the Netherlands Legation and Countess van Rechteren Limperg are on the trail of a new home. The Countess will return later this month or early next month from Bluemont, where she has been summering.

Miss Parker and Mr. Needham Are Married at All Souls'

IN A SETTING OF green palms, white gladioli and dahlias, Miss Marion Elizabeth Parker was married at 4:30 o'clock to William Charles Henking Needham at All Souls' Unitarian Church. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lovell Hallett Parker, of the Kennedy-Warren, and Mr. Needham is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles William Henking Needham and the foster son of Miss Carrie E. Needham, of Washington.

The Rev. Maurice S. White officiated. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of antique ivory satin with a standing collar of renaissance lace, a long white tulle veil and a shorter one of the same material. She carried gardenias.

Mrs. A. W. Gilliam, her sister's matron of honor, wore a frock of pale rose moire with a satin stripe of the same color and carried a bouquet of sun-glow roses and delphinium. The maid of honor was Miss Jean Parker, another sister, who wore hyacinth blue moire made like that of the matron of honor, and carried a similar bouquet.

The other attendants were Miss Gertrude W. Chestnut, of Hyattsville; Mrs. Raymond J. Goodhart, of Colonial Village, and Miss Roberta Veverka, of Medina, Ohio, flower girl. The latter wore white tulle over rose taffeta and the bridesmaids were gowned like the matron of honor.

Mason Chandler Brunson, of Baltimore, was best man, and the ushers were A. W. Gilliam, Ralph Irwin Williams and J. Marshall Mathias, all of Washington.

After a wedding trip to New York and New England, Mr. and Mrs. Parker will live in Baltimore.

Among the pre-nuptial parties was a champagne supper following the rehearsal Tuesday evening, with Mr. and Mrs. Paul as hosts at their Spring Valley home. Guests in addition to the wedding party were Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Seib, of Allentown, Pa.; Miss Carrie E. Needham, Mr. and Mrs. Granville Borden, of San Francisco, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Ryan, of New York.

Sewing bees are becoming as popular today among members of the Zeta Tau Alpha Alumnae Chapter as they were in grandmother's girlhood. The chapter's sewing circle is one of its most important activities in connection with its support of Health Center, the national fraternity's philanthropic project in Currin Valley, Va.

Little mountain children there have bright new dresses and aprons to wear to school and gay little calico toys to play with because the young women of Zeta Tau Alpha in Washington and elsewhere get together for sewing bees summer and winter and yearly send big Christmas boxes to the nurse at Health Center filled with toys and clothing. Finishing touches are put on the gifts at the December meeting of the chapter at which all the garments are assembled and packed.

Center Started as Tribute to Founders

Health Center was established in Virginia, the home State of the fraternity, as a tribute to its founders. Operations were begun in December, 1928, when the first nurse was sent into the valley. A small white house, which had been lent for the purpose, served as headquarters. There was need for a permanent building, however, and this was given by Bertha Cruse Gardner, then grand president of the fraternity. She donated the funds for its erection on land which was the gift of the Rev. Kenneth Killinger, mountain missionary.

October 10, 1929, Health Center was opened, and dedicated by Zeta Tau Alpha to "the service of God, the people of Currin Valley and the surrounding territory as a permanent memorial to the founders of the fraternity." The cottage is in the mountains, 3 miles from Marion, Va.

The mountain people, at first shy, have now learned to rely on Health Center and the registered nurse who is always on duty there. They also know the car with "Z. T. A." on the door, which bumps along over the primitive, rocky trails as far as any car could go. When roads are impassable by motor, the nurse goes by foot over the winding mountain paths to minister to the sick and needy.

Center Expands Its Usefulness

While Health Center was intended originally to aid the people in Currin Valley, its service has spread throughout Smyth County and to parts of Grayson. The nurse has assisted with the inspection of children in isolated mountain schools, helped organize parent-teacher associations; made home nursing visits to all types of patients and has taken them in the Z. T. A. car to the doctor, dentist, hospital, and clinics.

The Washington Alumnae Chapter not only sends the children's clothes its members make but also collects old clothing several times a year to be sent to the nurse in charge. This is sold rather than given to the mountaineers at prices of from 10 cents to $3, and money from these sales is used for the work at Health Center.

The Washington alumnae also have one meeting designated as food day, on which members contribute to a fund for stocking the food shelves of Health Center. Another is book day, on which all kinds of books are brought for the Health Center library, and a third, seed day, when money is contributed and sent to the district for the purchase of seeds for the fields and gardens of those in need.

Mrs. Laurie Hess, of Beta Chapter at George Washington University, is chairman of the philanthropic committee and former president of Alpha Province Officers of the Alumnae Chapter include Mrs. Rene H. Reixach, president, who is of Beta Kappa Chapter at Newcomb College, Tulane University, in New Orleans, La.; Miss Frances Fauntleroy, vice president of Kappa Chapter at the University of Texas and Beta Alpha at George Washington, here; Miss Elizabeth McGehee, corresponding secretary, from Delta Chapter, Randolph-Macon Women's College, in Lynchburg; Miss Esther Arneson, Alpha Omega Chapter, of Ohio Wesleyan; Mrs. Eugene Seitz, treasurer, of Beta Alpha Chapter, at George Washington, and Miss Adelaide Woodley, historian, of Beta Alpha Chapter.

The Alumnae group here is comprised of members of 25 different chapters, from all parts of the country. Many of them have been away this summer on vacations or contemplate going, but those who remain in the Capital continue their philanthropic work. Miss Fauntleroy has just returned from a two months' tour of Europe; Mrs. John Warlick, Alpha Province president, after attending the national Zeta Tau Alpha convention in Swampscott, Mass., visited in New Jersey and Tennessee. She and Mrs. Reixach plan to go to Health Center for the Founders' Day services on October 15.

Mrs. B. A. Arneson, Miss Esther Arneson, Mrs. W. Paul Briggs, Miss Dorothy Catling, Miss Beatrice Clephane, Mrs. Linden Crone, Mrs. Walter C. Moose Women Session Honors Mrs. Mitchell

Columbia Chapter's Past Regent Admitted to College of Regents.

MRS. FRANCES MITCHELL, past regent of Columbia Chapter, Women of the Moose, and now its publicity chairman, was honored last night at the annual session of the College of Regents, the second highest degree of the Women of the Moose, held at the Hotel Hollenden in Cleveland in connection with the national convention of the order. Mrs. Mitchell matriculated into the College of Regents, receiving the high honor because of outstanding service to her chapter and the fraternity, national headquarters announced.

She not only has carried on the publicity work for her chapter, but also has been on the program at regional meetings and conducted round-tables on publicity for chairmen from other chapters, giving suggestions on methods of presenting timely news in interesting way. Under her guidance, a bulletin is being issued by Columbia Chapter to keep its membership informed on meetings and future plans.

Senator James J. Davis, pilgrim governor for the Women of the Moose, announced at the session of the College of Regents the appointment of Mrs. Margaret Johnson, of Chicago, Ill., as grand regent. She succeeds Mrs. Eva G. Starkey, of Lynn, Mass. Mrs. Johnson last year served as the first woman vice president of the Mooseheart Alumni Association and previously had been a member of the advisory council of the Women of the Moose, in which office she was associated with Mrs. James J. Davis. She also has filled many important offices in her local chapter, including that of senior regent. She holds membership in the Academy of Friendship, an honorary degree of the Women of the Moose conferred for outstanding service in the development of the organization. Last year she acted as general chairman of the international conference in Chicago.

Mrs. Henry Keyes Sails for America With New Volume

Mrs. Henry Wilder Keyes (if you're a bookworm, it's Frances Parkinson Keyes) sailed August 30 rom Europe or New York and expects to arrive there on Labor Day. When the customs officer opens her luggage he is bound to find the first two chapters of her new novel, which she wrote as she dashed pell-mell across Europe. Mrs. Keyes was accompanied on her trip by her secretary, Miss Harriet Whitford, who also drove Mrs. Keyes' car up and down and across the map.

The itinerary, planned months ahead, has taken exactly two months to complete. It included interesting days in Holland, where Mrs. Keyes made studies of the housing conditions in that country for the information of the Federal Housing Administration.

Miss Rice Wed To Mr. Howell

Ceremony Performed at Catholic U. Hall; Maine Honeymoon Starts.

Miss Patrice Rice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Rice, of Washington, and Wilfred D. Howell, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Howell, were married yesterday at 10 a. m. in the chapel of Caldwell Hall, Catholic University. The Rev. Robert J. White performed the ceremony. The church was decorated with white lilies against banks of green palms.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white mousseline frock over satin with a tulle veil the same length of the train and a lace cap trimmed with orange blossoms. She carried a white missel, from which fell a streamer of lilies of the valley.

Sister Maid of Honor.

Miss Evangeline Rice served as her sister's maid of honor and only attendant. She wore a chiffon frock in a chartreuse shade, with a matching hat, and carried American Beauty roses.

Dr. Joseph Donnelly, of Jersey City, N. J., was best man, and the ushers were B. Downey Rice and Frederick J. Rice, jr., brothers of the bride; James A. Condrick, of Ontario, Canada; William J. Connors, of Norwich, Cinn.; Joseph D. Tierney, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Dorsey J. Griffith, of Cherrydale, Va., and Edmund R. LaFond and Dr. R. J. McNulty, of Washington.

A reception in the Pope Leo XIII room of Caldwell Hall followed the ceremony. Mrs. Rice wore a fiesta chiffon gown and matching hat and a corsage of brown orchids.

The bride chose as her going-away costume a black crepe frock trimmed with satin, a cape of pointed fox, and black accessories. She and her husband will reside in Washington after a month's motor trip through Maine.

Out-of-Town Guests.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. Julia McLaughlin, of Medfield, Mass., and Miss Christine Howell, of Augusta, Me., sisters of the bridegroom; Mr. and Mrs. Allan Hanson, of Philadelphia, cousins of the bride; Mrs. James Schmidt, of Baltimore, and William Walsh, of Boston.

The bride attended Sacred Heart Academy and the Columbus University law school, and the bridegroom attended Catholic University.

Mrs. Howell is a cousin of Pope Leo XIII through her paternal grandmother.

MISS REBECCA BLAINE leaves tomorrow for Madison, Wis., to attend the national convention of the Women's Relief Corps, being held there September 5 to 11 in connection with the seventy-first national encampment of the Grand Army. She is going as delegate at large from the Department of South Dakota.

Although Miss Blaine has been prominent in various other organizations in Washington since coming here in 1917, she has retained her W. R. C. membership in her former home in the West because she cherished her affiliation with it there.

She is a member of Lincoln Circle, Ladies of the Grand Army, of which she is past president; vice president and secretary of the Clara Barton Memorial Association, a member of the local bar, the National Association of Women Lawyers and the American Bar Association and is a law clerk in the Department of Commerce.

MRS. CHARLES CARROLL HAIG, state regent of the D. C. Daughters of the American Revolution and Miss Lillian Chenoweth, vice regent, are called upon to make many talks "in the line of duty" during the D. A. R. year. However, talking is not the only way they participate in programs—they also sing. Not many organizations can claim two head officers who are not only able executives, but also talented musicians. Mrs. Haig is soprano soloist at First Baptist Church. Miss Chenoweth is a contralto, and they often sing duets together.

Now Miss Chenoweth has another accomplishment (but you mustn't tell I told you for she's all tired out of performing) it is giving colored mammy sketches. She started doing it at D. A. R. entertainments and as her fame spread, other groups invited her to give programs for them. Last season, on the final occasion on which she entertained, she asserted it would be "positively her last appearance." Her friends are protesting as they have at other times when they have heard the same announcement and they expect that, like Buffalo Bill and other famous characters, Chloe (Miss Chenoweth in blackface), will yield to the pleas of her public and come back this winter. Chloe is so popular that Miss Chenoweth often is obliged to answer to that name instead of her own.

MRS. HAIG as State regent, has some trips ahead of her before the District activities are thoroughly under way this fall. September 29 she goes to Atlantic City, where the New Jersey State meeting is being held at the Hotel Traymore; October 5 to Lake Palicd, where the New York State D. A. R. conference will be in session, and October 20 to Harrisburg, for the Pennsylvania State conference.

October 25 the National Board will meet here, bringing to Washington regents from all States in the Union. Mrs. Haig will accompany them to Annapolis, where they will conduct an elaborate ceremony at which each State will present its official flag to Dahlgren Hall, at the United States Naval Academy.

Mrs. Haig, as State regent of the District of Columbia, will not present a flag for the District for the simple reason that it hasn't any. It is flagless as well as voteless and there's nothing to be done about it. All the best researchers of the 60 D. A. R. chapters in the District have delved into records and read up on historical events where a flag might have figured but there just wasn't any for the poor, isolated District to claim.

After the ceremonies at Annapolis, the State regents will go to the mountain school at Tamassee, S. C., where they will dedicate the newly completed dairy unit of the institution, and on to Kate Duncan Smith School in Grant, Ala., for the dedication of a recreation hall in honor of Mrs. William A. Becker, president general. Mrs. Becer will be here for the meeting of the national board as will other national officers.

Miss Gartner, Mr. Daly Wed

In a ceremony at St. Martin's Church yesterday morning, Miss Charlotte Gartner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Gartner, became the bride of Joseph F. Daly, son of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy J. Daly. The Rev. M. J. Riordan officiated before an altar banked with palms and pink and white gladioli.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory satin with a yoke and collar of Duchess lace and a long train. Her tulle veil fell from a poke bonnet, and she carried white roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Regis Louise Boyle, the maid of honor, was gowned in moire taffeta in a peach shade and a cap of baby ribbon with a shoulder veil. She carried a bouquet of talisman roses and blue delphinium. The bridesmaids, Miss Eileen Daly and Miss Margaret O'Donnell, wore frocks of turquoise blue with caps to match and carried pink roses and delphinium. Francis Daly and Carlton Gartner were ushers, and Edward Daly served as his brother's best man.

After the reception, the couple left on an extended trip North, the bride wearing a black tailored dress and hat with white accessories and a corsage of talisman roses. They will be at home after October 1 at Penns Neck, a suburb of Princeton.

Officers of Kappa Gamma Sorority Chapter Guests at Initiation.

OFFICERS of Gamma Chapter, Kappa Gamma Sorority, of Baltimore, were among the guests last night at an initiation of new members of the newly-formed Delta Chapter here of which Miss Lorna Dodge is the president. The ceremony, followed by a banquet, was held in the ballroom of the Raleigh Hotel where the organization, a non-academic society, maintains its national headquarters.

Mrs. Helen McChesney, national director, presided at the installation and the dinner. Others at the head table included Miss Mercedes Galbraith, national secretary; Miss Florence Mermes, Mrs. Joe Davis, Mrs. Luella Penfold and Mrs. Helen Bart field secretaries of the national staff. Also among the special guests were Dr. Jesse W. Sprowls, of the University of Maryland, who conducts the sorority study groups during the winter season; Mrs. Margaret George, president of Gamma Chapter in Baltimore; Miss Mabel Brittingham, secretary; Miss Betty Boss, treasurer, and Miss Evelyn Rogers, publicity chairman.

Mrs. John E. McCabe Heads 'Eight and 40'

Husband and Wife Direct Corresponding Honor Societies of American Legion, Election Last Night Discloses.

Mrs. John E. McCabe last night was elected le chapeau departmental of D. C. Salon No. 14, La Boutique des Huit Chapeaux et Quarante Femmes, at is annual marche, which opened a two day session at the Washington Hotel.

The organization—in simple English the Eight and Forty—is the honor society of the American Legion Auxiliary to which only past officers of the auxiliary and those who have given outstanding service are eligible.

Husband and Wife Chiefs.

The election of Mrs. McCabe to head the Eight and Forty brings an unusually close affiliation between it and the Forty and Eight, the corresponding men's organization identified with the American Legion, as Mr. McCabe only a short time ago was elected grand chef de gare of this group. It is the first time a husband and wife have ever served during the same year as presidents of the two organizations.

Mrs. Bessie L. Faine, retiring le chapeau departemental, presided last night at the meeting, at which reports of officers and committee chairman were presented preceding the election. By virture of being past head of the salon, she becomes national pouvoir member for the coming year.

Other new officers elected include Mrs. Edith Warren Quinn, le senior demi chapeau; Mrs. Edith P. Landvoigt, le junior demi chapeau; Mrs. Virginia McCarthy, l'aumomier; Miss Emily Carey, l'archiviste; Mrs. Catherine Crompton, la surintendante, and Mrs. Alberta A. Lacey, la concierge.

Delegates to the national marche, which will be held in New York City September 20 to 23, include Mrs. Faine, Mrs. McCabe, Mrs. Mabel Staub, Mrs. McCarthy and Miss Carey. Their alternates are Mrs. Quinn, Miss M. Edith McIntosh, Mrs. Landvoigt, Mrs. Lacey, and Miss Marie Hargey.

Installation Tonight.

Tonight, the closing session of the annual meeting will include installation of officers and a buffet supper. The installation is particularly impressive because of the uniforms of the Eight and Forty, hats with red plumes and red capes, worn with white dresses.

Mrs. Dorothy Harper, new department president of the American Legion Auxiliary, is a past national chapeau of the Eight and Forty, and Mrs. Ellen Louise Warren is national chairman of public relations.

W. J. Hunter Soon To Wed Miss Lowe

The wedding of Miss Elizabeth Vandling Lowe, of Washington, and William James Hunter, of Philadelphia, will take place on Saturday evening, September 18. The ceremony will be performed at the home of Mrs. Adolph Werner, jr., sister of the bride, at Drexel Hill, Pa., and will be followed by a reception.

Miss Lowe, who is widely known in Washington, where she has lived for a number of years, is a native of Williamsport, Pa. She will be given in marriage by her brother, Capt. Charles Coppes Lowe, who announced her engagement some time ago. Her attendants will include Mrs. Werner as matron of honor; Mrs. Ada Page Hughlett, as bridesmaid, and her niece, Betty Page Lowe, as flower girl.

Samuel Hunter, jr., will be best man, and ushers will include George Cushing, Adolph Werner, jr., Robert Kirkpatrick and Philip Metzger, of Philadelphia. Mrs. Charles Coppes Lowe, professionally known as Eva Whitford Lovette, will be soloist for the occasion. A large number of friends from Williamsport, Philadelphia and Washington will attend the wedding.

Chicago, Sept. 1.—Slinging Sammy Baugh, gridiron hero from Texas Christian University, flung America's Collegian All-Stars to a 6-0 victory over the professional champions, the Green Bay Packers, tonight.

It was the first time since the series was started four years ago that the Collegians had triumphed over their professional rivals.

The game, played in sticky, hot weather, in flood-lighted Soldiers Field after a day of intermittent showers, attracted a record breaking crowd of 84,560 sweltering, coatless spectators. Few, if any football games to be played anywhere in the Nation this fall, will be witnessed by a larger crowd.

Baugh, rated as America's No. 1 forward passer during the 1936 season, hurled a 20-yard pass that enabled Gaynel Tinsley, star of Louisiana State, to gallop 28 yards in the opening period for a touchdown. That quick thrust enabled the collegians to score the only points of the game, and thereafter they played a remarkable defensive combat, turning back three drives that the desperate Packers had launched.

Packers Try Hard.

The Packers were striving with all their power to conquer the Collegians as the Chicago Bears had done in 1935. The Detroit lines were held to a 7-to-7 tie last year. The first game of the series played in 1934 was a scoreless tie between the Chicago Bears and the Collegians of that day.

Tonight's game was rated as the most thrilling, and the best played, of the professional-collegian series. The combination of Baugh and Tinsley matched the marvelous passing of the professional heaver, Arnie Herber, and his catcher, Don Hutson, of old Alabama, on whom the Packers had depended for victory. Not alone did Baugh pass his team to victory, but he succeeded in intercepting two passes of his rivals, and also punted beautifully.

The Packers outgained the Collegians, registering 17 first downs to 8 for the All Stars, and by all methods gained 343 yards to 185. But that one binding forward pass, thrown like it was strung on a trolley wire, which Baugh heaved to Tinsley, offset all the Packers' efforts.

Collegians Hold 'Em.

In the second period, the Packers, mustering all their power, marched 73 yards to the Collegians' 3-yard line, but they lost their golden opportunity when Herber, on fourth down, passed to Hutson, who was upset by Johnny Drake, of Purdue, as the former Alabama hero caught the ball. Baugh immediately kicked out of danger.

Then again the third period, the Packers launched another drive, with Sauer getting away on a 29-yard run, and Herber passing to Hutson for a first down on the All Stars 30. This drive ended with Herber's long pass going over the goal line incomplete.

The result of the game as a personal triumph for Gus Dorais, head coach of the University of Detroit, and directing genius of the Collegians style of play. Dorais, an old professional footballer himself, started his career at Notre Dame in helping to make the forward pass famous as a teammate of the late Knute Rockne. In those days, back in 1913, Dorais was the heaver with Rockne the catcher.

New York, Sept. 1.—The New York Giants bounced back into first place today in the red-hot National League Pennant race. They walloped the St. Louis Cardinals, 7 to 3, while the Chicago Cubs were taking a licking over in Brooklyn and regained the pace-making position, by the slender margin of two percentage points.

Actually the top two clubs are all even, on a basis of results. The Cubs have won one more game than their rivals while the Giants have one less defeat. Here's the standing, with the third place Cardinals also included.

Hal Schumacher, pitching his secononed straight complete game since contributing a timely comeback to New York's pennant drive, subdued the gas house gang easily after a shaky first inning. He scattered the Cardinals' nine hits, exhibited supperb control, and would have held the visitors scoreless in the last eight frames but for a muff by Joe Moore, which paved the way for the third St. Louis run.

Bill Terry Signs As Giants' Pilot.

New York, Sept. 1.—William Harold Terry, 39-year-old generalissimo of the New York Giants, today accepted a new five-year contract that makes him the highest salaried manager in major league baseball.

The club, informally confirming rumors that have been widely circulated for weeks, disclosed only that "the new contract will carry an increased salary, part of which is for additional duties in connection with the operation of the New York Giants' farm system."

It was reliably reported, however, that Terry's new contract will call for a total annual salary of $40,000, including at least $5,000 for his attention to the rapidly expanding chain of minor league holdings.

Terry received $27,500 yearly under his present five-year contract, which had one year more to run, but which will be canceled beginning next year by the new agreement. Thus for the span of 1938 to 1942 inclusive, the one-time king of National League firstbasemen will draw an estimated aggregate of $200,000.

Terry's new salary, if the baseball guessers are correct, will top that of Joe McCarthy, manager of the world champion New York Yankees, whose $35,000 annual pay now is the biggest.

Today's announcement was designed to set at rest sundry rumors, as well as any doubt about Terry's continuance with the Giants on a long-term basis. Although the club's statement did not actually say so, Secretary Eddie Brannick made it clear the plan is for Terry to continue as bench manager. He will, in effect, exert a general manager's authority in view of his responsibility for handling the farm system.

There had been reports that Terry, who retired from active play this year, also desired to retire as field leader and name his successor. Among those mentioned as possible candidates for the field job, if Terry moved into the front office, were Gabby Hartnett of the Cubs and Frankie Frisch, the old "Fordham Flash," who now pilots the Cardinals.

Wirephoto: An All-Star Tries a Flying Tackle That Failed

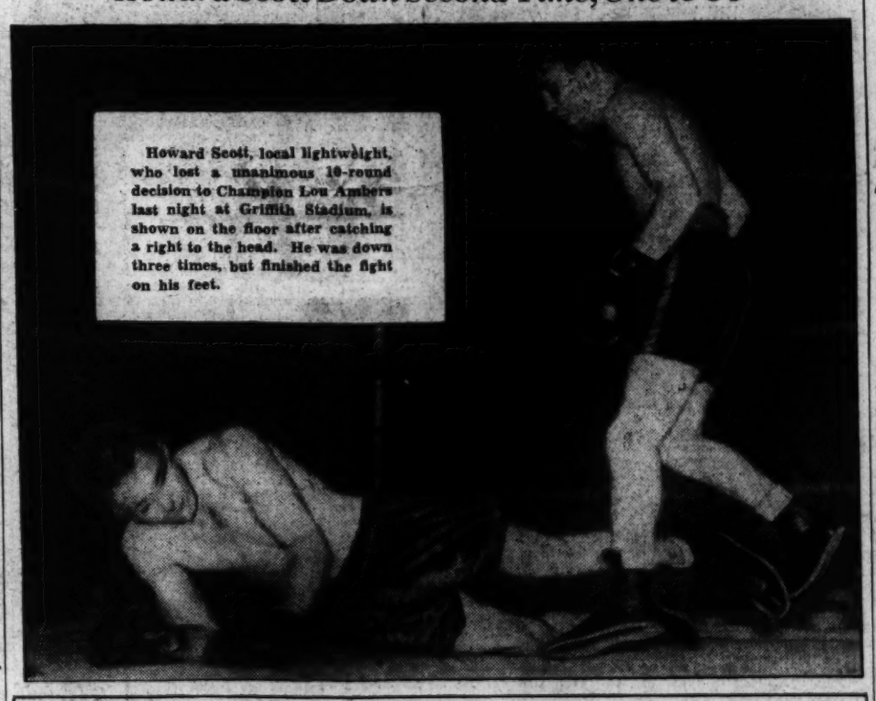
Howard Scott Down Second Time, One to Go



Howard Scott, local lightweight, who lost a unanimous 10-round decision to Champion Lou Ambers last night at Griffith Stadium, is shown on the floor after catching a right to the head. He was down three times, but finished the fight on his feet.

Play-by-Play Account of College-Pro Contest

FIRST QUARTER.

Capt. Baugh, of the All-Stars, won the toss, and defended the south goal. Sam Francis kicked off out of bounds, with the ball being put in play by Green Bay on its 35. After two line plays failed, Herber tossed a 9-yard pass to Hutson. Hinkle punted to Baugh, who substituted for La Rue. Baugh returned 19 yards to the All-Stars 25. Sauer replaced Miller for Green Bay. An offside penalty, and a plunge by Baugh was followed by a sensational pass over the center of line, Baugh to Wendt, for first down midfield. Drake ripped off 12 through the line.

Baugh fired another pass 11 yards to Tinsley for first down on the packers 28. Baugh and Francis were stopped. Then Baugh's pass was incomplete over the goal line. Francis, the big Nebraska fullback attempted to score a placekick from the 35-yard line, but it was short and the packers took the ball on their 20. Herber, of the Packers, punted, the ball rolling to the All-Stars 32.

The Packers were unable to make headway, and Hinkle punted out of bounds on the All-Stars 48.

The crowd got its first big thrill when Baugh fired a 20-yard pass to Tinsley, who galloped 28 yards, eluding Bruder, for a touchdown. Francis' attempt to convert failed. Score: All-Stars, 6; Green Bay, 0.

Johnson went in at full, Becker at end, and Michalske and Goldenberg at guards for Green Bay. The All-Stars put in an entire new team, with Wilkinson, Minnesota, at quarter; Agett, Michigan State, and Cardwell, Nebraska, halves, and Jankowski, Wisconsin, full.

Jankowski kicked off over the goal line, the Packers putting the ball in play on their 20. Sauer punted to Agett, who returned to midfield. Cardwell swept 30 yards around left end to the Packers' 30-yard line. The All-Stars were penalized 20 yards when Agett intentionally grounded a forward pass. Agett then punted out of bounds on the Packers' 5.

First—All-Stars, 6; Green Bay, 0.

SECOND QUARTER.

The Packers reverted to their original starting line-up. After two plunges and a pass failed, Hinkle punted to Baugh, who returned to the Stars' 30. Baugh punted to Herber, who was downed by Tinsley on the Packers' 24. The Packers registered another first down on a pass, Herber to Hutson, on the 34. Herber thrilled the crowd with another tremendous pass to Hutson, the ball sailing 40 yards into Hutson's arms to All-Stars' 25.

Monetti and Herber made it first down on the All-Stars. 9. Gelatka of Mississippi, State replaced Tinsley, at left end for the Stars. Hinkle made 6 yards in two smashes at the line, and then Monetti tried to score in a sweeping end run but was stopped by Gelatka and Svendsen on the 3-yard line. The Packers lost their golden chance when Herber tossed a pass through to Hutson, with Drake stopping him on the 5-yard line. The Packers 75 yards in their drive.

Baugh punted to the Packers, 47.

Baugh intercepted Herber's pass, returning to the All-Stars 37. Unable to gain, Baugh punted to Monetti who was forced out of bounds on the Packers 37.

Herber, no passes to Gantenbein and Monetti, clicked off two first downs to the All-Stars' 21. Agett, back in the game, interspersed another Herber pass on the 5-yard line and ran it back 25. He was hit hard and left the game. Wilke, of Notre Dame, replaced Vasott.

Story Tolz, of Northwestern, replacing Jankowski, punted outside to the Packers' 39.

Hutson, on an end around, dashed 20 yards to the Stars' 20-yard line as the period ended with the score All-Stars, 6; Green Bay, 0.

THIRD QUARTER.

The All-Stars started the third period with the same line-up that started the game, except Baugh in place of Laws.

Hinkle returned the kick-off to the Packers' 30. Sauer broke through the line for 29 yards before he was brought down by Svendsen. Herber passed to Hutson for first down on All-Stars' 30. The All-Stars held, and Herber's fourth down pass went over the goal incomplete. The All-Stars took the ball on their 20.

After losing 3, Baugh punted to the Packers' 35. Herber quickly returned the punt to Baugh, who was chased out on the All-Stars' 32.

Baugh lost 10 on a fake pass, completed one to Tinsley for 13, but finally had to punt, kicking outside on the Packers' 37. Herber's pass to Sauer was allowed complete because of interference on the Packers' 44. The Packers got another first down on the All-Stars' 45 because of interference on another Herber pass to Hutson. Herber then passed 15 yards to Scherer to the All-Stars' 33. Laws replaced Herber, who left the game to get freshened up.

The professional champions, trying passing and running, lost the ball on the All-Stars' 25 when a fourth down pass failed to make the distance.

Agett found a boulevard down the edge of the field for a 25-yard run to midfield. The Packers stacked up three line plays, and Agett punted out of bounds on the Packers' 47.

The Packers banged at the line without success, and then Swede Johnson punted out of bounds on the All-Stars' 5 as the period ended with the score: All-Stars, 6; Packers, 0.

FOURTH QUARTER.

Baugh punted out to Laws, who was downed on the All-Stars 44.

A 9-yard gain by Laws, was nullified by a loss, and Johnson punted over the goal. All Stars took the ball on the 20.

Baugh rifled a pass to Tinsley, netting 35 yards to the Packers' 46. Drake cracked left tackle for another first down on the Packers' 36. The All-Stars' attack bogged down, Baugh kicking outside on the Packers' 25.

The score was 6-0.

Monetti and Hinkle made a first down on the 35. Monetti flung a pass which Baugh intercepted on the Packers' 46.

Francis made first down in two smashes on the Packers' 35. Wilkinson attempted a place kick from the 40-yard line, but it was short, Hutson grabbing the ball and returning 11 yeard to the 20.

Monett completed a pass to Gantenbein for first down on the Packers' 41. Monetti then whipped a pass to Laws for another first down on the All-Stars' 47. Tinsley was injured on the play and left the game amid a roar of applause from the crowd Gelatka took his place. Monetti's pass to Gantenbein made it first down on the All-Star 33.

In desperation Monett heaved a pass to Bruder, but Wilkinson stepped him in his tracks, the All-Stars taking the ball on their 39-yard line. With about a minute to go, Baugh tossed a 9-yard pass to Wilkinson, then punted out of bounds on the Packers' 30. Monett passed 9 yards to Laws. His next tall pass to Hutson was knocked down by Drake, who also smeared the next pass, with the ball going to the All-Stars, on the Packers 39. Jankoski smashed center for 3 as the game ended with the Collerian All-Stars victorious, 6 to 0.

Wes Ferrell Halts Tigers As Nats Win

Gives Bengals 5 Hits; Mates Bunch Blows for 8-2 Victory.

By Shirley Povich.
A Staff Correspondent.

Detroit, Sept. 1.—Wesley Cheek Ferrell, smart guy that he is, was wary of the slugging Detroit Tigers and pitched accordingly as he took the mound this afternoon. With the passing innings, the wariness plus a high degree of disgust were transferred to the Tigers, who were thoroughly bamboozled by the old fellow's pitching.

For seven innings the Tigers accomplished a great deal of nothing against the tantalizing slow balls of Ferrell, and one lone hit—Charley Gehringer's double in the first—was their share of the proceedings. The upshot of it all was an 8-2 victory for the Nats and Ferrell, who reproduced from the pages of yesteryear one of the pitching exhibitions for which he was famous when he was tops among American League hurlers.

It was a five-hitter that Ferrell threw at the Tigers today, and not one of those five hits were made by the newly famous Rudy York, who could get only one ball out of the infield and not so far out of it at that.

And two of those five Detroit hits were as tainted as a Nazi election—Owen's freakish infield single in the eighth and the same fellow's looping fly that dropped at Johnny Stone's feet not so far beyond first base.

During those first seven innings Ferrell was something to watch. With Brother Rick guiding his pitches, Wes gave the Tigers a mixture of slow curves and slower curves that the Detroiters could only beat into the dirt or lift harmlessly overhead.

During that stretch of six innings from the first until the eighth, when Owen made the Tigers' second hit of the day, Ferrell permitted only 18 Tigers to face him—which is par for any big league course.

The only two Tigers to reach first against Ferrell during those six innings he walked, and his pals in Washington infield promptly wiped 'em off the sacks with a pair of double plays.

Before he took the mound, Ferrell was saying he felt a nice game coming on and posted a $1 bet with Manager Bucky Harris that he

'Irish Johnny' Dean Beats Gary Crosete

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Howard Scott, fistiana's Oliver Twist, asked for more from Champion Lou Ambers, ruler of the lightweights, last night at Griffith Stadium, and got it. He received a great deal more than he expected, as a matter of fact, as the Herkimer Hurricane swept through to a unanimous ten-round decision. The title was not at stake.

A throng of 7,000 fans that poured approximately $10,000 into the coffers saw the little Texas gamester drag himself off the floor three times to make a fight of it. Scott fought with all the skill and power at his command, but it was insufficient to match the champion's prowess. He simply didn't have it, while Lou had it to spare.

The three knockdowns undoubtedly decided the issue, but they were as revealing as a show window. Three right hands, flung with the finesse of a champion, and traveling with all the authority of a titleholder, caused them, and Scott's determination, his wanton desire to make a fight of it, caused Ambers to unloose those punishing blows.

Ambers neglected to follow up after he had the cowboy ready to go, but contented himself with standing back and flicking lefts that stung but were not immediately dangerous to the receiver's good health and reputation. It seemed that the champion used his best weapon only when Scott needed a reminder as to his opponent's identity.

Scott scored frequently with his right, clipping Ambers around the ears like a tonsorial expert. His left was so much excess baggage, but the right shook Ambers to his heels at least twice. The last time it happened in the ninth round when Howard, grim despair written on his face, unloosed a terrific blow that whacked the champion solidly on the side of the head.

But if it hurt Lou failed to show it. Rather he uncorked an overhand right that almost shoved the Cowboy's mouthpiece down his throat, backed him into a corner and flailed him unmercifully.

Scott was at his best in the earlier rounds preceding the first knockdown. Ramming home rights to the head and body whenever the opportunity presented itself, hoping against hope—and Ambers' defense—to get in a telling blow.

The preliminaries were uniformly bad. George Abrams won from Hunter Crostic in a four-round curtain-raiser; Irish Johnny Dean outpointed Gary Rosete; Ossie Stewart knocked out Eddie Saxon in three rounds, and Joey Archibald won from Joey Marciente in a six-round technical kayo.

Justa Gal Is Winner At Marlboro

Halloo Is Second in Crain Purse at Local Track.

By Walter Haight,
A Staff Correspondent.

Marlboro Race Track, Sept. 1.—With a riderless horse running interference for her, Justa Gal, a daughter of Flying Ebony, drove to victory in the Crain Purse, a mile and a sixteenth race that featured today's card at this track, to the tune of a $38.20 mutuel.

Justa Gal was whipped to the finish line a length and a half ahead of Halloo. Three lengths farther back came the ancient Huppy to be third.

The crowd of 5,000 made Halloo the favorite and the filly appeared to be "an hour the best," despite the result. Precious King began the downfall of the public choice by tossing Jockey Johnson over his head as the field came out of the gate. Precious King then ran through the field and seemed too determined that Justa Gal should win.

Easter Herald had taken the lead at the start and the riderless Precious King went up beside the gelding and bothered Jockey Holland so much that he was forced to pull up. However, when Justa Gal went to the front, Precious King bounded along at her side. Halloo, which had been rated by Jockey Berg, was put to a drive but each time the filly tried to get the leading Justa Gal, Precious King was in the way.

In the meanwhile, Jockey Willie Cook was saving much ground with Justa Gal and went to the whip through the stretch. Berg tried to rally Halloo but she had lost her punch. Precious King went across the finish line a neck in front and still, from all appearances, guarding Justa Gal in a manner that might suggest a romance.

Mint Bud, with enough backers to make her a $9.50 mutuel, scored a front-running victory in the first race. The Bud Lerner mare sprinted home with Shebang, the favorite and Happy Host in her wake. The veteran W. Snyder did the riding. Shebang was in trouble early in the running and closed in on the winner through the stretch.

Repeating his previous race, Proteus led from flagfall to finish in the second event to win by five lengths. The veteran gelding came down to the wire five lengths in front of Conventional with Sakuntala third in the field of eight. Proteus was ridden by Apprentice Eddie Kilgore and paid $3.70.

Keyed Up brought favorite players another winner in the third race. The high-strung gelding overcame obstacles to be up to take a head decision from Nimule. Jockey Pikor rode the $5.10 winner and was forced to pull up when blocked soon after the start. However, he never gave up riding the gelding and was going away at the end.

Waugh Scout, half of the heavily-played Waugh entry, jumped into the lead in the fourth race and was not headed. With Mannie Berg doing the riding the $5.70 shot down Can Bloom by a half length with Stealing Home third.

Dr. H. J. McCarthy, track veterinarian, reported Veritas, the mare scratched here yesterday due to poisoning, much improved. Stewards are still investigating the case.

Rosedale Scores 31 Points to Annex City-Playground Track Meet

This Morning

Louis Is a Puppet in Jacobs' Hands.

By Shirley Povich.

Detroit, Sept. 1.

Joe Louis got a big hand after his dull performance against Tommy Farr the other evening. He showed it to your correspondent this afternoon. It was puffed and swollen and Louis continually caressed the injured member as he sat with Promoter Mike Jacobs in a box seat at Navin Field, watching the Tigers play the Nats.

POVICH.

"I wouldn't want to say I'd fight again this year, huh, Mike?" Louis was saying. "I guess that Sehmeling fight'll have to wait, huh, Mike?"

That's Joe Louis all over, as we say in our set. He's never positive about anything except when he's inside the ropes. He doesn't ask any questions then. Outside of the ring, the champion doesn't belong to himself. He belongs to Promoter Mike Jacobs and his co-managers, John Roxborough and Julian Black. If they say fight, Louis fights. If they say lay off, Louis lays off.

* * * *

He's the most tractable champ the heavyweight division has ever seen. Ever since Sullivan's day, titleholders have continually quarreled with their managers. Jack Johnson never owned up that he had a manager and Jess Willard did his own business. Jack Dempsey and Jack Kearns split over Estelle Taylor and Gene Tunney boosted Billy Gibson out after winning the title. Jack Sharkey made a show of getting along with Johnny Buckley, but there was no love lost there and Joe Jacobs was only a stooge for Max Schmeling. Carnera changed managers so fast he never knew whom he was fighting for, and Max Baer's pilot, Ancil Hoffman, was only a figurehead. Jimmy Braddock got along with Joe Gould, but had to split the profits 50-50.

* * * *

But Louis is a mere marionette to be manipulated as the trinity of Jacobs, Roxborough and Black see fit. The black boy has a deep sense of appreciation for the manner in which he was promoted into the big money and the title and the shrewd way in which his managers have invested his earnings. If they told him to fight Max Schmeling tomorrow night, he'd figure they know best.

* * * *

Thus it was today that Louis didn't know when he would fight again. Because they hadn't told him. Roxborough remained over in New York after the Farr affair and no conferences have been held. When Louis said he didn't think he'd fight again this year he meant he hadn't been told to fight again.

* * * *

There isn't much doubt that Louis' right hand was badly done for against Farr. He complained as early as the fourth round and he was saying today that he has thrown more rights in two rounds than he threw in those last ten rounds against Farr. It's the punch that sets the other guy up for that devitalizing left hook he stows 'em away with.

* * * *

Louis was one of two deflated sluggers in Navin Field this afternoon. The other was Rudy York, the new home-run sensation, who didn't get much better than a foul off Wes Ferrell. And there was a true analogy in the helplessness of York today and Louis the other night at Yankee Stadium.

* * * *

Even as the canny Tommy Farr tied Louis up and kept him off balance to offset the punching power of the Negro, Ferrell worked on York today and it was not lost upon Louis who is proud of his knowledge of baseball.

* * * *

"How you gonna hit when they don't give you nothin' to hit?" Louis was saying as he pointed to Ferrell out there working on York. "He's pushing up those mush balls and York can't do nothing with 'em. Same as I couldn't do much with Farr. He didn't give me much to hit 'cept the top of his head and a lot of elbows and arms. Made me look bad like Ferrell made York look bad today. But we catch up with those kind some time, huh Mike?"

* * * *

Jacobs smiled, and he had a reason. The result of the Louis-Farr battle represents money in the bank to the New York promoter. It gave him two drawing cards instead of one. Louis' drawing power was uninjured—the Negro will always be a magnet at the gate. And Jacobs now can send Farr against anyone of a number of heavies with the prospects of a profitable gate.

* * * *

And Jacobs is in no hurry to give Schmeling a chance at the title. Should the German beat Louis—and he would be the favorite to turn that little trick—the promoter would be at the mercy of Schmeling who might see fit to give Jacobs the same runaround he has gotten during the past two years when he made six crossings of the Atlantic in an attempt to get a title bout.

* * * *

Jacobs could sign Schmeling to defend his title, of course, but that contract would not necessarily be binding. Schmeling, as champion of the world, would be hailed so wildly in Germany that he would never have to leave the Fatherland for profitable fights. He could bring the challengers to him, then. The Jew, Jacobs, would have a fine time gaining an injunction against Schmeling in the German courts. See?

By Jack Munhall.

Pounding over the blistering cinders of the narrow Central High School track while a merciless sun emblazoned its red initials deep into tender backs, a plucky, dog-tired Rosedale team was returned a close winner after more than five hours in the "Little Olympics," the city-wide playground track meet that annually climaxes the season.

Although the competition was spirited and over 2,000 participated, only one mark fell and one was established. Suteme Murayama, lithe Filipino entry from Stoddert, smashed his own record made last year breezing the 100-pound 60-yard dash in 7 seconds flat.

The other record-establishing feat was in the unlimited unrestricted class. The meet was divided into two sections, the restricted group on whose performances the team winner was determined and the unlimited unrestricted group whose accomplishments were not officially tabulated in a playground's point total.

William Marlow, of Barnard, flashed over the course in 6.1 seconds to annex the unlimited unrestricted 60-yard dash being held for the first time in this meet. Naturally, a record was established, but the crowning feature of the victory was his equaling of the world's indoor record over that distance.

Marlow, a slender, muscular Georgetown University relay runner, led Charles Davis, of Virginia avenue, and George Bogan, a college teammate, to the tape by 10 feet in a great stretch drive. Bogan and Davis clattered in in a "photo finish," and after deliberation, the latter was awarded second place, third being given to Bogan.

Bogan returned shortly afterward to gain revenge, kicking his heels in front of both Davis and Marlow to capture the 100-yard dash in 10 seconds flat.

The festivities in the morning were colorful and solemn. At approximately 10 o'clock all contestants paraded around the track after which they received the massed and awe-inspiring Olympic oath and from then on the meet was conducted in accepted Olympic fashion. All winners, runners-up and third placers mounted a rostrum to bow to the plaudits of the crowd.

Johnson-Powell and Sherwood fought point for point down the homestretch with the winners but an early lead plus a timely victory by James Finnegan in the 115-pound running broad jump clinched honors for the boys coached by Ben Kale, well-known local football and baseball official.

For Ben it marked the fifth time in the last ten years that his long, browned fingers have caressed the large gold cup given the triumphal playground. For Rosedale's squad it marked return to the prominence enjoyed almost exclusively until a five-year reign was fractured in 1935. Last year Rosedale finished second to Georgetown whose sixth-place finish yesterday was disappointing.

Ben Zola's Garfield lads also enjoyed the day, for their fifth place was the highest ever obtained in the meet.

Miss Brown Bows One Up In 2d Round

Special Dispatch to The Post.

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Sept. 1.—Mrs. Betty Palmer Meckley, experienced linkswoman from the Nation's Capital and her youthful opponent, Marion Brown, of Manor Club, staged the second round feature in the Mason-Dixon play here today, Mrs. Meckley halving the final hole to earn a one up victory before a huge gallery that followed the match from the first tee.

Playing the difficult White Sulphur Springs course in 84 strokes, Mrs. Meckley won the first hole over Miss Brown to assume a lead she never lost, although the mach was even as late as the fourteenth tee.

A conventional par five on the first hole earned a win for Mrs. Meckley as Miss Brown three-putted and the Indian Spring linkswoman was two up as she took the fifth.

The match see-sawed until the turn, Miss Brown winning the sixth when her opponent missed an approach, but she lost the seventh as her approach shot skimmed into a trap.

After halving the eighth, the eventual winner's margin was cut to 1-up at the halfway point when she failed to get out of the deep rough. Again Mrs. Meckley increased the lead to 2 on the eleventh, but the match was all even three holes later as Miss Brown won, 11 and 13.

Mrs. Meckley gained the winning margin by taking the next two holes in par. The sixteenth was halved, leaving the match dormie, but the Manor member rallied to take seventeen, and after both players reached the eighteenth from the tee, Miss Brown flubbed her first putt and Mrs. Meckley putted safely for a 4 and victory.

Pug Renter Hurt In Redskin Drill

The Washington Redskins, Capital's entry in the National Professional Football League, were doubly hit by injuries to key players yesterday as the second scrimmage was held at Anacostia.

Pug Renter, the former Northwestern all-American back, and considered one of the Redskins' leading ground gainers, suffered a painful injury to his left hand and Ed Kowal, former Notre Dame luminary, and the locals' only experienced center, received a wrenched shoulder.

The Redskins open the grid season Sunday traveling to Frederick for a game with the American Legion All-Stars. Kowal is expected to be back in harness then, but the appearance of Renter will hinge on the X-ray report.

Wes Ferrell Halts Tigers As Nats Win

Gives Bengals 5 Hits; Mates Bunch Blows for 8-2 Victory.

would hold big Rudy York hitless. Harris willingly paid off after the game.

Ferrell's shutout motions were disrupted in the eighth when Owen led off with a cheap single. Ferrell knocked the ball down and Travis, too, got a hold of it, but Joe Kuhel dropped the throw to first on a close play. A walk to Pinch-hitter Goose Goslin with one out and Gerald Walker's single to left produced the first Tiger run.

That other Detroit run was luck-anointed, too. Greenberg's double to left was legitimate enough, but Ferrell had two out when Owen dropped a cheap single into right, a ball that ordinarily would have been caught, but Stone broke late and barely failed to reach it.

The Tigers threw Pat McLaughlin, a young string-bean rookie, at the Nats and the Washingtons wrung three runs out of him in the first inning. They nicked him for another in the sixth and finished up with three hits off four Detroit pitchers for every hit that Ferrell allowed.

Washington made it 4-0 in the sixth when Kuhel singled to left. Myer singled to center and Sington beat out a bunt to Wade that filled the bases with one out.

Reds, Bees Break Even In Twin Bill

By the Associated Press.

Boston, Sept 1.—Eight-hit pitching by Lou Fette, the Bees' 30-year-old rookie, gave Boston a 4-to-1 verdict in the nightcap of a doubleheader with Cincinnati today after the Reds took the opener, 5 to 1, behind Paul Derringer's six-hit performance.

Ira Hutchinson opposed Derringer on the mound in the opener, but after the Reds got to him for three runs in the fourth—Lombardi and Riggs singled, Kampouris doubled and Derringer singled—and another in the fifth, Guy Bush relieved him and pitched one-hit, no-run ball the rest of the way.

Gene Moore's fourteenth homer in the second inning started Gene Schott off to defeat in the second game, but the Reds tied it in the fifth, when Campbell doubled and Schott singled.

Fette won his own game in the fifth, however, when, with the bases filled on two walks and Moore's single, he pounded a one-bagger into right field that scored two runs.

Stock Decline In August Led By Utilities

Monthly Average of 100 Issues Drops First Time in 7 Years.

New York, Sept. 1.—For the first time since 1930, share prices as measured by 100 representative common stocks, recorded a decline for August, according to the monthly compilation issued by Frazier Jelke & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange. In the past month the valuation of the list depreciated $1,567,752,000 or 6.2 per cent, the total market value amounting to $23,447,686,000. Seven years ago the list had a valuation of $29,839,306,000 after sustaining a drop of seven-tenths of 1 per cent in the month.

Of the 13 divisions comprising the index none showed an advance for the month just ended. The smallest decline on a percentage basis occurred in the foods. Of the 100 individual stock issues examined 93 closed lower than at the end of July, six were higher and one issue was unchanged. This is an unusually high ratio.

The largest loss on a percentage basis was in the utilities, which had recorded the widest improvement in the previous month. The power and light group fell 11.7 per cent. The rails and building stocks lost 8.6 per cent and the electrical equipments 8.5 per cent. The following table shows the extent of price changes by groups during August:

Cotton Nears 9-Cent Level

New York, Sept. 1 (AP).—Cotton showed moderate resistance today as prices eased close to the 9-cent level. After December had recovered from 9.04 to 9.15, it back tracked to close at 9.05 with final prices 7 to 9 points net lower.

While some trade circles continued to give a bearish interpretation to the cotton loan terms and some of the selling was based on such views, there was enough resistance as the market approached within a few points of 9 cents to cause recoveries of about 8 to 12 points from the lows. Renewed liquidation appeared on bulges.

Wheat Rally Wiped Out by Late Selling

Buying Flurry Follows Good Demand for Cash Grain.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Sept. 1.—A noon rally propelled by enlarged buying power lifted wheat prices out of the week's rut only temporarily today, and when it subsided the market relaxed once more into quiet trading with all gains lost.

The flurry of buying was attributed partly to reports of good demand for cash wheat in Northwestern markets, particularly at Winnipeg, and indicated export wheat business on the Canadian market of about 250,000 bushels. Flour trade the past week was reported gratifying. Late selling that erased the gains was associated with a cable indicating rain was falling in Argentina and that general moisture was in prospect.

Tobacco Markets.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 1.—Maryland—With receipts falling off to 2,139 hhds. sales totaled 2,895 hhds. Prices continued to ease off a little more for firm leaf grades, which had been selling between 39.00 and 39.00, as well as for seconds between 25.00 and 37.00.

Crop report—During the past week we had five days of continually rainy weather with high humidity and occasional thunderstorms. The tobacco in the barns, while not seriously hurt, has mostly turned darker in color, while some early tobacco still in the fields has also suffered from the heavy rains. However, the late tobacco has been helped by the rains, so that it is too early to estimate whether the 1937 crop as a whole has been hurt more than it has been helped.

Stocks Decline Steadily With Skepticism on Fall Upturn in Business.

New York, Sept. 1.—September afternoon brought a relapse in speculative markets which have at best been poor convalescents. Losses taken in the August dog days, the realization that insiders have been selling and skepticism over the prospect for a worthwhile rally in business this autumn gave stocks that short-sale appearance which so frequently proceeds better conditions. Closing prices were near the bottom, with losses of 1 to 3 points numerous. Government bonds held firm. Commodities were mixed.

Little encouragement in the day's industrial news and lack of enthusiasm over future prospects gave the stock market insufficient buying power to absorb without loss the dribble of sales. Steel and railroad shares were the poorest, and for the most obvious reasons. Tapering off in railroad traffic and the increased costs now facing them explains their position, to ameliorate which a member of the I. C. C. yesterday proposed consolidation into one system of all the roads.

Under such a merger a great many operating advantages could in theory be carried out, with a tremendous reduction in expenses. Actually it is doubtful if a penny would be saved, for roads now in receivership would add enough deficit to the strong roads to wipe out millions of what otherwise would be savings. For another thing labor would be sure to enlist enough political support to prevent any material reduction in the number of employes. Further, jealous small towns and cities would insist on too high a minimum of train operation. Finally, jealous tax collectors in cities, counties and States would make sure that as little mileage as possible and as few buildings as possible be abandoned.

Orders Decline.

Meanwhile, the railroads in the first seven months have failed to cover their fixed charges. They may do so in the remainder of the year, but only here and there is the common stockholder confident of receiving anything on his investment. The steel industry is feeling caution in railroad equipment orders, the lack of building construction business and other troubles which the outlook for larger export business has so far failed to offset. Even the ordinarily optimistic Iron Age, in its weekly review of the trade, admits that the extent of the autumn demand is not clearly indicated and that "there is a growing disposition to question whether the aggregate volume will be as large as was expected earlier in the summer."

The scrap market has weakened, probably on the fear that if shipments to Japan for war purposes should stop the market might become choked. On the other hand, ore shipments are heavy and the motor industry is mostly optimistic. One exception might be made in the case of Chairman Sloan of General Motors, who said he thought the higher prices to be charged for the new model cars might cut down sales volume, and consequently reduce steel orders if not the profits of the motor industry.

Steel Shares Drop.

Another indication of possible congestion in industry was seen in the price reduction in Pennsylvania crude oil and still another in the slowness of the copper industry to recover from the slump after the latest speculative bulge in the price for the metal. Meanwhile war orders are helping the raw materials markets, but that isn't building up much confidence in view of the steady approach to bankruptcy of a number of nations engaged either in actual fighting or in preparations for or against war.

Steel common was down more than 3 points at its worst, suffering some after effects of the bad fall taken just before the close of trading yesterday. It is doubtful if the weakness in steel was over disappointment that no dividend was voted by the directors yesterday. Almost no one expected that to happen at this time. The effect of a dividend would have been wasted in this market anyhow. Other steels declined from 1 to 3 points, including Youngstown, Republic and Crucible.

M'Ninch Advice Presages New Power Contest

Industry Has Ended Its Most Prosperous Year, Chairman Reports.

By Russell Smith

Another fierce contest between advocates of public and private power development is near, it appeared yesterday after Chairman Frank R. McNinch of the Federal Power Commission caustically advised utility companies to plan "for construction and expansion" and to spend less time "in litigation and resistance to regulation."

McNinch's statement took as springboard power commission figures which showed, the chairman said, "the power industry enjoyed the most prosperous year in its history for the 12-month period ended July 31, 1937."

He said production for public use "reached the unprecedented peak" of 117,994,000,000 kilowatt hours during that time.

Norris Bill Major Issue.

"This revelation of unparalleled growth and prosperity is the answer to those devotees of that ancient superstition of hydromancy," remarked the North Carolinian, "who gazed at the water of a few hydro plants the Government was building and predicted the destruction of the private power industry."

Significance was attached to McNinch's statement in view of the prospect the Norris natural resources bill, establishing eight authorities modeled on the Tennessee Valley Authority, will be a major issue in the next session of Congress.

Indications have piled up recently that delay of House and Senate in bringing up the measure in the last session was due to knowledge of leaders that a bitter fight would be precipitated. This was confirmed when House Majority Whip Patrick J. Boland, on leaving here after adjournment, predicted the bill would be stripped of power provisions.

His statements was the first public indication of the deep-seated opposition the bill will encounter in the Northeastern and Middle Atlantic States, other leaders indicated privately.

McNinch virtually served notice on the utilities that New Deal policy on electric power will not be softened. The measure of confidence he commands from the President was indicated last month when he took a leave of absence from his chairmanship, at instance of the White House, to smooth out internal Federal Communications Commission difficulties.

President May Visit Dams.

Further indication the power question will figure largely in the next session of Congress is read by many into the President's consideration of a trip to Bonneville and Grand Coulee dams, in the Pacific Northwest, late this month.

An expanded national power plant, both public and private, is required, McNinch said yesterday. Urging private utilities to build new plants, he said that "all of the Federal and public and privately-owned power plants now constructed or in process of construction will not, in my opinion, be adequate to meet the demand within the next five years."

Steel's Biggest Boom Is Here, Bank Declares

At Current Rate Year Will Set Peacetime Peak, Says National City.

New York, Sept. 1.—"We are in the midst of the greatest peacetime boom ever experienced by the world's iron and steel industries," the September letter of the National City Bank of New York says today. "If the current rate of activity continues, the world steel mills this year may turn out 140,000,000 tons of steel, which would exceed the previous peak outputs of around 120,000,000 tons each in 1929 and 1936 and dwarf the prewar output, which during the 1909-13 period averaged only about 68,000,000 tons.

"The economic and political developments in the past five years have greatly changed the outlook, not only for steel itself but also for the raw materials used in its making. In 1932 the world steel industry, except in the Soviet Union and still younger nations, was burdened by what was believed to be a huge excess capacity, and steel scrap was a drug on the market. Today the output is almost 200 per cent above that of 1932; steel scrap is selling four times as high as in 1932 and is regarded as a valuable national resource, the export of which is prohibited by a number of nations. The problem of excess capacity has disappeared, at least for the present.

"Evidences of demand outstripping supply are numerous. Several nations are rationing pig iron and steel among their industries; other countries are regulating exports of steel products to protect their industries from a too rapid price-rise at home.

Chief Causes.

"The primary cause of this outburst of activity is the fact that there has been little expansion of steel-making capacity in the last seven years, and in that time the demand for new and improved industrial equipment has greatly increased. The higher wage-scales in all countries have offered more inducements to more economical utilization of man-power. Every industry affords examples of this kind, and wherever one is a demonstrated success competitive pressure compels its general adoption.

"Shipbuilding is an example of such replacements. In Great Britain this is now at the highest point in six years and in Japan more than 150 ships are under construction. The modernization of railroads and highways is bringing business to steel mills in many European countries. The scare demand for war equipment has been an important factor, but it has crowded out or delayed a large volume of industrial business, by taking precedence or by raising prices.

"World industrialization has furnished a constantly widening demand for steel and iron products. Industrialization embraces machine porduction, mechanization of transportation facilities and the harnessing of energy; in brief, the entire mechanical progress stimulated by the last war and so inseparably associated with the rise in the standard of living."

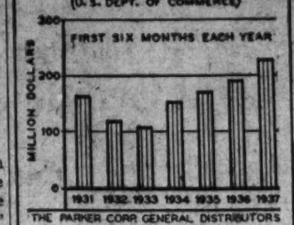
Paint Sales Near Boom Year Record



Boston, Mass., Sept. 1.—Steadily upward have climbed the sales of paints, varnishes and lacquers. Sales in the first half of this year surpassed those in the same 1936 months by 18½ per cent and were only 3 per cent less than sales in the like period of the bonm year, 1929.

Curb Declines On Broad Front

New York, Sept. 1 (AP). — Curb stocks declined in all groups today for losses of fractions to around 3 points lower. Oils and specialty shares led the recession. Creole Petroleum dropped 1⅜ to 34½ and International Petroleum, Gulf Oil and Pantepec Oil were fractionally lower following announcement of a slash in the price of Pennsylvania Crude Oil.

Specialty shares were under pressure. Sherwin Williams fell 3 points to 122 and Pittsburgh Plate Glass closed at 122, off a point. American Cyanamid "B" gave up 1⅜ to 34 and Aluminum Co. was off 2½ to 140. Other losers were American Gas & Electric at 31½, Electric Bond & Share at 16⅛ and United Gas at 8⅝.

Decline in Food Indicates Halt In Wage Rise

New York, Sept. 1.—Food prices have shown a downward tendency since March, when the peak for the current inflationary movement was recahed, according to the Alexander Hamilton Institute. The food price index, on the basis of 1923-25 as 100, declined from 92.5 in March to 89.5 in June. A further decline in food prices is in prospect since the price-depressing effect of larger crops is not likely to be offset by any further extension of the inflationary movement in the immediate future.

This indicates a halt in the upward trend of wage rates since there is a close correlation between the trend of food prices and the trend of the factory worker's earnings. A drop in food prices will tend to be accompanied by a decline in the worker's earnings, especially since earnings rose above the level of food prices in the recent advance. In fact, earnings have already shown some decline with the index dropping from a peak of 102.8 in May to 101.1 in June.

Indians Top Yanks, 4-2; Even Series

Champions Are Limited to 7 Hits; Solters Hits for Circuit.

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, Sept. 1.—Steady pitching by Denny Galehouse, who held the American League leaders to seven hits, six of them singles, today gave the Indians a 4-to-2 decision over the New York Yankees and evened their series at one-all.

The Yanks were first to score, on Bill Dickey's double and Myril Hoag's infield out in the second, but were over-hauled in the fourth when, with Hal Trosky on base as a result of his single, Julius Solters walloped his eleventh homer of the year over the rightfield wall.

The Indians nicked Kemp Wicker, who went the route for the champs, for one more in the sixth and another in the seventh. Another single by Trosky, who had three hits for the day; Bruce Campbell's single and Odell Hale's two-bagger to right produced the first, while a balk sandwiched between Averill and Trosky accounted for the other.

Twin Windup Tops Rassle Card Tonight

One of Winners Will Meet Bronko Nagurski Later This Month.

Joe Turner made it definite yesterday that one of the four grapplers in his double windup bouts tomorrow night at Griffith Stadium will be selected as an opponent for Bronko Nagurski, recognized world champion, when he shows here this month.

Nagurski has been guaranteed $5,000 or 25 per cent of the gate to defend his title against an opponent to be chosen by Turner.

Ray Steele, the popular Californian, mets Reb Russell and Joe Cox engages Jack Peterson in the double windup matches. One of these will face Nagurski, the former All-American from Minnesota.

The supporting card for the double-windup matches was completed yesterday. In one of the 30-minute bouts Chief Thunder Bird, who stole the show last week, returns for action against George Lenihan, the one-man-riot squad from Boston. In other matches Cliff Olsen engages Walter Podolok and Mayes McLain goes after Wee Willie Davis.

All women will be admitted free.

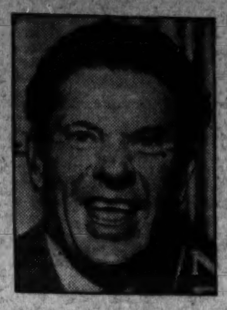
Bob Burns Says—



Ever since I can remember, Grandmaw Norbeck has been treating us with her old-fashioned remedies.

Somehow or other, they always seemed to work, but not long ago they got one of those city doctors down there and he started in preachin' against those old-fashioned remedies.

Not long after that, my Cousin Wafford got sick and she put him to bed and she called a doctor. Grandmaw Norbeck met him at the door and the doctor says, "Well, have you done anything for the boy?" Grandmaw says, "No, I didn't." She said, "I did soak his feet in hot mustard water. I gave him a dose of quinine and some mullein tea. I put a porous plaster on his back. I rubbed him with alcohol and then I gave him some herbs, but figerred I'd better not do anything until you told us what's ailin' him."

He finished the job as superintendent, and since that time he had directed construction of many large public and private buildings in Washington and other cities, including St. Gabriel's Catholic Church, Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, the Church of the Latter Day Saints, the Chastleton Hotel, the Barrister and Medical buildings and the Austrian and Netherlands legations.

He served in the Sixteenth Volunteers, District of Columbia, during the Spanish-American War, and was a member of Camp Petitt, United Spanish War Veterans. For many years he was a member and trustee of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America.

A resident of Washington since he was 10 years old, Mr. Scott would have been 62 yesterday. His father, the Rev. Joseph A. Scott, who died last year, was assistant pastor of Ninth Street Christian Church.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Fannie G. Scott; a daughter, Mrs. E. Levell; two sons, Clifford R. Scott and Harry F. Scott; a brother, Joseph A. Scott, and three sisters, Mrs. Gertrude Runyon, Mrs. Ernest Salisbury and Mrs. Robert Young, all of Washington.

Angus D. MacLean Succumbs in N. C.

Angus D. MacLean, who, as Assistant Solicitor General of the United States, helped defend the gold clause act before the Supreme Court, died yesterday of a heart attack at his home in Raleigh, N. C.

Mr. MacLean was appointed Assistant Solicitor General in August, 1933, upon the creation of the post. In August, 1935, he was named an Assistant Attorney General in charge of the claims division of the Justice Department.

Two months later he resigned to resume his law practice, but shortly thereafter he accepted an appointment as special assistant to the Attorney General to handle Cherokee Indian land cases in North Carolina.

He was a member of the Washington law firm of Brewster & MacLean, with offices in the Southern Building, and the firm of MacLean, Pou & Emmanuel in Raleigh.

Death of 'Daddy' Bennett, Mission Head, Is Blow to Thousands of Capital's Children

Expires of Heart Attack After Almost Quarter-Century of Service.

John S. Bennett, known as "Daddy" Bennett to thousands of Washington's underprivileged children he had helped during his long service as superintendent of the Central Union Mission, died early yesterday at the mission building, 624 Indiana avenue, where he made his home. He had been suffering from a heart ailment since December. In the past two months his condition had improved to such an extent he was able to pay several visits to Camp Bennett, the children's camp which the mission maintains in Brookeville, Md. A replapse occurred about two weeks ago.

During his illness Mrs. Bennett has been acting superintendent of the mission in addition to directing the Children's Emergency Home, a branch of the mission's activities founded during Mr. Bennett's 22 years as superintendent.

Bennett came to the mission in June, 1915. Under his leadership and expert business management the scope of its activities has increased enormously. The large fireproof building which the mission now occupies has been paid for, and an endowment fund of $30,000 established.

Bennett was known to Washington boys and girls for the baskets which he distributed at the mission each Thanksgiving, and for the Christmas parties at which until last year he played Santa Claus.

He was born in Hartford, Conn., the son of the late Amos and Ellen Fitzgerald Bennett. He was in the clothing business in New York City for many years. He married Ada Jean Ackley, of Philadelphia, in 1910.

JOHN S. BENNETT.

In New York Mr. Bennett served for five years as leader of the Sunday and Wednesday evening services at the old Jerry McAuley Mission. When he assumed his duties the mission was housed in the old Seaton Hotel, 622 Louisiana avenue, built during the Civil War. May 18, 1924, the cornerstones were laid for the present structure and for a building at 613 G street to house the Children's Emergency Home. Both buildings were occupied in December of the same year.

During the past six years Mr. Bennett has become known to many radio listeners through the chapel service which Station WOL broadcasts each Saturday evening.

He was a member of the Metropolitan Presbyterian Church, belonged to the Washington Board of Trade, the New Jerusalem Lodge, F. A. A. M., and the Columbia Golf and Country Club. He was second vice president of the Kiwanis Club.

Survivors in addition to his wife are a sister, Miss Mary Bennett, and four brothers, William, Amos, James and Joseph, all of Hartford.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 11 a. m. at Calvary Baptist Church with burial in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Those taking part in the service will include Dr. Freely Rohrer, pastor of the Metropolitan Presbyterian Church and president of the ministerial council of the Central Union Mission; Dr. Anson Phelps Stokes, canon of the Washington Cathedral, representing Bishop Freeman; Maj. William H. Ramsey, who has worked with the mission for 50 years, and Homer A. Rodeheaver, singer, who was a personal friend of Mr. Bennett for many years. E. H. DeGroot, jr., president of the mission's board of directors, will preside. The Mission Glee Club will sing.
